

OFFICE OF ADMISSIONS
JAMES MADISON UNIVERSITY
DO NOT REMOVE

I Imagine
THAT

B L U E S T O N E

1 9 9 4

I Imagine THAT

Features	14
Sports	114
Classes	194
Organizations	292
Greeks	322
Closing	384

Guilfoyle

Bluestone

1993-94

Volume 86

James Madison University
Harrisonburg, Virginia 22807

Magin

Magin

LOYALTY. This student displays JMU pride in her expression, face paint and performance. The Marching Royal Dukes were known throughout the state for both musical ability and school spirit.

A PLACE IN THE SUN. Students take advantage of another beautiful day in Harrisonburg. Warm spring days found students on the quad in full force.

CHARGE! The Dukes make their entrance at the first home football game. Win or lose, support for the football team was always strong.

HURRAY! Four years worth of a student's hard work culminate this graduation day. The 1993 senior class was the first to graduate in separate ceremonies for each major.

Manzo

Magin

I Imagine THAT

It's difficult for one to imagine what it must have been like to attend Madison College...when the Quad was not just the center of campus, but the only part of campus, or when women's basketball games were played in the basement of Keezell Hall and having a male in a student's room caused a scandal.

When one takes time to look back on the distant past of the University, it is obvious that the changes that have taken place are phenomenal. Seniors graduating this May could remember when there was no Zane Showker Hall or renovated Burruss Hall, much less Taylor Hall, the new addition to the Warren Campus Center. Each year at JMU brought with it new buildings and a new view of campus; and a broadening of horizons as the school expanded.

As we embarked upon this school year, the changing times were evident to all JMU students. Whether it was the changes over the decades or the yet unseen plans for the future, we were all amazed as we tried to IMAGINE THAT...

Magin

SLEEPY TIME. The low wall by Showker Hall and Eagle provides the perfect rest area. Quick naps were often a busy student's only way of making it through a long day.

Manzo

Manzo

BLOWING BUBBLES. This student takes a leisurely stroll through Godwin field. Students often reverted back to childhood games as a break from the pressures of college life.

NOTHING DOING. The 10 minutes between classes gave students time to relax with friends. Despite construction, the benches outside Carrier Library were a popular meeting place.

I Imagine THAT

The complexity and growth of the outside world was mirrored through the necessary expansions on campus. Taylor Hall, the addition to the Warren Campus Center, housed larger offices for organizations such as the Student Government Association and Center for Off Campus Living. With their expanded facilities, these and other organizations were better equipped to cater to the ever growing needs of the University's population.

As we made our way back to Harrisonburg in August, none of us were surprised to see cranes and construction equipment amidst the buildings on campus. Progress had been made toward the completion of Wampler Hall, a residence hall located near the Bluestone buildings. The construction of Wampler began last year, and as we returned, it was slated to begin housing students by the spring semester.

The newest construction project was the addition of a third floor to Carrier Library. As we entered the library, we were greeted by a daily construction update posted in the lobby, which informed us of the progress of the addition, often with a humorous tone.

SHOPPING AROUND. Many vendors set up shop on the campus center patio as fundraisers for various clubs. This was a great way for students to purchase new clothing without the hassles of retail shopping.

Vc

I Imagine THAT

The multitude of changes around campus were often cited as reasons that attracted new students to the University. This year, JMU's enrollment grew to an unprecedented 11,500 students, making the memory of the once small teacher's college seem very remote.

Once again JMU upheld its reputation of attracting diverse and dynamic students. After being ranked in Money magazine's best college buys for four straight years, students travelled from up and down the east coast to attend JMU, and some even came from across the country. The foreign exchange program also continued to provide the University with students from various countries and allowed JMU students to travel the world.

As JMU's strong liberal studies program was joined with the new College of Integrated Science and Technology, an even more diverse student body emerged. Although the actual grounds of the new College of Integrated Science and Technology were not finished, the enrollment in the program continued to grow, and rumors of the plans slated across Interstate 81 circulated the main campus.

Gullfoyle

BODY PAINTING. Some JMU men like to draw on their chests to express their spirit for the game. These three stayed together through the whole game so their letters would spell JMU.

SIT TIGHT. Friends hang out at the tables on the patio. The addition of Taylor Hall did not change the exterior of the Warren Campus Center patio.

Birney

BENCHED. A student lounges outside and studies. Any surface turned into a desk for students with homework to do.

GRRR! Melissa Karpouzes pulls for her sorority in the tug-o-war. Fraternities and sororities alike competed in Greek Week activities.

I Imagine THAT

The new faces at JMU established their place on a campus filled with a plethora of activities. Upperclassmen guided transfer students and freshmen into a world of experience, growth and discovery.

Greek life was one option open to students welcoming a social atmosphere. Others opted for academic fraternities or clubs which provided them with valuable leadership skills to supplement their education. Yet other options for involvement were present through activities such as Inter-Hall council, the University Program Board or Minority Outreach groups. The activities of campus groups not only bonded the students to their respective organizations, but also to the JMU and Harrisonburg communities as students participated in fund raisers and service projects.

The opportunities offered to students entered the athletic realm as well. An extensive intramural program allowed students to enjoy friendly competition, which sometimes escalated into intense games and matches. Others preferred to watch from the sidelines, and could be seen cheering for JMU's varsity athletes at places such as the Convocation Center, Bridgeforth Stadium or soccer field.

Magin

Magin

FURRY FRIENDS. Mascots team up at a home football game. The Duke Dog was a favorite of both students and visiting children.

GROOVIN'. Christoph Bachuber enjoys the reggae festival on Godwin field. The University Program Board sponsored the free concert the first week of classes.

THE STEPS. For students living in the lakeside dorms, this was a common view. Walking to class gave students time to enjoy the beauty of the campus.

Magin

WILSON BY NIGHT. Whether night or day, Wilson Hall provides one of the most beautiful scenes on campus. Students often used the steps of Wilson as a meeting place.

Guilfoyle

BOOM! The fireworks light up the sky at the first JMU football game. The colorful display of school spirit could be seen over most of Harrisonburg and Rockingham county.

A NIGHT ON THE TOWN. Late night at the campus center finds it strangely void of the usual rush of students. The campus center was usually the hub of students' activities.

Guilfoyle

J. Williams

A GOOD SIGN. For students returning to JMU, this was usually a welcome sight. The familiar marker made students feel at home.

I Imagine THAT

On the weekends and in their free time, students discovered that there was more to Harrisonburg than just JMU. Restaurants, bars, and parks attracted large numbers of JMU students on a regular basis.

Spanky's, Luigi's and the Little Grill were favored dining spots for JMU students, as was obvious by the college atmosphere in these restaurants. The Boston Beanery, Clayborne's and Pargo's also remained popular places to unwind and enjoy a good meal with friends. The addition of Ruby Tuesday and Red Lobster to the Harrisonburg community was welcomed by students who frequented those franchises in their hometowns. Nightlife was often entertained at Joker's, Tully's and JM's. Many of the bars around town featured nightly themes and drink specials to appeal to students of legal age.

For those who ventured on outdoor trips, Reddish Knob and Skyline Drive were perfect spots to enjoy peaceful sunsets and clear skies. Blue Hole and Union Springs added a splash of excitement to students in search of active fun.

TRANQUILITY. Newman Lake often attracts ducks that add to the peaceful atmosphere of the lake area. The lake provided students with a great place to study or just lounge outside.

STOP & SEE THE FLOWERS. These are only an example of the beautiful landscaping around campus. The University generally invested a great deal in the upkeep of the appearance of the grounds.

Magin

PLAYING AROUND. This student plays hacky-sack with friends. Outdoor activities provided students with a way to relieve stress.

Manzo

Magin

I Magin THAT

Although the world we created in Harrisonburg was comfortable, the outside world could not be neglected. The politics of the United States provided a controversial backdrop to our lives at JMU. As President Bill Clinton unveiled his tax plan, it met with opposition, but did pass through Congress with a very marginal vote. The Clintons' Health Care reforms also underwent very close scrutiny, as Americans were forced to reevaluate their priorities.

A political occurrence that hit close to home was the cuts made in the state budget for Higher Education. Offices around campus felt the tightening of budget constraints and attempted to make cut-backs to deal with the changing times. This was one of the issues in the Virginia gubernatorial race which brought about the end of L. Douglas Wilder's term in Richmond.

As we contemplated the changing world, we came to realize that the policies of today would have direct effects on each our tomorrows. The education we gained at JMU allowed us to build a solid foundation for our future, but it was the spirit we derived from the atmosphere at JMU was what allowed us to let our imaginations soar.

OFF TO CLASS. Backpacks bulging, students head toward upper campus and a day of learning. Beginning classes signified the end of summer vacation.

Manzo

JOIN THE CREW. Members of the University Program Board distribute information concerning their organization on Student Activities Night. It was an opportunity for students to get involved in campus life.

As our first impressions as freshmen turned into our backward glances as seniors, we can see a full picture of our lives at JMU through our

Imprints & Reflections

When we first arrived at James Madison University, many of us were overwhelmed by our new surroundings. Until we established friendships, we were on our own. Feeling a new sense of freedom and change in our lives, we had to create our new identities. We jumped into campus life and got involved with a new and more challenging environment than the comforts we had at home. The vast number of activities and events offered at the University were a great way to get our feet wet and adjust to a new type of lifestyle.

We learned about our opportunities in the future, formed lifelong friendships, embarked on new adventures and faced new challenges. We found our niches in clubs, organizations and sports. The people we met became the ones we would depend on for years to come.

IN WONDER. Friends and neighbors Mat Miller, David Roland and Dave Cooper hang out at the Raggaie Fest. Spending time with friends built some of students' fondest memories.

Student life at JMU meant something different to each of us. Some used the academic atmosphere to its fullest potential, while others found the social activities at the University to be a great chance to meet new friends. Still others found a happy medium between these two facets of student life, and learned to successfully balance studying and socializing.

These were the moments at James Madison University that will remain imprinted in our minds. When we reflect back on our college experiences, we realize how far we have come and imagine what we will encounter in our future.

Editor: Beth Anne Howie
Asst. Editor: Valerie Leighton

BATTER UP! Fast pitches and slow pitches, the Bull Pen batting cages provides them all. It was a great place for students who wanted to sharpen their eyes and strengthen their arms.

FINE DINING. The Joshua Wilton House is a real class act. It's classic architecture, interior and food created an elegant and sophisticated atmosphere fitting for a special occasion.

S. Williams

S. Williams

AN OLD FAVORITE. Students looking for American favorites head downtown to Jess' Quick Lunch. Jess' was famous for its chili dogs and casual atmosphere.

THERE IT IS! Students wanting to dance go downtown to Jokers. This pub and restaurant was the place to go if you were looking for a grinding time.

Now THAT'S ITALIAN. Luigi's provides a taste of everything... pizza, calzone and stromboli. It was a casual hangout with great food and music.

S. Williams

"I like going to Spanky's or the Little Grill because they give that hometown feeling."

-Senior
Kristi Snyder

S. Williams

City Life

Students in the hot spots of the 'Burg

This small town offered a lot more than students saw at first glance. There were great places to go to hang out with a college crowd.

Spanky's, the most popular, drew in many students celebrating birthdays for good food. Luigi's was also a favorite for "the best pizza in town." For food, fun and games a great place to go was not McDonald's, but the Artful Dodger coffee house. Tully's was yet another fun place that attracted students with its daily specials: it provided an occasional jazzy atmosphere with After Five, the campus band that shouldn't be missed. The Little Grill was an excellent place for a different scene: there were poetry readings, bands, open mike nights and a lot of people having good times.

Students were also drawn into the club scene and could go on different nights for different atmospheres to places like Player's, the Joker's and JM's. Senior Rick Armstrong simply says, "JM's is a must on Tuesday nights." It is an especially "cool" place for upperclassmen who like the 21 and over crowd.

Beyond downtown Harrisonburg is Massanutten Resort, where many students got a taste of recreation in skiing. Skyline Drive was also a place for students to "get away from it all." It offered a beautiful landscape, particularly in the autumn, when the leaves changed. Heading south down some rural roads, Reddish Knob suddenly appeared. It displayed a breathtaking view of the sunrise or the sunset (your choice) and was "easily the most romantic spot in the Valley."

When traveling in the 'Burg, students didn't limit the places they visited downtown—they explored and experienced the many other areas in this wonderland called Harrisonburg.

-Hani Hong

S. Williams

Roasted & Toasted

Seniors go a little hog wild

Winter ran unusually long this year, and so it seemed, did the spring semester. But the weather on the last day of April, Reading Day, was so beautiful that no one who hadn't seen it could have believed it snowed four days earlier. As it happened, in accordance with tradition, this was also the day of the senior Pig Roast.

Sponsored by the junior class, the event consisted of the regionally popular band Everything, a truck full of beer, several tables of food and hundreds of students. Godwin field was divided into two sections for the event, one for those over 21 (they had the beer, the band and the hundreds), and the other for minors (they had the food). This arrangement worked well for Julie Laske who said, "I enjoyed seeing my friends, but I would never eat pig."

For the seniors it was a chance to have fun before studying for exams. It was an opportunity to attend one last stress free school function before graduation. With saying "good-bye" still a week away, no one had begun to feel sad, so it was a time to say "Wow! We're done, let's have lunch next week..." And it was a time of reunions, roommates from freshman year together again for the first time in quite awhile. Senior Cynthia Payne said in reflection, "there was a sense of unity, everybody who I'd spent the last four years with was there. I even got to meet a few new people."

Pig roast was more than just a picnic: it was the University's way of saying farewell good luck to graduating seniors, and having one last blast with their JMU friends. Spirits were high and friends were plenty at Pig Roast '93.

-Dan Kaufman

Magin

GROOVIN'. Seniors dance to the music of the popular band Everything. The band was a great addition to the Pig Roast and the dancing was a great way to work off all of the beer and food.

DEAD SOLDIERS. Empty kegs line the back of the beer truck. As the day progressed, Godwin field was covered with the remains of the Pig Roast's kegs.

Magin

"Oh God, I don't even remember being there."

-Senior
Michelle Stough

WHO'S NEXT? The line for drinks seems never ending as everyone pushes to the front. Students grabbed as many cups as they could once they reached the front of the line.

LOUNGING AROUND. Groups on the lawn of Godwin field relax and catch up. They spread out blankets and sprawled out amongst themselves.

Magin

Magin

Magin

STICKING TOGETHER. The Senior Pig Roast is an annual event that provides seniors one last chance to party together before graduation. Hugs among students were common in the joyful atmosphere.

BEAR HUG. This graduate gets a big hug of congratulations. Friends and family were an important part of a special day.

Magin

CELEBRATE. This graduate is prepared with a bottle of champagne. Graduates celebrated their accomplishment before, during and after the ceremony.

MARCHING ON. Students carry flags representing each college into the stadium. This honor went to students with the highest GPA in each college.

Manzo

HOLDING ON. This graduate shares a special moment with a friend. Graduates looked to friends for support as they completed their years at JMU.

Magin

SATISFACTION. Vasha Hunt is all smiles. His feeling of accomplishment was shared by all.

H igh Hopes

Anticipations of Graduation

The graduate, easily defined as a person who receives a degree on completing a course of study. Unfortunately, the feeling of the graduate cannot be so simply described.

On May 9, 1993, students, families and friends gathered in Bridgeforth Stadium to mark the end of a four or five year experience at JMU: graduation. The word itself holds a different meaning for each person. Moving on. Saying goodbye. Responsibility. Not looking back. Emotions of every extreme were expressed: anticipation, stress and excitement.

The weather was sunny with a refreshing breeze early in the day, which eventually faded away. The spotlight was on guest speaker, Governor L. Douglas Wilder. He discussed the importance of education, and how it affected his success in life.

After Wilder finished his speech, diplomas were distributed. The graduation of '93 added a bit of a twist to their ceremony. Students separated into their colleges to receive their diplomas. Various places on campus were designated for each major, such as the Quad, the Convocation Center and Wilson Hall. A 20 minute break was given for students and friends to move to their next location.

The result of this new strategy was a shorter graduation. Graduate Stephanie Bell commented, "Graduation was much faster than I ever expected."

Fast and short, graduation brought forth a rush of emotion as farewells were bade to the students of '93 and hellos were made to JMU's new alumni class.

-Kathy Hawk & Jen Williams

"I really didn't believe any of it, until we threw our hats up in the air."

-Alumnus
Chris Pursell

QUITE AN HONOR. Governor Wilder mingles with students before the ceremony. Wilder inspired graduates with his commencement speech.

THE END RESULT. Finally Taylor Hall is complete. This new building was filled with conference facilities, game rooms, and lounge areas.

PINBALL. Students discover a new hang out in Taylor Hall. This extensive gameroom provided video games, pinball machines and foosball.

J. Williams

J. Williams

Taking Form

JMU builds upon the theme of Improvement

This year's returning students had a surprise waiting for them when they arrived at JMU. Changes were spotted in almost every area of campus. In the Bluestone area, Wampler Hall was in the process of becoming a new residence hall; on main campus, Carrier Library was expanding; and the Warren Campus Center had a new addition completed, Taylor Hall.

With the addition of Wampler Hall, residents no longer had to hike to Wine Price to get to their dorms. Robin Underwood, junior, stated that Wampler Hall gave the appearance of a more connected JMU campus. Wampler Hall was in the Bluestone area with the other Bluestone residence halls.

While Wampler Hall was in its stages of completion, Carrier Library also began its metamorphosis. A new floor was being added to the two story building. According to Usha Koduru, junior, the construction noise right now makes it "hard to find a quiet place to study."

Although Carrier Library just began its changes, Taylor Hall finally was completed. This summer, the construction of Taylor Hall probably "did not make a good first impression on prospective students," remarked Koduru, "but now that it is completed the campus is slowly improving." Taylor Hall created more room for organizations to have their meetings. Underwood stated, "I am impressed. So many organizations needed the space and are now given the facilities."

Of all the changes occurring around campus, all appeared to receive positive feedback from students as JMU continued to grow it continued to improve.

-Jennie Kucinskis

J. Williams

NO MORE ROCKS. The path that extends between Burrus and Keezel is no longer gravel. Smooth cement made way for a safer walk and a cleaner area.

UNDER CONSTRUCTION. Senior Dan Kraose walks past the chaos by Carrier library. Renovation of the library began over the summer to add a third floor.

J. Williams

J. Williams

POOL ANYONE? The billiard room moved to Taylor Hall. Students went there to hang out and relax.

"Every time I come back to JMU, I feel like I've been gone for years."

-Senior
Cassandra Cannova

CLASSIC. Paul Innella climbs on an ancient ruin in Pompeii. Traveling across Europe was a dream come true for many JMU students.

L.A. STORY. Randa Haddad poses in Los Angeles' China Town. Some students chose to spend their vacations traveling across the country.

"It was cool staying in the 'Burg over the summer, even though the classes are long and boring."

-Senior
Angela Hall

VINO! Helen Sexton and Neil Quinlan squish grapes for wine in Little Italy at Busch Gardens. Theme parks were popular one day getaways.

Looking Back

Students reflect on warm summer memories

Summer, the most anticipated vacation of the year, held a different meaning for everyone. All year long students fancitized about basking in the sun on a hot beach in an exotic dreamland or about spending lazy days hanging out with their friends.

For many, summer was just that three months of freedom from books, professors and tests. Students were free from hours spent studying and were finally able to relieve themselves of the stress caused by the school year overload. However, others chose to spend their summer working or giving their time to various volunteer organizations. Some even opted to return to Harrisonburg for the May session in an attempt to get ahead or in an attempt to catch up.

Freshman Anna Marutollo visited a friend in Hong Kong with her family. "We spent four days there touring, shopping and eating. Hong Kong is like New York and Hawaii put together- crowded, but exciting," she said.

For those who chose to spend their time working, summer proved no less hectic than the months spent in school. Sophomore Bill Harlow worked over 45 hours a week at a country club in Fairfax, Virginia. He said, "Even though I did nothing but work this summer, it wasn't that bad. I got to watch Mark Rypien and Bill Clinton golf at the club."

Freshman Kevin Harris devoted much of his time to volunteer work with his church. "I went to a work camp in Kentucky. Our assignment was to rebuild a house for an elderly woman. It's the kind of experience that opened my eyes to the world- it made me realize that there are people out there who don't have half as much as me and who are willing to accept help from others," he said. Whatever summer entailed, the months inevitably passed quickly and students eventually found themselves looking back on what had soon become summer memories.

- Amy Keller

INDEPENDENCE. Friend, Shannon Santoni, Jennifer Howard, Billy Rhodes and Michelle Stough gather on the Mall in D.C. to watch the 4th of July fireworks. Students were some of the thousands of people participating in the festivities.

CARAVAN. Parents help their son move into one of the Village dorms. Move in day was swarmed with students, parents, and packed cars.

GETTING INVOLVED. Student Activities night always draws a crowd of eager students. It informed students of the clubs and organizations offered on campus.

Magin

Magin

"It's always great to see everyone's smiling face again, until classes start and smiles turn to stresses."

-Junior
Jen Williams

Magin

GETTING THE INFO. This new JMU student signs all the necessary registration papers in Eagle Hall. Tables were set up throughout freshman dorms with free grab bags and lists of dorms rules.

UNDER CONSTRUCTION. This student and his father take on the chore of building a loft. Many students purchased loft beds to maximize room space.

HELPING HANDS. Sigma Nu Bill Scudder helps freshmen unload their things into Eagle Hall. Members of campus organizations volunteered to help speed up the moving process.

Magin

Magin

P lunging In

Students jump into the hectic pace of a new year

They're back! Harrisonburg residents prepared themselves for the incoming flood of JMU students as freshmen braved the torrential rain that greeted them the day they moved in. To ease the struggle of moving in, members of campus organizations helped students get all of their belongings into their new homes.

Returning students used the first few days to catch up with what everyone had done over the summer, while freshmen became familiar with the JMU campus and dorm living. Before most of freshmen realized it, they were well settled into college life. The Freshmen Play Fair and Student Activities Night helped to break the ice and get everyone involved in student life.

The first two weeks of classes were marked by rain and heat, which made things pretty miserable for a while. "I sweat through four shirts a day," Leslie Kiddie complained.

"I got caught at 8:30 pm at Anthony-Seeger in the pouring rain and had to walk without an umbrella all the way to the Village," Marce Bruce whined. Students learned quickly to adjust to Harrisonburg's ever changing weather.

Students were also met by the completed Taylor Hall, a campus under construction, and a new Freedom Plan dining option. The changes took some time to get used to, but pretty soon it all fell into place for another year.

-Valerie Leighton

R eality Check

Students head south to find sanity and insanity

Spring Break could not come too fast for the students at JMU. After months of cold weather that were closely associated with exams and papers, students came back from winter break all ready with plans for their spring vacation. By the time March rolled around, people had plans to go on cruises, flights, or long drives to the hottest places that were affordable. The week was looked forward to with high expectations, however, the students were also in for some unexpected surprises.

In the beginning, the students were all smiles as they left for the hot spots. They headed to the usual places like Daytona Beach, Panama City, and the Florida Keys. Others went all out and travelled to Hawaii or Cancun.

Some social-minded individuals went to help people that were affected by the storms in Florida. Tanya Llewellyn said she "enjoyed her trip immensely. It made it all seem so worthwhile that we were helping others. I had a great time while meeting a lot of terrific people."

Of course there were always those students who just went home for the week. They always said that they would use the time to catch up with their schoolwork, but they always seemed to come back further behind than when they left! However, as Jennifer Stockton stated, "It is really nice to go home because you get to relax, sleep late, and spend time with family."

No matter where the students went, they were all affected by the unexpected blizzard. Schools along the east coast closed for a couple of days and JMU was not left out. Of course, an extended vacation was the good part. On the other hand, some students sat in airports and traffic jams trying to find a way home. Some slept in airport lounges while others were more fortunate to stay at home for a few more days.

All in all, everyone had some surprises but they all had experiences that would be remembered for quite awhile.

-Jennifer Beine

Dobson

PREPARE FOR TAKE OFF. Friends are all smiles as they embark on a vacation to Cancun. Students who had a little more cash ventured south of the border.

BEACH BUM. Friends share a laugh while taking in some Florida rays. The beaches of Florida, Mexico and the Bahamas were packed with students from across the country.

HAMMERING AWAY. Lauren Cogswell rebuilds one of the many roofs damaged by Hurricane Andrew. Several campus organizations sent relief groups to help for the week.

BIG PILE. Members of the Campus Crusade for Christ enjoy the warmth and sunshine of the Florida shore. This group of students headed to Florida to aid in the Homestead relief.

BLIZZARD. Students staying in the 'Burg battle the elements. The Storm of the Century extended spring break two extra days and left many travelers stranded.

SING IT BOYS. Sean Fitzgerald, Andy Borgh, Matt Wells, Randy Jefferson and JohnFax take part in Karaoke. Daring students took part in some of the many contests and games held during the week of spring break.

"Florida, Cancun, or just going home, at least it's one week without classes."

-Sophomore
Alex Krechting

LUNCH HOUR. The Hill and the Commons area is always packed during lunchtime. It was especially popular on days when a band played.

Guilfoyle

Casual Campus

Favorite Campus Hangouts

A perfectly arranged schedule allowed students to take some time out between classes to hang with friends, do that put off homework or just chill and get their thoughts together. Off campus students that didn't want to make the trek home and those that lived in dorms alike took advantage of the perfect hangouts on campus.

The sun was shining and there was a cool breeze. With a day like this, most JMU students preferred to spend that hour break between classes in the great outdoors. Luckily, the campus offered several natural spots.

The Quad was a favorite among students. They engaged in several different activities ranging from napping to reading to running wildly across the crisp, cool grass with arms outstretched chasing a flying plastic disc. Students enjoyed the relaxing and beautiful atmosphere that the Quad provided.

The Hill was another popular spot to bask in the sun while waiting in between classes. It offered students a great location to meet friends for lunch and classes. Located right on the Commons, the students on the Hill provided an audience to the many organizations, councils, and bands that came to rally, speak, or perform. And most of all, the hill was the best place on campus to go people-watching. Another favorite scope spot was the patio of the library.

Lunching in the outdoors was another advantage for students who chose to dine outside. The shaded picnic tables outside of Dukes and Mrs. Green's provided the perfect place for lunch with friends or that special someone. Also, the Campus Center Patio gave students with take out from Dukes or Amigo's a place to relax and eat leisurely, especially with the addition of Taylor Hall.

While walking along campus it was easy to notice that students occupied the many outdoor benches. Trees made great back rests as well as shade for those who preferred sitting on the grass.

For more active students, basketball courts as well as volleyball courts were available around campus. Many students also enjoyed the serenity of Newman Lake on a beautiful day.

And, if the rain decided to fall, students usually were able to find a comfy seat in the Campus Center either in the airport lounge, the seating area in the post office or in the Center for Off Campus Living for commuter students. The commuter lounge even had movies every Friday for entertainment. And if a student really wanted to get some work done, the library was always available to finish up some studying.

Overall, students had a number of places to spend some time relaxing, and everyone found that one favorite spot.

-Hani Hong

Manzo

CATCHING RAYS. Students soak up the sun by Newman Lake. The Lakeside area was a popular place to sunbathe.

"If Dukes isn't the best place to see all your friends, I don't know what is."

-Senior
Tina Curry

SOLITUDE. A lone student finds peace under a tree on the Quad. Students often took advantage of a sunny day to study outside on the Quad.

AMAZING GRACE. This student demonstrates his quick smooth moves while playing a game of frisbee. The Quad was a great place for students to let loose and relax after an agonizing day.

Shank

Simpson

Magin

SOCIALIZING. Students hang out on the Ped Plaza between classes. Friends often met each other by their favorite bench.

"Greek Week is the best way a the fraternities and sororities can be as one."

-Junior Ed Messick

Go Greek!

WE WON! Joe Ugialoro congratulates Wendy Garpow on a job well done. Winning a Greek Week game always brought a smile to the face.

Magin

A week of competitions & challenges

"Greek week is the culmination of all the years' events and each organizations individual activities. This week provided Greeks with the chance to strengthen the system by setting aside their individual plans in order to strengthen the Greek system as a whole," said junior Clay Robblee of Sigma Nu.

Greek Week 1993 provided Greeks with the chance to compete against each other to see who belonged to the best fraternity and sorority. Sponsored by the Order of Omega, the week-long party gave students the chance to relax while at the same time raise money to be donated to the Make A Wish Foundation.

Activities such as tricycle races, basketball games, and boat races drew large audiences of both Greeks and non-Greeks. Other activities included Greek Sing, food eating contests, and the Greek progressive happy hour. "Because the week attracts alumni it gives us a great chance to interact with past members of Lambda Chi Alpha," said Andy Battiata.

Anne Kunkle of Delta Gamma favored Greek Sing over the other various activities. "Greek Sing is best because it is not just a few members of the sorority or fraternity participating, but rather the entire house. We play loud music, sing to the audience, dress alike and choreograph a dance," she said.

Another of the week's highlights was the tricycle race. "The tricycle race was definitely the best part because it brought out the friendly competitiveness between the sororities and fraternities," Christian Erickson of Lambda Chi Alpha said.

The majority of the greeks felt that the best thing about Greek Week is spirit and unity sparked by the competitions. "Greek Week is the only time of the whole year that I venture into any of the other houses to see what kind of things the other fraternities are doing," said Andrew DeFilippis of Lambda Chi Alpha. Michelle Deck of Sigma Kappa said, "The more we hang out at a party together, the better everyone looks." Brett Preacher of Lambda Chi Alpha added, "You do not get a bad rep without having a good time."

Although the primary purpose of Greek Week was to have fun while raising money for a worthy cause, many Greeks believe that unity is the essence of the week. John Ogando of Alpha Chi Rho said, "Greek Week symbolizes the common bond and community feeling shared by Greekers everywhere."

-Amy Keller & Jen Sinclair

HOLD ON! Sigma Nu's Rob Lorkiewicz puts forth his best to win at tug-of-war. This was one of the most popular games.

HEADS UP! This competitor jumps high for a powerful spike. Volleyball was always a popular and exciting competition during Greek Week.

Magin

Magin

Magin

Magin

SPIN AROUND. Onlookers watch as two brothers spin around in the mud. The Dizzy Lizzy was one of the messier events of Greek Week.

TEAMWORK! Alpha Sigma Tau sisters pull together with strength and determination to win the infamous tug-of-war. A win would also save them from getting too dirty.

Social Scene

Parties were a key ingredient for college life

Whenever students got a chance to blow off some steam from the rigors of college life, the question arose: To party or not to party? Any excuse worked for most students. In fact, no excuse or no planning at all was sometimes the best way to have a "social".

Parties at JMU came in many different forms. Some were thrown by the fraternities and sororities, while others were held in off campus apartments or houses. Even dorm residents managed to have limited parties from time to time. Another difference in the types of parties at JMU was the size. Some parties were just a few friends getting together, while other parties involved dozens of kegs and hundreds of people. Whether spontaneous or planned, Greek or private, large or small, parties were the relaxation of choice among JMU students.

Keg parties were making a comeback at JMU. After the new keg laws were passed last year, there was a decline in area keg parties. However, students found other ways to party. As Bill Scharfenberg put it, "Whether we have kegs or not, we are still going to party and we are still going to get beer. The kegs just make it easier to play 'beer pong'".

Although most JMU parties involved alcohol, drinking was not the only reason to party. As senior Kevin Peak said, "I like to go to different parties to meet people and have fun." There were hundreds of reasons to party, but the quest for fun and relaxation was at the heart of every party. Without parties, life at JMU would have lacked a key ingredient.

-Mike Wilson

FOOD & FUN. These Students chow on shrimp and drink some beer, while enjoying each others company. When it came down to it there were few necessities for having fun.

S. Williams

S. Williams

HANGIN' OUT. These friends stay in their room and create a party of their own. Friends knew they didn't have to look far to find a good time.

SIMPLY MELLOW. These guys kick back and take it easy in their apartment. Some students preferred a relaxed party atmosphere.

COMPETITION. Steve Williams aims for the beer pong cup at a party in Olde Mill. Beer pong was one of students' favorite drinking games.

Magin

"Where else can you go and party with the President of the University?"

-Sophomore
Jason Williams

CHEERS! Mark Ashe and Brian Correia enjoy the festivities of Homecoming weekend. Tailgating was a great way to socialize with the alumni before the game.

Leighton

Magin

"Homecoming brings old and current students together for one great party."

-Junior
Meg Murray

H appy Returns

Homecoming...Where Past and Present Meet

The 1993 Homecoming was really something to celebrate. With the completion of Taylor Hall, the new addition to the campus center, a grand opening was set on Thursday which began that long awaited weekend.

As the hordes of people entered JMU on Friday night, the festivities began in X-Lot. The "Celebrate Me Home" parade marched through JMU, straight into the pep rally on Hanson Field. On Saturday, people swarmed in and joined the tailgates and picnics where students welcomed their alumni with open arms. Accompanied by live entertainment, the Godwin Field Festival lasted all day. The Contemporary Gospel Singers, the Step Show, children's entertainer Rick Hill, comedians, musicians and the JMU Marching Royal Dukes all took part in the activities before and after the game.

At the game, the Dukes stomped Delaware for an awesome Homecoming victory. The festivities picked up again after the game. Godwin Field was crowded with comedians, country music and an international student group performance. The entertainment did not stop there though: JMU was proud to present James Brown, the "Godfather of Soul".

As the celebration went on into the night, students packed their rooms with returning friends who had joined the world of alumni. Senior Kim Knight said, "I enjoyed having seven other people in my room, it let me know that even if I did not see them [friends] during the days activities, that I would be assured of seeing them at night."

The weekend was a great success and the days flew by in the hustle. Excitement fell to a low when it was time to say goodbye again; but the memories kept spirits high and old friendships were rekindled once more.

-Jen Williams

STEP IT UP. The Step Show is a great event for black fraternities and sororities to show off their talent. The Step Show is a part of the tradition of the Homecoming events.

Magin

SOUL TIME. James Brown, "The Godfather of Soul" entertains the audience at the Convocation Center. James Brown is an added attraction to the weekend.

WAY TO GO. Two of the JMU Dukes congratulate each other after a terrific play. The Homecoming game was a success for JMU.

Simpson

Guilfoyle

GO JMU! The cheerleaders prepare for one of their stunts at the bonfire. They got everyone psyched for the big game.

F or a Lifetime

Friendships strengthen through the years

From moving in freshman year to graduation a quick four years later, friends played a key role in the everyday lives of students. With the fun and responsibility of a lifestyle entirely unrestricted by parents, students' friends provided an immediate support system in times of crisis. They became a shoulder to cry on and a companion with whom they could talk.

"The best part of having a good friend is being able to tell them anything that is on your mind and sharing your secrets with each other," said Anna Marutollo.

For freshmen, moving away from home meant creating new friendships — friendships that would last a lifetime. At the same time, seniors looking forward to moving out on their own looked back to the beginnings of friendships that had proven invaluable.

"When I look back on my years in college, my friends will be the things I remember most," commented junior Megan Sturges. "After all, it was my friends that made my experiences so memoable."

While common experiences sparked friendships, often the good times spent engaged in everyday, familiar activities sealed the relationships. Late night study sessions, parties, football games, and aerobics classes provided great memories of the beginnings of still growing friendships.

-Jen Sinclair

"No matter what happens at JMU, you know you have your friends to lean on."

-Senior
Brian Zarah

Manzo

CLOWNING AROUND. Collen Foster, Hampton Bargatze and Bob Hamilton horse around on the Hill. Students found their best friends were those we could always act a little silly around.

JUST CHILLING! Rob Smart, Dwight Robinson, Billy Johnson and DeVindri Arnold hang out in front of D-Hall. Known to students as the commons area, this was a popular place to meet up with friends between classes and before meals.

SHARING A LAUGH. Junior Liz Clifford and senior Blair Wilson sit and enjoy one another's company before heading off to class. Students often met in between classes to hang out, catch up and pass the time.

Manzo

Manzo

Manzo

Magin

GROOVING. Friends relax to gether and listen to the sounds of the Reggae festival held on Godwin Field. Music was a common interest many friends shared

JUST FRIENDS? Seniors Brenna Creamer and Seth Weinberg rest on the wall next to Keezel. Students frequently proved it was possible to have friends of the opposite sex.

PRECISION. The JMU drumline takes centerfield. The talented drumline strove for perfection

FANATIC. Junior Katie Goodman expresses her excitement during a football game. Band members were loyal football fans.

Guilfoyle

Magin

Guilfoyle

STRIKE A POSE. Freshman Becky Richardson dances with the colorguard during a half time performance. Dancing and flag twirling added visual elements to the shows.

PERFORMANCE. Senior Brian Frazier is a symbol of pride. Students showed their pride to be a member of the marching band.

Guilfoyle

Magin

ON YOUR FEET! Drum major Cap Pazdera gets the fans to cheer. The band was a big part of the crowd's participation during football games.

SHOW TIME. Tuba players perform during half time. Tuba players were famous for their antics.

Guilfoyle

Pure Talent

Marching Royal Dukes thrill crowds at halftime

"It is just like one big happy family."

-Junior
Jennifer Stockton

While many football fans would expect to make a bee line for the concession stand at half time, at JMU, the fans remained in their seats in anticipation of the upcoming entertainment. The Marching Royal Dukes performed at half time for each football game and dazzled crowds with their size, skill, and sound.

The 350 member band, lead by Dr. Pat Rooney, achieved high quality performances through a lot of hard work and dedication. The hard work did not go unnoticed. At the end of its shows, the band often received standing ovations and demands for encore performances. This kind of positive response from members of the crowd provided them with the satisfaction that made all of their time and efforts worthwhile.

Other sources of satisfaction for the members of the band were the friends made and the memories shared. Friendship was one of the reasons students returned to the band year after year. Friendships formed through the band were especially important for freshmen who met some of their first friends at JMU through the band.

A highlight of the marching season was a trip to William and Mary to support the football team during the game. Also, the band hosted the Parade of Champions, a high school band competition held yearly. The competition was held in efforts to attract prospective high school students to JMU and the marching band.

As always, the band had a successful season and remained "Virginia's finest."

-Beth Anne Howie

H ome-Makers

Personal touches create homey atmospheres

Home, the place we grew up with Mom, Dad, brothers, and sisters. Most of us were spoiled by the luxuries that home provided. We had home cooked meals, large bedrooms, plenty of closet space, and privacy. The one thing that most people lacked was their freedom to come and go as they pleased. Then came college and the freedom of living away from that place we called home. We found new homes and new friends.

Most freshmen were shocked by the amount of living space that was provided, and then the extra jolt of sharing that cubby hole with someone else. The change in atmosphere was difficult and sometimes people got homesick. After some time of living at school though, students adopted a new home away from home.

As the years went on, students found themselves new abodes on and off campus. The convenience of on campus living was great for some, but others wanted to try out apartment living or sharing a house with friends. On campus students preferred the convenience of being next to classes and the rest of campus life. The added incentive of living off campus was privacy. Cooking was often the biggest challenge.

The students all managed to find their niche, a new home that was not quite like Mom and Dad's, but for some that was a plus. Students got out on their own and most grew to love their humble abodes.

-Valerie Leighton

Manzo

INVITATION. Students in freshmen residence halls tried various methods to make friends. This particular suite in Huffman Hall was raided by countless visitors.

FOOD FROM HOME. Kristen Balint and Jennifer Fordstuff their mouths with bagels. Time at home was rare so students liked to sit back and relax when they could.

"It's a good thing I am short because the bathrooms here (in Weaver) were made for smurfs."

-Freshman
Leslie Kiddie

GAZING OUT. These roommates yell out to some friends from their balcony. Hunters Ridge was one of the apartment complexes that was popular with students and provided balconies.

Magin

Manzo

Manzo

HAPPY DREAMS. Todd Fraley enjoys much needed sleep. Daytime naps were very popular among college students.

FRATERNITY LIVING. South Main Street provides homes for many students. Tau Kappa Epsilon was one of several fraternity houses that was located on Main Street.

WAVE! Students and parents stand up and cheer by doing the wave at the football game. The wave was a favorite part of the football game.

SMOOCH! A student shares a tender moment with her younger sister. Parents Weekend was a time for students to spend with their siblings.

Magin

Magin

F amily Ties

Families spend quality time over Parents Weekend

"Parents Weekend is so popular that Harrisonburg's population doubles for three days."

-Junior
Melissa Barry

Parents from all over got into their cars and descended upon Harrisonburg and JMU. The campus crawled with families and the bookstore was jammed with people buying sweatshirts and other JMU paraphernalia. The flowers on the campus were at their peak and the football game was standing room only. Ahhhh- Parents Weekend.

Some students found this too much to handle. The crowds sent many running. Senior Lee Barba summed it best by saying, "I left town, that's too many parents for me!"

Most students saw it as the ultimate weekend to be spoiled. "My parents took me shopping and out to dinner. It was great!" said junior Kelly McGuire.

Junior Tracy Deck agreed. "My dad took me out to dinner at Shoney's. He also went out with my sister, who is a senior, to JM's to experience college party life."

It was an interesting weekend made up of diverse experiences. While many students didn't stick around, others enjoyed showing their parents around JMU and wiped away a tear or two when Mom and Dad left.

-Jen Williams

SHINING STUDENTS. Duke Dog congratulates the new Mr. and Ms. Madison. Shawn Brown and Ellen Kirby were crowned at the football game.

LOOKING ON. A proud father watches the football game. Many parents showed their pride for their sons and daughters this weekend.

Magin

Magin

Magin

CATCHING UP. Father and son chat while watching the game. Parents' Weekend gave families a chance to relax and catch up on each others' lives.

"Even though I didn't always know all of the music, going to see new bands was a cool way to open my ears to new sounds."

-Junior
Heidi Targee

HIGH NOTE. Sissy Edwards sings with Fried Moose at Jokers. A variety of local bands made Jokers a favorite among students.

PUMPING UP THE VOLUME. Craig Honeycutt of Everything gets the crowd involved. Bands like Everything played for free at campus events.

Guilfoyle

Simpson

Magin

SOUL SISTERS. Mary Maccue and fellow band member of Blast Off Country Style perform at Joker's. Joker's had a lineup of the hottest bands throughout the year.

JAMMIN'. Chihuahua members Jeff Gothelf and Mark Gratton perform on the patio. The UPB sponsored student bands to play on the patio in the fall and spring.

Simpson

Simpson

CHOPS. Pete Tuerck of the band Fried Moose drums on the Commons. Many students spent their afternoons on the Hill listening to music.

Local Sounds

Tuning into student bands

Although it was not exactly the Mowtown of the recording industry, Harrisonburg did turn out quite a few good local bands. Whether it was at J.M.'s or during lunchtime on the Commons, these bands made life at JMU a little more interesting.

Many bands believed in their potential yet remained wary of pursuing music as a career. Dave Sickmen, a guitar player in Pie Boy, aimed to go as far as the group could go but admitted that "career was a scary word." Drummer Jason Alley and guitarists, D.J. Williams and Ward Harrison made up the rest of the band which defined its music as "acid pop." Pie Boy relied equally on each member for vocals and emphasized that their music catalog was comprised of "mostly originals." Trying not to oversaturate the Harrisonburg scene, Pie Boy scheduled dates outside JMU, most notably Blacksburg.

Fried Moose created music as provocative and catchy as its name implied. Junior Rob Bullington described their songs as a distinctive sound heavily influenced by such diverse musicians as Paul Simon, Pink Floyd, and Eric Clapton, and defined their current status in the music industry as "jamming with potential." The unique sound of Fried Moose was attributed to their large ensemble of musicians, which included a drummer, two guitarists, and a saxophonist. Aside from Harrisonburg, Fried Moose also gained valuable experience from its gigs in Charlottesville.

Other ever-popular bands included Everything, BS&M, and Full Stop. They too were regular performers at lunchtime on the Commons or on Thursday nights at J.M.'s.

-Brian Tetro

DUSK. The sunsets are incredible around the Valley. Students often traveled all the way to Reddish Knob in order to witness the sunset.

Valley Wonders

"Nothing can compare to the Shenandoah Valley in the Fall.

-Senior
Missy Casey

Getaways of the Shenandoah Valley

Weekends were the major focus of most JMU students. But what did they do when the partying got old and the beer sludge began to grow mold? Harrisonburg and the surrounding area had great opportunities for weekend excursions.

Those looking to get away for just a couple hours enjoyed the scenery of Skyline Drive, the awe-inspiring view of Reddish Knob, the quizzical structures of Natural Chimneys, the serenity of Rawley Springs, the magnificent caverns of the area or just cruising the picturesque back roads. When the weather got colder and the snow began to accumulate, Massanutten was a great place to ski. It was also quite inexpensive for students since they offered special deals.

If a weekend getaway was what students wanted, there were many great places in the area to go camping. Hone Quarry in the George Washington Forest was a popular place for a camping rendezvous. The Forest was also an opportune place for hiking up mountains, bike riding or just a lazy afternoon of outdoor fun.

When JMU students were asked why they enjoyed getaways, most said that they were great for relieving stress and catching up with friends. Junior Heidi Tangee said she enjoyed going to Rawley Springs because it removed me from the hustle and bustle of campus life; yet it was close enough to be able to enjoy frequently."

Skyline Drive, which is east of JMU on Route 33, was wonderful for sightseeing. When the foliage changed the Shenandoah Valley was a beautiful sight. Reddish Knob, south of campus down Route 42, was a great spot to watch the setting sun. Natural Chimneys are in the Bridgewater area, they were rock formations that have eroded and looked like huge fireplaces and chimneys in the rock. Rawley Springs was great for water fun. Crossing the creek on stepping stones, wading and just relaxing to the babble of the brook enhanced this area's pleasantness. The area's many caverns included Shenandoah Caverns, Endless Caverns and the popular Luray Caverns. These could all be visited for a small fee, yet the magnificent structures were well worth it.

Harrisonburg, even though it is set in a much less urban setting than most of us were used to, definitely had its share of cool things to do. Students simply had to be creative and get back to nature.

-Jennifer Williams

CLIFFHANGER. These students enjoy the view from a scenic overlook on Skyline Drive. Groups often gathered up for a trip away from the stress of classes.

BREATHTAKING. Jay Henry takes a break along the mountains of the Shenandoah Valley. The view was spectacular at the peaks of the mountains.

Humke

Humke

GERONIMO. Students take a dive at Blue Hole. It was a favorite refreshing spot.

REFRESHING SWIM. Some students enjoy the cool water at Blue Hole. This was a great place where students went when the weather was warm.

I neevitable Task

Cracking open the books

The years spent at college were the most treasured for the majority of students. College students had so many activities and so little time to do everything. Studying seemed to be the hardest activity to fit into schedules. Balancing time in order to study was the one part of college that was most important, yet hardest to accomplish. Often times students had to remind themselves that they were at school to earn a degree. Classes were so overwhelming and stress was a key factor in every students' life.

The library was a very popular place to be before exams, and especially on Sunday afternoons. The weekends always went by so fast though and most students found that they did not accomplish everything that was necessary.

Cramming for time and exams was inevitable. Priorities were set and students worked their schedules to suit their needs. "Studying makes me so tired that I find it hard to stay awake and keep my concentration. Sometimes I find that studying with a group of friends helps out a lot," said Susan Toewe. As time went on, students found a way that satisfied their time and study needs. Students remembered why they were in college and they strived for that degree that was always so close.

-Valerie Leighton

J. Williams

I LOVE THIS BOOK! Freshman Cole Balland is one of few students who enjoys reading textbooks. Reading was a task which students often fell behind in.

GETTING COMFY. Sophomore Dyan Crosswell settles himself perfectly on the couch before picking up a book. To stay motivated many found a pleasurable atmosphere helped.

J. Williams

J. Williams

"Study-study-study-take a break-and then study some more!"

-Junior
Heidi Targee

GETTING INTO IT. Brad Witzel and Matt Zuolenski read intensely on the steps to the back of the library. Students found places to catch up with work on campus.

J. Williams

PEACEFUL. Freshman Michelle Clemens discovers the Quad is a refreshing place to do homework. The Quad was a favorite study spot for many.

J. Williams

STUDYTIME! Freshman Sherri Hodge takes time out to study in a corner of Carrier Library. It was a popular place for everyone to get in some last minute studying.

STANDING OUT. Angela Coward sports her poet shirt. These shirts went with jeans, pants or skirts.

HATS OFF. Mike Kidd wears a fishing hat with a variety of lures. Hats and caps were a great idea for a bad hair day.

S. Simpson

S. Simpson

Simpson

ACCESSORIZING. A shopper looks at some rings and necklaces. Many vendors set up shop on the patio which made shopping more convenient for students.

S. Simpson

TIED UP. Drew van Esselstyn is dressed to impress for an interview with Dr. Carrier. Students wore their best for interviews.

En Vogue

Fashionable News

A sudden uproar of laughter fills the air as you look over the edge of your newspaper. It's the kids going through your JMU yearbook, and they're snickering at the humorous fashions of the early '90's—the memorable college years of your life.

The trends of today may be amusing to the next generation, but the typical JMU student carved an individual style that reflected the diversity of the student body. With several different attitudes came several different styles. Students created certain looks that expressed their personalities and distinguished their characters.

The general look included earth tones, unlike the bright colors of yesteryear, and a more natural look. Comfortable clothes were an essential—sweatshirts and baggy pants were the norm. Grunge was a popular choice among the students as well as clogs and platform shoes that gave students an extra inch or so. Anything hooded was a favorite and students really turned towards casual wear.

As always, a crisp, classy look came with the ever-popular blazer. Polos, oxfords and henleys were worn by some students while others that were more traditional chose penny loafers, wingtips and camp moccasins.

Accessories were a major part of style, and students seldom lacked in this department. Hats and caps were common, some making more of a statement than others. Jewelry was popular for both men and women on campus: rings, earrings, nose rings, necklaces and beads were not unusual. Even glasses, whether they were prescription, sunglasses, or just for fun, completed a certain look for some. Shoes leaned towards a more masculine look. Combat boots, Doc Martens, Berkenstocks and sandals were popular. Ties were a common accessory for men, and some women, to express themselves.

Most students varied from the norm to show off their uniqueness in many different ways. A campus as diverse as the one here at JMU generated the different looks that showed off students' individuality.

So, next time you laugh at the way your parents dressed, don't forget how they dressed you in ridiculous costumes as a kid—and return the favor to your own offspring.

-Hani Hong

"All you have to remember to look good is that plaid and stripes do not match"

-Senior
Marina Ospina

S. Simpson

S. Simpson

LOUNGING. A student sits outside the library wearing a wrap around skirt. These skirts with long shirts were very popular.

STEPPING OUT. These three students walk along in the very popular Berkenstock shoes. these shoes were very comfortable for a lot of walking.

MOTIVATION. Sreejit Pillai concentrates while doing chest presses in the Wellness center. Different Cybex machines were throughout the gym to appeal to all students.

Magin

BUST A MOVE. Students are found on the basketball courts at all times of the day. Running up and down the court was quite a workout.

RUNNING IN CIRCLES. Members of the men's JMU swim team make their rounds around the track. Aerobic training proved helpful in every sport.

Fitness has always been important to me. It has given me discipline and focus.

-Freshman
Dave Despirito

Magin

Work It Out

Breaking Out Into Fitness

Fitness was popular at JMU for various reasons: health, relaxation, and body conditioning. JMU students actively took part in the fitness craze by running around campus, pumping in the gym, or working out on the stairmaster in one of the fitness centers. The University accommodated students' fitness needs by offering programs and places to work out on campus.

A popular place to exercise was the Wellness Center. This center featured aerobic equipment as well as Cybex strength equipment. Despite its advantages, the small size of the center was a problem for some students. Amy Burns said, "The Wellness Center has nice equipment, but it is too small and always crowded."

Other options included the Godwin weight room. It was equipped with free weights and Universal equipment. Hillside and Logan Fitness Centers provided the necessary equipment for an aerobic workout: Lifecycles, Stairmasters, Rowers and other fitness machines. They also featured Universal equipment.

Aerobic classes and swimming provided cardiovascular workouts as well as step aerobics, sculpt and stretch classes and abdominal workouts were offered throughout the week at various times in the Hillside Fitness Center and Godwin Hall. Hours for recreational swim were available each day of the week.

Some students preferred to workout off campus. Gyms located in Harrisonburg, Iron World and Women's Fitness, were two options. Simply running or walking satisfied other fitness urges. No matter the method, students found their own way of working things out.

-Kathy Hughes

Magin

Humke

Magin

SPIKE. A group of friends play volleyball in the Village. Volleyball was a sport popular for many.

Leighton

PACKING UP. Darrick Vanatta, Nathan Wiggins and Sonya Sterbenz load up their belongings the morning after. They went to George Washington Forest in West Virginia to go camping.

H it the Road

Embarking on the adventures of a roadtrip

"I road tripped to Tech to see my brother for some sibling beer chugging."

-Senior
Fran Czaja

Ah....the road trip. It was the ultimate catharsis for wearied JMU students seeking spontaneous excitement over campus restlessness. For many, road trips typically conjured images of a young Jack Nicholson searching for spiritual fulfillment as he trekked across the country on his Harley Davidson in Easy Rider. However, most JMU students believed that the best road trips were those that were loosely planned and low on ambition.

Students at JMU also felt that the importance of a road trip was not your destination, but the fun you had in reaching it. For this reason, many students were satisfied to travel in Virginia, usually to visit other colleges where their hometown friends attended school.

Moira Leary, a junior English and mass communication major remembers a particular ride that grew out of a longing to visit her friends. "We were hangin' out late one night early in the semester and were looking for something to do. We had eaten a lot of sugar and were very high-strung. So, we spontaneously hopped in the car and headed for UVA, at 1:00 am. I met my friends, we chatted, and then we came back at 5:00 am, all in the same night."

For other students, motivation for a road trip may simply have stemmed from a desire to add to their dynamic collegiate experience at JMU. Cindy Schimtt, a junior human communication major, related. "In all honesty, I had not been on a road trip until my junior year. However, there was more to the college experience than grades and I did not want to miss out on some of the fun. Even though I lost sleep and study time, I would never change my decision to see Depeche Mode and Aerosmith at the Hampton Coliseum within three days."

Road trips, the college equivalent of the week-end getaway, inspired JMU students to stake their claims across the east coast.

-Brian Tetro

HUDDLE UP. Robin Underwood, Jen Stimpson and Elizabeth Roach gather outside the Pi Kappa Phi house at Tech. The Delta Gamma sisters went to Tech for the Sud Flood bash that was held annually.

REUNION. Kathy Hawk, Kristen Balint and friends wrap arms in a sentimental moment. They were happy to visit their friends at William & Mary.

Shackelford

WHAT HORSES? Junior Thomas Flaherty talks to a friend at the Foxfield races in Charlottesville. The races were an annual road trip for many students.

SENT PACKING. On her way to the car, senior Dana Bushrod is more than ready for her roadtrip to D.C.

HI-HO. HI-HO. HI-HO. Brian Tetro and a friend help rebuild a house damaged by Hurricane Andrew in Florida. CCM and Campus Crusade sent relief groups over the summer.

"Service is not a duty or a chore; it is a way of life."

-Senior
Paula Pasicvnyk

Courtesy of CCM

WILDLIFE WATCHING. A member of the National Wildlife Foundation exhibits a falcon on the Commons. The event was sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega.

Courtesy of CSL

THE HUNT IS ON. This JMU student helps a little boy discover Easter eggs. Members of CCM helped with an Easter Egg hunt for local kids on the Quad.

DONATIONS. Members of Delta Sigma Theta collect donations for flood relief on the Commons. Many organizations participated in fund raising on the commons.

Courtesy of CCM

Magn

O Outreach

Students extend time to the Harrisonburg community

There were many opportunities for students to participate in service work both on campus and in the Harrisonburg community. Two large service organizations on campus were Alpha Phi Omega (APO) and the Center for Service Learning (CSL). APO was a co-ed service fraternity, and CSL was a voluntary service organization comprised of students who wished to offer their services to the Harrisonburg community. Greek sororities and fraternities were also committed to community service.

Alpha Phi Omega, whose three cardinal principles are friendship, leadership, and service, completes service in four areas: the nation, the community, the campus, and the fraternity. Various service projects included Adopt-a-Highway (cleaning up the highway), the SPCA (visiting the Harrisonburg animal shelter to walk and play with the animals), and the Salvation Army (visiting a nearby elementary school to play with the kids after school). Other projects were Harrison House and ARC (both of which entail visiting mentally retarded citizens for dances or crafts) and Bridgewater Home (visiting the elderly and assisting those in wheelchairs to church service). APO also worked to help the field hockey and gymnastic teams with various home meets.

The Center for Service Learning offered another opportunity to get involved with the community. The range of areas that were covered by CSL included public schools, youth services, adult services, aging services, special care, office support, hunger and housing, community health, environment, and special and international projects. Information sessions were held for those interested in volunteering. Once individuals decided where they wanted to help, they were placed accordingly.

The fraternities and sororities were other organizations involved with respective philanthropies. Their service projects included Adopt-a-Highway, Special Olympics, American Cancer Society, Easter Seals, Mercy House, and blood drives.

Service was a great way to help the JMU and Harrisonburg communities prosper. Students devoted their time and energy to others and benefited from the satisfaction of making a difference in someone else's life.

-Stacey Reilly
Valerie Leighton

CROSS MY HEART. Senior Ben Davis shows off his cross tattoo. Most students were proud to display their tattoos to friends and other people.

Magnin

SEUSS ON THE LOOSE. A student bears Dr. Seuss on his ankle. Cartoon characters were popular tattoo motifs.

Humke

Humke

S. Williams

BONDED. These fraternity brothers proudly show their loyalty to their chapter. Many Greek students proclaim their devotion to their organization in this way.

60 Tattoos

COOL RIDER. Junior Jeff Gothelf promotes the image of the motorcycle scene. Tattoos often served as additional fashion accessories, completing the look.

Shackelford

EXPOSED. Kristen Netherland's tattoo is easily seen. Some students liked to display their tattoos while others preferred more discrete places.

Simpson

"No one believes that I have Elvis tattooed on my butt."

-Senior
George Pettit

M arked For Life

Tattoos Expressed the Individuality of Students

"Not her, she'd never do that" and "he's just not the type."

These thoughts probably ran through your mind when you heard a friend had a tattoo. They weren't just for bikers anymore. It was surprising to discover the number of students who bore permanent works of art on various parts of their bodies.

The reasons for getting them were as varied as the tattoos themselves. Junior Kelly McGuire said she got a tattoo of a butterfly for no particular reason. "I just decided I wanted one."

"I thought it would be what people least expected of me," said junior Colleen Crowley of her shamrock tattoo.

Other students weren't quite so willing to go under the needle. Junior Katie O'Neill said, "I'm surprised so many of my friends have gotten them, but I don't think I ever would." Junior Brian Flamm agreed, "I'd never get one."

The huge popularity of tattoos on campus made everyone think twice before deciding if someone was or wasn't the type for a tattoo.

-Jen Williams

OUTDOOR DINING. Friends eat outside of P.C. Dukes. Students enjoy eating on the picnic tables in warm weather.

Hawk

"It looks like chicken, it tastes like chicken, but we know its turkey."

-Junior
Tracy Brown

Cuisines

Dining decisions & dilemmas

The dilemmas one can have over food is amazing! What to eat? Where to eat? Should I order or should I cook? These questions bounced in the minds of students who lived on and off campus. With several dining options on campus, the restaurants in town, and the student's own kitchens, everyone faced tough decisions.

JMU provided several dining plans for students, as well as a variety of places to eat. Beginning in the fall semester students were able to purchase the new Freedom Plan. This plan allowed one to eat in Gibbons Dining Hall at any time of the day as many times as he or she wished. "The Freedom Plan is a really good idea. If I just need a snack, I'll grab something in between classes," commented freshman Tommy Dunn. The regular 20 meal plan was still available along with 14, 7, and 5 meal plans.

There were several dining options offered on campus. For those who wanted light and healthy food, there was Mrs. Green's salad bar. Amigo's and Mama Mia's offered a foreign flair. The fast food atmosphere was recreated in P.C. Dukes. The Steak House provided fine dining, Nature's Bounty offered vegetarian entrees, and American favorites were found in American Tour. D-hall provided a variety of choices. "Having different dining options gives variety and prevents boredom," remarked junior Steve Antoine.

Those who lived off campus had the luxury of their own kitchens, although some saw it as a hassle. Who wanted to cook dinner after studying, exercising, or working? Senior Christine Schilling replied, "Cooking has its ups and downs, but at least you always get to eat what you want." There were students who enjoyed cooking, but there were those who would just grab the cereal box for dinner.

If all else failed, students could dine out or order food. "I would order out every night if I could afford it, but for now it is a nice treat," commented Kristen Balint. Throughout the city of Harrisonburg there were several restaurants to choose from: Clayborne's, Spanky's, Pargo's and more. Delivery was always a convenient option. Students could order pizza, chinese, or sandwiches to satisfy their hunger.

Whoever thought there could be so many decisions when it came to food. The options students had to select from were great. The decision inevitably would be determined by the desire to cook or not to cook and the appetite at hand.

-Kathy Hawk

Manzo

DECISIONS. Morris Lumpkin searches his refrigerator for dinner. Most students living off-campus chose dinners which were easy to fix.

Simpson

BULLS EYE. Marina Ospina enjoys cooking dinner with some barbecue sauce to spice up her food. Students living off-campus enjoyed the freedom to eat whatever they pleased.

EMPTY SHELVES. There's not too much to choose from here. Students juggling a tight budget often found their cupboards bare.

Manzo

Simpson

Simpson

FAST FEAST BUFFET. Justin Lenhard piles on the salad before hitting the pizza. Despite tight budgets, a trip to Mr. Gatti's was always in order.

CRAB FEST. Alex Monteith, Julie Reel and Enim Schaller enjoy a messy meal. Crabs were a rare treat that students enjoyed with a group of friends.

SHARING TIME. This couple enjoys talking on campus. Many couples shared time together on campus.

SMOOCH. Junior Elizabeth Baile gives her boyfriend who goes to Hampden Sydney a kiss. Many students date people from other schools.

Gust

S

tarry-Eyed

Rendezvous Around Campus

Dating-it's that game where boy meets girl, eyes sparkle, phone numbers are exchanged and a "date" is set. Dating in high school presented a different situation than experienced in college.

Movies, dinner, high school dances and an occasional get together were the main activities that couples enjoyed in high school. Weekend plans were usually made with a steady boyfriend or girlfriend.

On the other hand, college dating was much less structured. Students usually met through classes and clubs but did not "hook up" until a social engagement brought the students together. Most dating in college revolved around meeting someone at a party, having a good time and then hoping that you would hear from them again. Of course, there were some that found one person to date exclusively. For others, college seemed more of a time for meeting numerous people than being committed to one person.

For those students who dated, the Valley provided several romantic spots in the mountains. There were some students who preferred a little peace and quiet. "I preferred walking around the park where it was quiet or somewhere like the mountains. The ideal place for a date would be at Orkney springs which is about ten miles away from JMU," said freshman Craig Spraggins. Relaxing at home to a movie, going out to dinner, or partying at friends' places were the usual college scenes in dating for those who had steady boyfriends or girlfriends.

Overall, dating was a different experience because college provides so many opportunities to meet new people and many students want the freedom to enjoy everything college has to offer. College was a time for broadening horizons. The cliché that you will find your future husband or wife in college held true for some, but not all.

-Valerie Leighton & Simone Lamey

"A date? I wish I could get one."

Senior
Brian Zarahn

Ward

TRAVELING PAIR. Jenny Gillespie and Thong Nguyen take a bus to the Alpha Chi Omega Sisterdate. These events were popular dates for Greeks at JMU.

HAPPY TOGETHER. These students get a little closer as they walk to class. Often busy students had to spend time together between classes on campus.

Simpson

CHECKING OUT. This student works the cash register at Dukes for extra money. Dukes was one of the many places where students went for jobs on campus.

PIZZA! A student makes a pizza at Mr. Gatti's. Many students had jobs at local restaurants.

J Williams

TAKING THE PUNCH. This student runs JAC cards through the computer at Amigo's. All dining services need student cashiers.

LIGHTS, CAMERA, ACTION. Rob Toomer runs camera at WHSV TV, a local ABC station. Some students had practical jobs to help them with their career.

Fund Raising

Students Seek Jobs For Extra Money

Many students thought the combination of school and their social lives was a big burden, but throw in a job, now that was a different story. "I don't know who came up with the term 'after-school job,'" commented senior George Pettit, "I have work before, after and during my classes."

Where there was a will, there was a job, but some weren't as glamorous or exciting as one would think. "Waitressing is a lot harder than people think," said senior Amy Rogers, waitress at Gus' Taverna, "you really have to work for your money."

Some students chose to stay "close-to-home" and work on campus. JMU, being so large, had a wide variety of jobs to offer. D-Hall and Dukes were always on campus hot spots due to their locations and flexible schedules. The library and the bookstore were popular jobs for students who wanted something a little less hectic. For those with a creative side, one could find work with one of JMU's award winning publications.

Off-campus jobs ranged from burger flippers at McDonald's, cashiers at the local Wal-Mart, or bartenders at Joker's Pub and Grill. "Joker's was a great place to work," said senior Angela Hall. "you got to see a lot of great bands."

Although it was a challenge, many JMU students balanced their class and work schedules while still managing to maintain a social life.

-Joe Olson

INFO PLEASE. Sarah Hoyt works the information desk in the Campus Center. It was a popular job due to its central location and flexible schedule.

"I wish I had one, maybe I could buy some food once in awhile."

-Senior
Matt Vlieger

J. Williams

Magin

J. Williams

Set In Motion

Moving Around the 'Burg

Getting around Harrisonburg was pretty tricky at first. Figuring out the bus schedule was as confusing to a freshman as registering for classes over the telephone. Once this task was mastered, however, students at JMU found that they could get almost anywhere in Harrisonburg— FOR FREE! By using the bus, students were able to travel such places as Valley Mall, Dukes Plaza and downtown. Freshman Alison Dickey commented, "The bus system is a good asset to the school because without the bus I would have no way of getting off 'campusland'."

Getting around campus usually involved a different story. Even on a bike, getting from Anthony Seeger all the way to Zane Showker Hall was not easy. With only ten minutes between classes, for many bikers crossing a busy street, darting between other students along the way and biking down stairs seemed like an Olympic event in itself. Sophomore Marcus Seiler stated, "Having a bike is quicker, good exercise and you can see more people in a shorter period of time." On the other hand, there were advantages for those who preferred walking.

Cars and motorcycles were yet another form of transportation used mostly by the upperclassmen. As senior Pete Klebed pulled up on his motorcycle in front of D-hall, he claimed, "Motorcycles are more fun, more convenient [than cars], [get] better gas mileage, and it is always easier to find a parking spot on campus."

There were various methods used to get around Harrisonburg and campus whether it was by bike, motorcycle, bus, car or on foot. Students just chose which ever method fit their needs or style and got going.

-Dana Muscano
Lea Olsheskie

BIKE REUNION. The Quad is filled with avid bikers on their mountain bikes. During the warmer days, bikes were a very popular way of getting around.

WHERE TO PARK? Parking—quite an obstacle for students on the JMU campus. Unless students had an 8:00 class or a lot of luck, parking was difficult to find.

Humke
CONVENIENCE. Harrisonburg Transit readily provides students with transportation to campus, apartments, and downtown. These buses ran around the clock and provided a safe ride home.

"When I go home for Christmas vacation this year, my calf muscles are going to look exactly like Arnold Schwarzenegger's."

-Freshman
Becky Devers

Manzo
A LITTLE EXERCISE. Bikes are a popular means of getting around. They got students to their destinations quicker and provided the rider with an aerobic workout.

L ab Time

Cranking on the Keyborad

The place was packed every day; the later it got, the more people came. They stayed until it closed at midnight and they were usually back first thing in the morning. Those who worked there were used to the constant problems and questions from people that put things off until the last minute. It was the magical place where stress and worries were personified, where projects were finally finished and papers were frantically composed: the computer labs.

JMU boasted 12 computer labs in different areas of campus. Dorms such as Chandler, Converse and Frederickson had labs in their basements, giving students who lived there little excuse for not getting work done on time. Labs were also located in educational buildings such as Anthony-Seeger, the Education Building, Harrison, Keezel, Maury, Miller and Zane D. Showker Hall. There were also labs in the Music Library and Carrier Library. During the week, the labs were usually open from 8am to midnight, with the exception of Converse which was open 24 hours for all those who really needed extra time.

Most labs came equipped with Macintosh and IBM computers, image writer printers, laser printers, VAX terminals and a qualified lab assistant to help students with any problems. These assistants were hired through the Office of Information Technology and were accustomed to odd and bizarre questions. "The weirdest problem I ever ran into was when I was at home and a friend called me at 2:00 am because she was having a computer problem and knew I worked in one of the labs and thought I could help her," said junior Jay Colavita.

A variety of classes met in the labs on a regular basis. Many departments offered versions of publication design classes and a great deal of writing classes were taught either partly or entirely in the labs. "My scriptwriting class met in the lab one day a week, which was good because it gave me time to get a lot of work done on my projects," said senior Kim Hanover. "It made class more interesting than a regular lecture, too."

Overall, students had a love/hate relationship with the computer labs...they hated to go there, and they loved to leave. But however painful it may have been for students to go to the computer labs, they were just a necessary step on the road to obtaining a higher education.

*-Kristi Shackelford
Heather Gustin*

STAYING BUSY! Students can always be found in computer labs, even, in the dark hour of the night. The labs were especially busy around exam time, when there was often a wait for open terminals.

GETTING ORGANIZED. Sophomore Angela Sampson utilizes the computer lab found in Converse Hall. Computer labs were located around in order to be convenient to all students.

HELP! James Song and James Bak help one another to become better acquainted with the computers in Anthony Seeger. Other computer labs are located in Frederickson Hall, Converse Hall and in Showker Hall.

JUST VAX IT! Senior Matt Holthaus does his business homework on the vax. Professors often required use of the vax labs for convenient out of class communication with students and to give students computer experience.

What did people do before Converse lab was 24 hours? At midnight people are still waiting in line to use a computer!

Senior Libby Westley

TAKE CONTROL. Graphic and cues are run for Hey, U! from the control room of the television production center. Many students gained hands on experience here.

Magin

N ews Flash

JMU campus media: news and experience

Spreading the word around campus: that was the goal of JMU's media outlets.

In a town with four country music, one Top 40 and one oldies station, WXJM catered to the needs of college students. Playing everything from alternative to jazz to heavy metal to rap, WXJM had something for everyone. With a music library consisting of over seven thousand CDs plus records and new music coming in everyday, 88.7 was far from a typical station. "JMU has such a diversified student body, it seems natural to play something different for everyone," said DJ Heath Haynes. "WXJM is never the same station twice."

WXJM was not just music: they also featured several informational shows. A popular one was Talk, a weekly show featuring different guests and hosted by Public Affairs, Information and News Director Tom Fatouros. Also a favorite was Issues, a current affairs show addressing issues like women's rights. In addition, a current news update was read at the top of the hour and sports was reported twice a day.

Hey U! was a popular alternative for on-campus students. The student run and produced television show reported campus and some community and national news in the format of a regular news show. Co-hosted by two JMU students, the news show aired on Channel 43 daily. Taped from the Television Production Center in Harrison Hall, the show gave students interested in broadcasting invaluable experience.

Another way of reporting the news was the student run newspaper, The Breeze. Two editions were available each week. A staff of over 50 students worked with faculty advisors and various news writing and practicum classes to write stories, edit, design and produce the paper. Through its numerous advertisements, The Breeze also had strong ties to the community and was distributed for free at various local business as well as on campus.

The Bluestone was another print publication offered free to students. The annual featured everything from student life features to clubs and Greek organizations to sports in a year-end keepsake. The almost 400-page book was divided into five deadlines that began in September and spread throughout the year. The book usually arrived at JMU the week before exams and was distributed on the Commons.

The campus media offered at JMU served a two-fold purpose: providing students with current news and giving those students who planned to work in the media valuable experience.

-Kristi Shackelford

Magin

PICTURE THIS. Bluestone photographer Sharley Simpson makes a print from a negative in the darkroom. Photographers were a key ingredient to the production of the yearbook.

ON THE AIR. WXJM DJ Tammy Blockburger keeps track of the music menu for her radio show. Most of the shows consisted of a variety of progressive artists.

Magin

Magin

WRITE? RIGHT. Staff writer Amanda Ashley types an article into the computer. Many journalists received some practical experience writing for the Breeze.

"I work for WXJM because it gives me a place to be at JMU and lets me know what's going on musically in the world."

-Sophomore
Marc Balgavy

NEW MUSIC. Program director Jon Bohland checks out the latest additions to the CD rotation at WXJM. DJs tried to give the new releases a lot of airplay.

A Broad Study

Paris

Studying abroad in Paris is a unique educational and cultural experience. In addition to the traditional classroom meetings were weekly outings in which students had direct contact with the French people and their culture. Whether it was an afternoon at the Louvre, an evening at the opera or simply a trip to a pastry shop, studying in Paris provided the students with a different kind of education.

However, this education was not limited to the classroom, as it entered the home as well. The students had the option of either living in an international foyer in the heart of the Latin Quarter or living with French families in their homes. No matter what accommodations the students chose, they were surrounded by culture and history. Famous jazz clubs, the Shakespeare and Company bookstore, and the Deux Magots cafe that Ernest Hemingway used to frequent were all just a metro stop away.

-Christy Sander & Danielle Liquori

BONJOUR. These JMU students join together for a quick group shot. Paris was a very popular place for students that went abroad.

THE WILDERNESS. These students explore Mount Pelee. They climbed this volcano located in Martinique.

CHEERS! Norm Gonzales, Seth Ackerman, Andrew Crocket and Dan make the most of their final banquet. The night was a perfect ending to a semester in London.

HI THERE. Students join together for a group picture in England. They were visiting the Royal Palace in Brighton.

HIGH ALTITUDE. Chris Ernst and Emily XXX enjoy a break at the top of the French Alps. Skiing was always a popular activity in the States and abroad.

London

"If there were some way for me to get there, I'd leave tomorrow." Jacqueline Wind echoes the positive feeling that JMU students had after a semester experience in London, England. Kim Badin said she would "do it again in a heartbeat."

These students and 24 others spent three months living in a town house in Bloomsbury, across the street from the University of London. Madison House was located in a quiet neighborhood, but was just a few minutes walk from most major attractions in London. Regents Park was nearby for playing sports or relaxing by the gardens. For night life, Picadilly circus was full of unusual people and stores, while Oxford street was close by for shopping and several museums were located near the house for cultural education. Several restaurants close to the house provided some inexpensive variety meals. The house was a "home base" for the students and made the adjustment to living in the city easier for them.

The main advantage of the program was the fact that most of the learning took place outside of the classroom. Students received tickets to attend concerts and shows regardless of the classes they were taking. They took a trip around England as a group and they also got a 10 day vacation in the semester to travel elsewhere around Europe.

Jacqueline Wind got "a million times more out of the program" than she expected, like a lot of the students. For many of them the desire to return to England was with them when they left. For these students, the semester abroad was an extremely worthwhile program that gave them experiences that will last a lifetime.

-Gwen Whitney

"You can't beat taking a Shakespeare class at the Globe Theater"

-Senior
Kim Badin

Florence

Students who spent a semester in Florence found themselves in the heart of the Renaissance. Surrounded by 14th century art and architecture and through their classroom studies, students grasped the feeling of what Florence was like in the Renaissance.

Students lived in the Hotel Tirreno, which was just a ten or fifteen minute walk from all the hot spots of the city. Although Florence was filled with people, its small size allowed students to walk everywhere.

They took classes at the British Institute of Florence where they studied things such as the Italian language and Italian Renaissance art. As a part of their studies, the groups traveled to cities nearby, like Pisa and Sienna, and also traveled further to the famous cities of Rome and Venice.

Walking up and down the shopping streets and peering in each of the stores to check out the hottest trends in fashion was something everyone did, tourists and Florentines. The city was home to the ever-famous Gucci and Salvatore Ferragamo, one of the most trendy shoe designers. Another popular pastime was stopping in one of Florence's many bars and cafes to relax with a cappuccino. After-hours, students danced the night away in one of the city's discotechs.

-Beth Anne Howie

"There is nothing that can compare to the view of Florence from the hills above."

*-Senior
Brian Crim*

CIAO! Students stand in front of the British Institute of Florence. Students took classes at the Institute.

SIGHTSEEING. A JMU group traveling during May sessions poses for a picture in front of the Coliseum in Rome. Many JMU groups traveled during May session.

MASKED. Joanne Schmidt and Sarah Goode show off their creations for Carnevale. The semester in Florence program spent Mardi Gras in Venice.

Simpson

SCULPTURED. This ornate entrance to a cathedral in Salamanca was typical of Spanish architecture.

Distant Study

Salamanca

"Salamanca was the best decision of my academic career," said Heather Oldham. "It gave me life experience to relate to my textbook studies. I lived as a Spanish citizen for five months and loved it."

Students took classes at the University of Salamanca. In and out of class lectures were an important part of their experience. They studied the art, architecture, and history of Salamanca and Spain. The group also traveled to various other cities in Spain to supplement their classes.

Each student was boarded with a Spanish family. Living with a family allowed students to get first hand experience with the Spanish culture and people. The apartments were small by U.S. standards but most students still got their own rooms. Heather was impressed with the manner in which she was treated. "They took you in as their own," she explained. "I felt very comfortable around them." For many the mother of the house became their temporary "Mom."

The combination of experiences in the classroom, in the home and on their own gave students experiences, memories, and friendships to last a lifetime.

-Frank J. Sparacino

FINE DINING. A group from Salamanca enjoy an outdoor cafe. Outdoor cafes added charm to the city.

Pocket Change

Putting Up the Money

Being in college seemed to go hand in hand with being broke. Most students worked all summer and some during the school year, so where did all that money go?

For students living off campus, rent and utility bills took their toll on finances. Students with cars made payments and had to keep up insurance.

Food made up a good part of what students spent money on. Everyone was familiar with ordering late-night pizzas, and this year, some places began to accept FLEX as payment for food delivery. Those accounts, along with credit cards and ATM cards, made it easy to spend money without really feeling the cash drain. Often, along with food went alcohol, especially for parties, and that used up a lot of students' funds.

Other activities and expenses took care of whatever money was left. Students belonged to clubs that often required fees for membership or participation in activities. Trips to the mall for clothes or to Town and Campus for compact discs all added up to empty savings.

Students constantly griped about lack of money and often looked to Mom and Dad for help. Some were fortunate in their times of need but others had to tighten their belts and pass up certain social engagements. Money was always a hot topic among all college students, especially when opportunities for roadtrips and vacations arose.

-Gwen Whitney

"In one hand, out the other."

-Senior
Jeff Mitroff

WILL IT BOUNCE? Kate Ouellette fills out a withdrawal slip at the bank. Students always hoped that their checks did not bounce.

J. Williams

QUICK MONEY. Freshmen Steve Holt and Matt Horning withdraw money from the ATM machine outside the bank. This money machine was very popular among students.

J. Williams

J. Williams

J. Williams

BUSINESS AS USUAL. Mrs. Tamra Long assists Rob Hirojosa with his bank account. Keeping track of account balances was always a challenge for students.

CASHING IN. Debbie Moseley makes a stop at the bank on campus. The Credit Union was convenient for students because of the location.

DID YOU HEAR? First year graduate student Suzanne Gaskins administers a hearing test. She was a speech pathology undergraduate student at UNC Chapel Hill.

LET ME EXPLAIN. Grad student David Henrico talks to Dr. Cameron Nickels. Grad students often acted as assistants to professors

"It's a lot more work than I expected but I know it will be worth it in the end."

-Grad student
Shannon Pugh

Magin

C ollege Part II

Graduate students take the challenge

For most students, 12 years of high school, followed by four (or more) years of college were enough. After all, you could only pull so many all nighters to get that paper done, or take so many tests, right? Not everybody felt this way. Instead of entering the workforce right away, some students opted to stay students for just a little longer...graduate students, that is.

JMU offered 26 possible majors for graduate work. There were over 1400 students enrolled in the graduate program, and an average of 300 were accepted each year. According to graduate school executive secretary Marilyn Heishman, JMU offered a "competitive grad school based on the number of inquiries received about our program." There were over 7000 inquiries last year.

Going to graduate school was in some ways similar to attending a regular college, but the differences were marked. Students still acquired classes through telephone registration, but were often given priority over undergrads and were the only students allowed to take 500 level classes. When a particular class was not offered at graduate level, teachers sometimes had the option of allowing the grad student to take the undergraduate class and add additional requirements to make the class more challenging.

In addition to classes, students often took extra practicums and internships. Many graduate students taught classes or acted as teacher's aides as well as being students themselves. Certification was required in addition to regular classwork in order to receive a master's degree.

One difference often found in graduate students was age. Since many students took a year or two off from school to work or sometimes start a family before beginning their graduate work, some found it strange to be back on a college campus. "I had forgotten how loud a college town could be," said grad student John Brooks. "After being gone four years, I can't believe I ever acted like that!"

Graduate student David Walke agreed, "People always ask me if it's hard to be a student and work while I'm in school. It's not nearly as hard as being married and going to school."

In general, students found the hard work and extra hours to be in their benefit in the long run. "It's hard sometimes to hear your friends you graduated with talk about their new jobs while you're still taking classes, but I know that I made the right choice," said Cheryl Jones.

-Kristi Shackelford

Magin Shackelford

SPEAKING CLEARLY. Graduate student Paula Pasicznyk works in the lab. Pasicznyk was a JMU alumni.

Magin

Magin

ALMOST THERE. Second year psychology graduate student Natalie Migiorini works on a paper. Migiorini was a William & Mary graduate.

ARTISTIC TALENT. Charles Goolsby works on one of his final projects. Most full time graduate students finished their studies in two years.

PLAYTIME. A student plays ball on campus with his dog. The open areas on campus were popular play sites among pets and their owners.

TWINS. Tev Barrows cuddles with his two ferrets. Ferrets were popular pets for students.

Simpson

HIDE AND SEEK. This iguana peeks out from his rather unusual hiding place. Pets provided entertainment for students with their curious personalities.

S Williams

LITTLE BUDDY. Marion Haynes and her kitten relax in her room. Young pets were a fun addition to students' lives.

MAN'S BEST FRIEND. Shaka, a pit bull, is really just a big baby. Big dogs roaming around campus were nothing to be afraid of.

Shackelford

"An iguana is a different kind of pet -- not like a dog. It's neat to see him grow and change."

-Junior
Annette Bultema

Shackelford

Puppy Love

Pets were faithful companions for students

Students living off-campus could enjoy the pleasures of having a pet. Living in dorms, students were only allowed to keep fish in their rooms. Many agreed that having a fish was great, but it lacked the real companionship many found with another pet, like a dog.

There were pros and cons to having a pet. Vicki Johnson said that the companionship that came along with having a cat was great, but taking care of it was a hassle. "My roommate was the one who did all of the work, so I didn't mind much," Vicki added with a laugh. Many students agreed that even though they loved having a pet of their very own, getting up and walking a dog or changing the cat litter was a lot of work. Yet, for many it was worth it. Bringing their pets on campus, these students believed it was a great way to meet members of the opposite sex.

Taking care of a pet could truly be a hassle in a busy scheduled life. These students resorted to fish, snakes, or no pets at all- whatever did not require loving at all times of the day and night! But those students with pets believed they were the best friends anyone could have.

-Jennifer Franca

Simpson

NEWSWORTHY. This student uses time between classes to read the paper. Many students read the Breeze to catch up on campus events.

STRUMMING ALONG. This student practices in his spare time. Playing music was a favorite way for many to spend time.

Vo

Precious Time

Students make the most of free time

Extra time for students to spend as they pleased was something many lacked in their busy lives. As Luis Neto says, "I don't have any free time." Many students agreed that their free time went to their studies. Others believed that no matter how busy they were, they must always take time out to relieve pressure and stress. Students used a variety of ways to get away from it all.

The most important part of relieving the school pressures was relaxation. "Personally, I like taking naps," said Chet Debuzman. Whether at home in bed, in a friend's bed, out on the quad or just at one of the local parks, students enjoyed sleeping away their worries. And one thing they never had to worry about was having a bad time. Also at home, students could be found playing Nintendo or watching a movie.

The new Taylor Hall was a great place for students with spare time between classes. Many students had fun in the game room shooting pool, playing video games, or just hanging out with friends. Across from the game room, the commuter lounge was perfect for meeting friends, grabbing a coffee of hot chocolate and watching a movie. Students could always find somewhere in Taylor Hall to hang out and waste some time.

For those students who were fortunate enough to have a car, or a friend with a car, or were brave enough to venture through the Harrisonburg bus system, there were many off-campus hangouts. The Valley Mall was a good place for students to shop and eat. The food court offered a wide variety and selection for those who preferred not to eat on campus. Some students preferred to have something more than the fast food selection in the mall. These students could be found in places like Tully's, Spanky's, Mr. Gatti's or even the Little Grill if they wanted some entertainment as well.

No matter how busy the schedule, no matter how many tests were coming up, students needed that break in the day just to recuperate. It didn't matter where the place was, just as long as there were no reminders of school and work.

-Jen Francis

"I like to listen to my music full blast and eat junk food."

-Senior Sarah Jenkins

CREATIVITY. Students finger paint on the commons between classes. The event, sponsored by the art department, gave students the opportunity to let themselves go.

SPIKE. Friends play volleyball outside the college of business. Students enjoyed friendly competition after classes.

Magin

SHOULD I BLUFF? Friends engage in a friendly game of cards. Games were enjoyed by many during free time.

FEVER. A Health Center nurse takes sophomore Travis Hicks' temperature. Many students with colds suffered from fever.

SLEEPING IT OFF. Ryan Cresswell, feeling a little ill, sleeps the day away. Most students hoped that rest would cure their illness.

ENDLESS WAIT. Sophomore Aimee Joy waits to see a nurse at the Health Center. Students were often frustrated by the long waits there.

J. Williams

J. Williams

"When I'm sick, everyone who isn't must pay."

-Senior Erik Cope

J. Williams

MISERY. Chris Susil has the stomach flu. Flus were dreaded ailments

HELP YOURSELF. Freshman Jessica Pipitone takes the self-care quiz at the Health Center. The quiz let students diagnose themselves for minor ailments.

J. Williams

Bed Ridden

Students feeling under the weather

The never ending warnings were not enough to make students take care of themselves. Diets consisting of delivery, Dukies cuisine and Diet Coke, combined with the lack of sleep had taken their toll. Students ran their bodies down and inevitably got sick.

For the first time in their lives, many students had to take care of themselves. This meant no Mom to make chicken soup or hot tea, and no friendly family doctor to give trusted advice. The closest thing students had to help were the nurses at the health center, yet, they found they were just one of a long list of students needing help.

The Health Center was available on campus for students convenience. A common Health Center cure consisted of a bag of salt and some generic sudafed. For the those feeling just a little under the weather, the self-care cold clinic provided students with the extra help they needed for minor ailments.

When things got worse, however, students got scared. Everyone feared the dreaded mononucleosis. Getting mono meant a week of misery and a trip to Rockingham Memorial Hospital, a place no one wanted to visit.

By the time graduation rolled around, students figured out how to take care of themselves, and were ready in another aspect for life on their own.

-Beth Anne Howie

J. Williams

Simpson

Simpson

SEEING DOUBLE. Twins Christina and Denise Zulandi stop to pose for a picture. Identical twins were hard to tell apart.

FAR FROM HOME. Both Sara and Jan Kafadar left Sweden to attend JMU. The two found a comfortable home here.

Simpson

BEST FRIENDS. Twins Melissa and Michelle Miklaucic stick together. Twins at JMU shared a unique experience.

CONFIDING. Andrew and Charlotte Cerutti catch. With a sibling at JMU there was always a friend to talk to.

Simpson

"I like having my brother here most of the time, but sometimes it's like he is on my territory since I went to school here first."

-Senior
Kim Knight

F amily Tradition

Brothers and sisters bond at school

Although some students didn't like to show affection for their siblings, senior Alison Hillow said that "having my little sister here at JMU with me made my senior year so much more special." Her sister, Amy, a freshman, agreed and said "My sister is one of my best friends here, and made my arrival to JMU exciting." But Alison and Amy were far from being the only siblings to pass each other on campus.

Each sibling reacted differently to the news that their brother or sister decided to attend James Madison University. Sophomore Colleen Morris told about her experience, saying "At first I don't think my sister liked the idea of my coming here, but since I've been here it turns out that we see each other a lot less often than we'd like. I think we've grown closer since I've come to JMU." Some younger students enjoyed having older siblings their freshman year to introduce them to social life at JMU.

As if going to college with your brother or sister isn't unique already, imagine how twins must have felt. Some twins chose to be roommates, whereas others decided to live separate lives. However, regardless of the relationship, the subject of twins always brought on conversation. Junior Melissa Keller said that "Whenever people found out I have a twin sister (Melanie), they were always so interested, asking me all sorts of questions about her and our relationship." Most of the twins found it humorous to see the responses they got from different people.

Generally, siblings were very happy to be going to the same school. It brought them closer, and there was comfort knowing that there was someone that they could go to in case of emergencies. As sophomore Jacqueline McMahon put it, "Being on your own can be a pretty scary thing sometimes, and it is then when you appreciate them the most."

-Sara Ringdahl

READING UP. This students flips through magazines to get job hunting tips. Career Services always had these magazines on hand to help students out.

The Hunt Is On

Seniors search for a job after graduation

"I give up! I'm going to end up flipping burgers at McDonald's.

-Senior
Jen Venible

"So, what are your plans after you graduate?" was one of the most frequently asked questions of seniors during their last year of college. Some seniors answered that question with ease, already knowing where and for whom they would be working. For others, it was just another reminder that they had to begin the often dreaded job search.

The Office of Career Services in Sonner Hall was a common starting point for students in need of employment. OCS offered services such as on campus recruiting, resume critiques and company information which helped students focus in on the job market. Other special events, such as the Career Fair and Minority Career Day, gave students a chance to meet with company representatives and drop resumes. "The Career Fair helped me get interviews and information on the employers that interested me. That was really important since I graduated in December," said senior Orrie Yago.

When it came down to actually interviewing for position vacancies, students were often nervous because of the vast implications those interviews had on their future. Senior CIS major Traci Showalter went through numerous on campus interviews and said, "As frustrating as the job search could be at times, it was an inevitable part of a student's life. After all, wasn't that why we came to college in the first place?"

-Heather Gustin

Shackelford

ADVICE. WHSV news anchor Libby Gardner speaks to students at Mass Comm Career Day. Twelve JMU alumni came back to discuss career possibilities in the Mass Communications field.

CHOICES. Students sort through company information. Career services kept information notebooks on major companies.

Komich

Komich

Komich

Komich

WHERE TO BEGIN? A student sorts through a OCS employer information. These files gave students a point of reference.

ASSISTANCE. Graduate assistant Sonya Lamb helps a student. Grad assistants provided much needed guidance.

DREADLOCKED. This student shows off his very long dreadlocks. Some students found dreads an easy way to make a statement.

AGROUP THING. These seniors shave their heads as a way to enjoy one last wild style before getting jobs. Often friends took part in getting fun styles together.

Howard

Humke

Hair Affair

Students kept up with the latest hair fashions

"I'm naturally a frizz-head, and damn proud of it."

-Senior
Sandy Pafford

Straight, wavy, curly. Long, short, nonexistent. Black, brown, auburn, blond. The hair styles at JMU were just as diverse as the students and no matter the mix, it seemed it was always a bad hair day. The solution—everyone grabbed their baseball caps! What was even worse was that the girl who sat next to you in class had layers of silk curls flowing down her back. She must have used Sauve!

Guys, even if they did care about what their hair looked like, pretended as if it was the least of their concerns. Many guys tended to have longer hair than some girls. No longer was it wash and go. Mousse and gel found their way into the men's bathroom.

It seemed no one was ever satisfied with the style of their hair. If it was short, they wanted it long. If it was straight they wanted it curly, and so on. Junior Elizabeth Bailey said, "I wish I had straight hair, naturally curly hair is uncontrollable." Somehow the style desired never looked as good on yourself as it did on the other person.

It was a continuous frustration. Unfortunately, everyone woke up to it in the morning. Unless, of course, you felt a little daring and solved the problem by shaving it all off like senior Joe Olson who said, "I used to have long hair but it proved to be too much of a hassle—so I shaved it all off."

-Kathy Hawk

BRAIDED. Barbara Awuakye's thick braids are enough to make anyone on campus jealous. Most searched for thick hair that was simple to take care of.

MANLY MAN. A student lifts his shirt to show his hairy chest. Many students were often unhappy with the amount of hair covering their bodies, it was either too much or too little.

CASUAL STYLE. Lindsey Mears' low maintenance dreadlocks are perfect for the casual lifestyle. Many females chose simpler styles to avoid curlers, blow dryers and hair spray.

Simpson

Simpson

Humke

Simpson

QUICK STYLE. Chris Ernst runs his fingers through his hair to be sure every lock is in place. Easy styling methods such as this were always found on campus.

Snoozin'

Taking time out for a nap

Ah, naptime. There were few students who did not know the pleasure of a few stolen minutes of sleep between classes or before work. Anytime provided the right moment, and any halfway comfortable area was the place.

Naps were a common part of life for most college students. "I could never sleep during the day at home," said freshman Candice Miller. "Now I can't make it through the day without a nap in the afternoon." Junior Lori Larocco agreed, "I have to take a nap everyday before work or I'm useless. My body is used to sleeping for an hour every afternoon, so I make time for it."

Finding time for naps was seldom a problem for sleepy students. Ten or fifteen minute snoozes between classes or while waiting for a bus were not uncommon. "I always fall asleep in the library when I'm supposed to be studying," said junior Brian Blalock. "I'm used to running into class late with funky indentions on my face from sleeping on my books."

Senior Michelle Stough said, "I don't have any trouble sleeping five minutes here or ten minutes there. I can fall asleep on the bus on the way home after class." According to junior Jackie Steffey, it was never too early for a nap. "I come home and sleep for an hour or so everyday after my eight o'clock class."

There was no place a napper couldn't make do. Those that didn't have time to go home had plenty of comfortable opportunities on campus to spend their quiet time. On nice days, the Quad was covered with students resting on benches or stretched out on the ground. On colder days, the library and lounges in the campus center made for comfortable beds for tired students. "I've spent many a cold winter afternoon asleep in the library," said junior Chris O'Donnell. "It's my favorite thing to do there."

Those that had the time were quick to get to their rooms. "My favorite part of living on campus is being close enough to fall into my bed when I'm ready for a nap between classes," said junior Sarah Coggins. "Without my alarm clock, I'd miss everything else I had to do that day." Students who lived off campus had other advantages. "After my classes are done, I walk into my apartment and crash on the couch in front of the TV while I nap. It's my favorite part of the day," said sophomore Todd Anderson.

Naps were often the most anticipated aspect of a student's day. "When I think I can't handle one more class or write one more paper, I head for my bed and some peace and quiet," said junior Sarah Allen. "A nap helps me put everything in perspective."

-Kristi Shackelford

TAKE A SEAT. A student reclines back in front of Duke Hall. Students just had to take a break sometimes.

Magin

LYING AROUND. An unidentified student puts all things aside and lies out for some sun. Benches around campus were great for quick naps.

Guilfoyle

"Power naps can really help you make it through the day."

-Senior
Chris Garner

LOUNGING. Jen Ford and Kristen Balint chill out after a long day. Stuffed animals and friends were great naptime companions.

Magn

J. Williams

Humke

STUDY OR NAP? A student studies for classes while her significant other sleeps on her lap. Sitting outside in the grass was a great getaway from the room.

PILLOW TALK. This student failed to stay awake while studying for her exam. Sleep was always so tempting and hard to resist.

HARD AT WORK. Beth Osborne, a JMU graduate, directs the news at WHSV, the local ABC affiliate station. Some alumni decided to stay around and work in the area.

TAKING CHARGE The proud owners of JM's stand by their familiar sign. These JMU alumni made a lot of changes to the bar and grill.

S. Williams

Mag...

BACK IN CLASS. John Woody, a JMU alumni, teaches a Mass Communication class. Here he looked over his students' work on the computers.

CATCHING UP. Alumnus gather at the arboretum to reminisce about college. Filigating was a great way to catch up with old friends.

"Now if I could only get a job."

-Alumnus
Kristy Hite ('92)

L egacies

Gone, but not forgotten

After spending four years (or maybe more) at JMU, very few students could leave without taking a part of the school with them. Although graduation comes and goes, graduates really never leave JMU altogether. Instead, they changed "titles:" from JMU students to JMU alumnus. Wherever they went, whatever they did, some aspect of JMU life followed. "I still wake up some mornings and think that I'm late for class," commented 1993 graduate Chris Purcell.

JMU's alumni ranged from last year's graduating class to the women from Madison College's class of 1908. Their jobs varied from CEO's of Fortune 500 companies to managers of local bars. They were everywhere, and they were in the "real world" - not like the MTV show, but instead, the life that almost all JMU students both dreaded and desired.

Most grads survived the change, and some went on to bigger and greater things. The 1992 JMU graduate and former SGA president, Pat Southall, won the Miss Virginia USA pageant and qualified for the 1994 Miss USA pageant that was held in February.

Some JMU grad's accomplishments could extend over a long period of time or there could be one aspect that stood out from the rest. For example, 1990 graduate Matt Seelinger will always have one day that will stand out in his mind. Seelinger won over $5,000 dollars and a week-long trip to St. Thomas through his winnings on the game show "Jeopardy".

No matter where life after JMU took graduates, they were sure to carry a part of JMU along.

-Joe Olson

PEPE LOPEZ. Jeb Avery, Christine Schilling and "Pepe" gather at a Halloween party with their favorite party time friend. Many got a little wild for Halloween.

ROARING 20'S. Wisty Parker and Heidi Manley celebrate Halloween through costume and performance. Many people went all out to make their costumes come alive.

Festive Fun

Holiday spirit comes alive

As the days shortened and temperatures dropped in October, there were a few things students had to look forward to, besides the arrival of ski season—the holidays. Beginning with Halloween and extending through the New Year, students went to great lengths to show their holiday spirit.

Dressing up as their favorite hero or villain made Halloween a memorable event. Halloween was a great excuse to have a party, not that anyone ever needed an excuse. But Halloween did get students in the mood to have a wild time. Ghost and Goblins were spotted all over Harrisonburg trekking to parties.

Thanksgiving was the next holiday of the semester, and while students were not at school, it was celebrated with the same amount of excitement. It was the first significant break of the school year, when students had an opportunity to go home, relax with family, and put their worries about the semester away for five days. Students whose homes were a great distance from JMU celebrated Thanksgiving with friends. Senior Cosette Phillips said, "My parents moved to California over the summer, so I spent Thanksgiving break with my friend's family in Richmond."

And when the students returned from Thanksgiving break they brought back strings of blinking lights, wreaths, and miniature Christmas trees with them. Despite the pressures of the end of the semester crunch, students went all out for the season. In dorms and apartments, the phrase "deck the halls" was not taken lightly as windows and balconies were covered in lights. The most enthusiastic bought live full size Christmas trees. Senior Karla Williams said, "My roommates and I went to Wal-Mart and bought a live tree because they were so cheap and we were psyched for Christmas."

Activities for the season on campus included the annual Christmas on the Quad, the ceremony when a tree in front of Wilson Hall was lit and friends gathered to sing carols and drink hot chocolate.

The holiday season ended on January first, when many students met during break to toast in the New Year.

-Beth Anne Howie

"We put a huge candle covered with lights on our balcony for Christmas. I stole it from a shopping mall lamppost!"

-Junior
Meghan l'Anson

ALL DOLLED UP. Mike O'Donahue and his date socialize at the Knights of Columbus annual Christmas Cocktail. Many organizations showed their spirit through holding formal gatherings.

GOING ALL OUT. The owners of this tree think big when it comes to decorating for the holidays. Most students purchased a small fake tree to decorate their dorm rooms or apartments.

ILL GET YOU, MY PRETTY! Suzanne Smith sports her witch costume at a PSE Halloween party. Villians were popular costumes.

S. Williams

"There is a deceiving sense of safety on JMU's campus due to the friendly atmosphere, but in reality the students probably ought to take more advantage of the escort services provided."

-Junior
Carrie Burger

Safety First

Taking Precautions

When many parents sent their son or daughter off to college for the first time, one of their greatest concerns was their child's safety. Most were relieved to learn of the strong safety precautions taken within the JMU community.

The most basic precaution was having the on campus police station. The JMU police handled assaults, thefts and other judicial offenses in an attempt to limit as much crime as possible. Since crime was very low, the JMU police mostly responded to fire alarms and helped broken down automobiles. It eased everyone's mind to know that help was not far if there was ever a problem.

The cadets were another means to ensure student safety across campus and served several needs. They provided a safe walk home for students late at night. This escort service was a comfort to anyone who left the library at closing time or who was separated from their friends at a party on Greek Row and didn't want to walk home alone. Students were urged to take advantage of this free service.

Locked exterior doors 24 hours a day secured freshman residence halls from outsiders, just an extra safety precaution. Also, emergency phones outside of buildings and residence halls insured students that help was just a phone call away.

These measures all added up to make JMU a comparatively safe place to go to school and live. The security felt by students made many take the services which kept them safe for granted.

-Beth Anne Howie

BUSTED. Officer Rick Biller peers through the divider in his cop car. Biller was one of the many JMU police officers.

Manzo

SLIPPERY WHEN WET. Ice and snow on sidewalks and stairs prove to be hazardous for students and faculty. The campus maintenance crew sanded the area to make the walk easier.

EMERGENCY! Randi Gische uses the emergency phone by the Godwin bus stop. Phones were strategically placed around campus for the safety of the students.

Magin

Manzo

ROAD CREWS! Snow and ice cover the roads. Maintenance teams were all over campus to make traveling safer.

Manzo

PROTECTION. Public safety provides many services for the JMU campus. Shenandoah Hall was located on South Main Street right across from the quad.

Cake & Candles

When you turn 16 you can drive, at 18 you can vote, and at 21 you are legal; the next milestone you hit is being over the hill."

-Junior
Anna White

Creating birthday memories

Birthdays away from home were celebrated in many ways. Whether going out to dinner, having friends over, having parents visit, or throwing a party, JMU students found a way to enter another year in their lives.

Birthday dinners were a great way to embarrass friends. Most restaurants gathered their employees together to sing "Happy Birthday." Everybody that was eating stopped to watch as the birthday guest huddled in the corner. The song was often accompanied by a complimentary dessert in return for the embarrassment.

Some students just had their closest friends over for a small get-together. Reminiscing over the past year with some birthday cake was a great bonding experience.

Birthdays were a good reason for throwing a huge party with tons of friends to celebrate. This was the best way to get friends together, especially ones that seemed to disappear. As Christy Sander said, "It is so funny when you are away at school on your birthday, you friends just seem to come out of the woodwork."

Some parents even came to visit their son or daughter to keep within the tradition of birthdays at home. This was a welcome treat for most poor college students whose parents usually took them out for a nice dinner.

Birthdays, no matter how they were spent, were a time to celebrate.

-Valerie Leighton

CELEBRATING. A group of close friends gather together for a birthday. These girls were a happy bunch crammed into a small dorm room.

SUITE BIRTHDAY. Suitemates decorate their suite for Erin Roache's birthday. Decorations made a dorm feel more like home, especially for a birthday.

LET'S EAT. Thomas Miller enjoys cake at a friend's birthday party. Many students liked reliving their childhood with cake and a good old-fashioned party.

HAPPY 21ST! Beth Anne Howie blows out the candles on her chocolate cake. Her twenty-first birthdays were definitely a time to celebrate.

SMILE. Michelle Stough, Ellen Osborne, and Jennifer Ann Martin smile at the camera as Ellen gets ready to blow out the candles. Each year the birthday cake seemed to get smaller as more candles were added.

SINGING. Sarah Allen and Stephanie Erb prepare for their Madison Singers' performance at a local church. Cultural groups on campus often added to religious gatherings.

Magin

IN MASS. The processional before mass is a tradition. The CCM house provided a common ground for Catholic students.

HELPING OUT. This group of devoted Intersivity students spent their Spring Break in Florida. They helped rebuild houses that were destroyed by the hurricane.

"Religion is the vehicle through which we gain a deeper, more spiritual meaning of life."

-Senior
drew Monscur

ALL DRESSED UP. These girls get ready for an evening of dancing. They went to the JMU BSU Winter Semi-formal with some VMI cadets.

Faith In Numbers

Seeking support through religion

During a time filled with changes and decisions, when students were almost overwhelmed with new ideas and outlooks, a constant source of strength or refuge was always welcome. For many JMU students, this constant was found in their religious lives.

There were many ways for students to become involved in religious activities on campus. Student organizations and university sponsored groups offered students both a place to get together with friends of a common faith and a support group. Two of the largest groups on campus were the Baptist Student Union and the Catholic Campus Ministry.

The BSU was a multi-denominational organization sponsored by Southern Baptist churches. Besides its regular fellowship meetings and bible studies, BSU also did community work and sponsored social events. "We want to give people an alternative to the typical party scene, said senior Scott Williamson. "A lot of people are vulnerable at this time of their lives and its easy to be swayed by conventional standards." CCM was mainly a student run organization and its relaxed atmosphere appealed to many students. Frequent retreats and other ministry projects allowed students to get involved easily while spending time together socially. "CCM is one of the fastest growing groups around," said Brian Carpinelli. "I think that says a lot about how important the group is and the needed service it provides."

Smaller groups also flourished on campus. InterVarsity Christian Fellowship was another Baptist group, and the Wesley Foundation catered to the needs of Methodist students. Hillel was the traditional Jewish organization on campus.

Students didn't have to be part of an organized group to practice their religion on campus. Many students found that local churches were more than happy to see them on Sunday mornings. "I go to a local church with several friends almost every week, and the people couldn't be nicer," said commented Andrea Bryant.

Some students found that the expanded viewpoints and opinions offered on campus were enough to make them reconsider past religious decisions. "I am taking advantage of this opportunity to find out what is right for me, without my family or anyone else impressing their views on me," said junior Jeff Gothelf. "That is one of the greatest parts of college: the freedom to chose to be who you want to be."

-Kristi Shakelford

A Step Above

Student leaders get a head start on the future

James Madison University specialized in involvement. It was a school that attracted well rounded individuals and allowed them to show off their talents. On any given day, one looked around campus and saw the hustle and bustle of students running from meeting to meeting, helping to make everything run smoothly.

Some students, however, stood out just a little bit above the rest. These were the exceptional student leaders, the ones that worked behind the scenes with faculty and administration and on the front lines, helping to create the reputation for excellence that JMU has acquired.

Student Ambassadors were one of the more well known groups around campus recognized for their leadership skills. Their motto was "Students serving students past, present and future." They provided various services to aspiring students, students enrolled at JMU, and alumni. However, there was a lot that Ambassadors did that was often unknown. Aside from the tours that were given daily around campus, they assisted with Homecoming, Parents Weekend, Special Visitation Day, and various conferences and special events. The application process that one went through to become a Student Ambassador was quite an extensive and competitive one. Tamara Goorezitz, the second vice-president for the organization, said "the reason that so many students apply to become a student ambassador is because they recognize the kind of leaders that we draw and the dedication that we have to JMU."

Without the intense dedication of about thirty people, students would not have been able to, twice a week, become more informed about both JMU and the "outside world". The staff of The Breeze held both its regular meetings and production meetings twice a week, usually lasting up to twelve hours. Because this was such an enormous task, an exceptional leader was imperative. The Editor in Chief, Heather O'Neil, said that it was a full time job that required a commitment of about 30-40 hours a week. Of her leadership position, she said, "It is hard to be a manager in any situation, but when you are managing peers it is even more difficult. For me, it has been a learning experience about how to work with people effectively."

One of the most outstanding leadership recognitions at JMU was to be accepted to become a Miller Fellow. After an extensive selection process, usually a handful are accepted every year. The student was then a Miller Fellow for a year, and was assigned to work for a Vice President of JMU to get a feel for what they do in their division. Meredith Adams, who was a Miller Fellow in 1993, said that "it was an opportunity to learn about leadership from the administrator's point of view." Every semester, each Miller Fellow worked on a project, attended meetings with their administrator, and met with the other Miller Fellows, just to name a few of their responsibilities. The members had impeccable leadership qualities. It was an extreme honor to be selected.

For everything that was accomplished at JMU, there was a leader behind it. To many, this leader was unknown, often working behind the scenes. It was this rare leadership ability that will make JMU's leaders of today the nation's leaders of tomorrow.

-Sara Ringdahl

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

Magin
WORKING FOR THE BOSS. Dr. Carriers office leads some students into successful careers. Students working in the President's office received valuable experience for the future.

"Student leaders are very important because they act as a liason between students and administration. Groups like SGA and Student Ambassadors really help maintain that relationship."

-Senior
Tim Cooke

MR. PRESIDENT. Josh Pringle sits back in one of his classrooms. He served as the SGA President for the year.

IN THE LEAD. JMU student ambassadors are responsible for giving tours to prospective students that come to look at JMU. The ambassadors went through a rigorous application and training process to gain the status they earned.

Magin

Magin

Magin

BREEZIN' THROUGH. Heather O'Neil edits story for an upcoming edition of the newspaper. She was the editor-in-chief for the breeze during the 1993-94 school year.

Staying In

A relaxing alternative to the party scene

Magin

GOURMET CHEF. Brian Carpinelli prepares a special meal for friends. Cooking dinner or making brownies and cookies was a way many spent their evenings at home.

BLOCKBUSTER. Friends gather in their apartment to watch a favorite movie. Renting movies was one of the most popular ways to spend an evening at home.

Weekends at JMU were certainly anticipated by all students. Starting with Monday and continuing through the week, plans were made and expectant students were relieved as soon as they stepped out of their last Friday class. Of course, some lucky students had a three day weekend because their schedules did not include Friday classes. Usually, students had plenty of parties and other events to attend over the weekend, but sometimes a hectic and stressful week called for a weekend of relaxation.

This was a great time to head over to Blockbuster Video and stock up on some movies. Then call up and order a pizza and some soda to satisfy the hunger pains. Once everything was together, it was time to cuddle up under the blankets and fall asleep to the movie. Sometimes staying in on Friday or Saturday was a welcome change.

Other times, classes were so overwhelming that taking a weekend off was not an option, it was necessary in order to catch up or keep up with work. These were the worst times because students had to give up a lot of weekend activities. Early to bed and early to rise seemed to be the worst case scenario for a weekend.

There were also times that students were just too tired to go out. As Andrea Earle said, "We went hiking one day and by the time we got home it was really late and we could not get motivated to get back on our feet to get to a party."

Sometimes the weather proved to be a deterrent because when the rain poured or the temperatures were freezing, students preferred to stay inside.

The one common relief for all students on the weekend was no classes to attend.

-Valerie Leighton

CARD SHARKS. Erin Roche, John Seeley, and Tim Cooke are in stiff competition during game of spades. Card and board games are a great way to relax at home.

For me, weekends are a time to hang with friends. It's hard to stay in knowing that everyone else is out having fun.

-Junior Patti Schmitz

DECISIONS, DECISIONS. Jeff Wells flips through the TV guide, trying to decide what to watch. Everyone enjoyed staying in to catch up with a favorite show.

CUDDLED UP. Mike Onuska gets cozy on the couch. Snuggling under a favorite blanket by yourself or with a honey was a favorite way to watch television.

Shoot Yourself!

"Will you put me in the yearbook?"

It was a phrase all members on the yearbook staff heard day in and day out from friends and acquaintances across campus. So, in keeping with long-standing tradition, the book includes this section, known as "Shoot Yourself," to give other members of the JMU community an opportunity to influence who gets pictured in the yearbook.

For many, this was the perfect opportunity to brush up on photography skills. Friends got together to have some fun and get creative with their cameras.

Photos on the following pages were the staff's favorite pictures. The 1993-94 Bluestone staff would like to thank everyone that participated by submitting photos.

Soaring

Am I Too Old
For This?
Armed And Ready

Into the Swing of Things

Patchwork Circle of Laughs

Modern Day Geronimo

Hangin' On

ENVISIONING VICTORY. This JMU baseball player thinks about the upcoming game as he warms up. High levels of concentration and a winning attitude were characteristics of JMU athletes.

Whether it was preparing for a championship game, or just a daily practice, JMU athletes understood the work ethic necessary to be winners as they strived toward their

Visions & Dreams

JMU athletic teams went through their share of ups and downs throughout the year, but one constant characteristic of the programs was the desire to win and the determination to overcome challenges.

Feeling that no obstacle was insurmountable, and that second place was not good enough was the hallmark of the most successful programs. This could be seen through efforts of the field hockey team. Despite having lost to defending national champion Old Dominion three times during the regular season, the Lady Dukes were prepared to make the most of their at-large bid to the NCAA tournament, and went into their first game against ODU with thoughts of an upset. Their attitude and belief in their talent paid off as they came home with a victory and advanced to the next round.

DEDICATION. This member of the women's golf team practices her game at Lakeview golf course. Hours of long practices were required for all sports at JMU.

Other teams, such as the men's soccer and basketball teams, thrilled spectators and lived up to expectations as they pulled out close victories and surpassed goals. The men's soccer team's perfect CAA final record was an inspiration not only to the team, as they advanced to the NCAA tournament, but also to students and fans, as we saw that dreams could in fact come true with enough dedication and hard work.

Editor: Joe Olson

Asst. Editor: Jennifer Howard

LACROSSE

Sticking to It

JMU lacrosse faces top rated teams with power and conviction

Scoreboard

JMU	vs	Opp
8		Princeton 11
5		at Penn State 8
9		Delaware 5
13		American 1
6		at Loyola, Maryland 9
10		Richmond 4
8		Old Dominion 10
21		Shippensburg 5
6		at William & Mary 7
4		Virginia 11
16		Delaware 12
8		Old Dominion 11
8		at Towson State 9
3		at Yale 8
16		at Boston College 9
8		at Maryland 12

The women's lacrosse team battled through another demanding season, ending the year with a 6-10 record overall. Despite the losing record, the Dukes still pulled off some crucial wins during the course of the season; victories that gave the Dukes a respectable 3-3 record in the Colonial Athletic Association.

The season began with difficulty as the team lost its first two matches to nationally ranked Princeton (#2) and Penn State (#3). Despite losing these games, the Dukes still acquired better shooting percentages in each match, especially against Princeton. In that game, the Lady Dukes shot .727 over Princeton's weak .366, an indication of the Dukes' superior defense.

Following these losses, JMU came alive. They started off defeating CAA rivals Delaware by the score of 9-5 and American in a 13-1 blowout. In the game against the Eagles, JMU scored the first point with only 1:37 into play. By the time the game was over, nine JMU players had tallied points in the scoring column.

The following week, the Dukes rallied another CAA win over Richmond. Being undefeated in the CAA gave the team renewed confidence in their ability. "We played as a team," said attack wing Maureen Lacy. "We had a strong defense and worked well together."

Unfortunately, the Dukes slowly lost momentum for the remainder of the season. A demolishing of Shippensburg in early April, a victory over Delaware in the CAA Championships, and a final win at Boston College were the Dukes' last shots of glory. A 1-1 record in the CAA tournament prevented the team from advancing to the semi-finals, ending their season at 6-10 overall.

Although overall the team as a whole wasn't as successful as they had hoped, JMU's individuals shone. Guard Lara Juenger was ranked 10th in the nation in saves percentages, Carolyn Carr and Danyle Heffernan were selected to the All-CAA First team, and Caryn Habay, Diane Heffernan and Juenger were selected to the All-CAA Second team. "Being selected to the All-CAA First team was such a great honor," commented Carolyn Carr. "It was like they were telling me I was Virginia's finest."

Diane Hollowell was selected to the U.S. Squad, South I Team, and the Virginia I team. "Each time I was told which team I made, I fell deeper into shock," said Hollowell. Carolyn Carr, Caryn Habay, Nicole Habay, Danyle Heffernan, and Katherine Robinson also earned recognition, joined Hollowell in the Virginia I team.

-Roland Massa

Courtesy of Sports Media Relations

Breeze

1993 James Madison University Lacrosse Team

Kneeling (left to right): Maureen Lacy, Kathrine Robinson, Megan Boyle, Co-captain Troyhann Santos, Danyle Heffernan, Lara Juenger, Tracey Johnson, Nicole Habay. Standing: Jen Gicking, Caryn Habay, Carolyn Carr, Diane Hollowell, Kathryn Mangano. Alisa Lupo, Meg Cortezi, Susan Brinkworth, Laurie Ann Dick, Karlene Lydic, Laura Whelan.

DEFENSE! Defensive sensation Karlene Lydic, takes the ball away from the rushing UVA player. Lydic was one of JMU's finest, starting in every game she played.

Breeze

Breeze

SCOOP IT UP! Maureen Lacy prepares to scoop up the ball to thrust it into the opposite net. Lacy shot .464 for the season in the attack wing position.

GET EM! Attack wing Kathrine Robinson goes after a UVA player with determination. Robinson had 47 attempts at her opponents' goals.

BASEBALL

Strong Offensive

JMU baseball goes into new season playing on their field of dreams

Scoreboard

JMU	vs	Opp.
8	George Washington	10
14	Bucknell	1
8	Bucknell	1
4	Liberty	7
2	at Virginia	1
2	at South Carolina	11
1	at South Carolina	10
2	at Georgia Southern	3
0	at Georgia Southern	3
9	at College of Charleston	8
5	at Coastal Carolina	2
12	at East Carolina	14
1	at East Carolina	2
0	at East Carolina	1
9	Rider	2
4	Virginia Military	2
10	UNC Wilmington	7
8	UNC Wilmington	2
5	UNC Wilmington	6
14	Maryland-Eastern Shore	0
4	Maryland-Eastern Shore	0
15	Coppin State	1
9	Coppin State	5
8	C.W. Post	4
4	at George Mason	10
7	at George Mason	8
11	Maryland	14
6	at Towson	14
4	at Maryland	12
12	Virginia Commonwealth	4
4	Towson State	4
3	Towson State	3
2	Virginia Tech	10
3	at Radford	4
10	Howard	0
4	Howard	0
14	Howard	1
6	Howard	2
6	Virginia	4
4	at Liberty	8
5	at Virginia Commonwealth	6
4	at Virginia Tech	9
4	Richmond	4
6	Richmond	7
1	Richmond	0
13	Old Dominion	8
4	East Carolina	8
5	Richmond	1
4	George Mason	15

The James Madison baseball team once again fought through a tough season, finishing with a 24-24-1 overall record. The roller coaster season was filled with inconsistent play, and ultimately resulted with two players signing major league contracts and a coaching change.

The season began indecisively for the Dukes, with an alternating pattern of wins followed by losses for the first two weeks. This trend eventually took a turn for the worse with a four game losing streak against South Carolina and Georgia Southern, against whom the Dukes fought two games a piece. These losses were the beginning of a week and a half long road trip for JMU, during which the team only managed to pull off two wins out of ten games.

The Dukes did not take the field again for sixteen days following their last road game due to inclement weather. This caused eleven games to be either canceled or postponed. However, this break in playing time seemed to prove beneficial to the Dukes. During this two week period of inactivity, the team spent long hours practicing important plays and strategic maneuvers they planned to use upon returning to the field. These practices substantially helped the team's game, allowing them to come back to win their next nine out of ten games, beginning with a stomping of Rider University, winning with an astonishing score of 9-2. "The sixteen days in the cages may have been a blessing," said head coach Ray Heatwole.

For the next week, JMU continued with their winning ways, crushing Coppin State in a doubleheader sweep, their only loss being a score of 6-5 to UNC Wilmington in an 11 inning showdown. As the team became confident that they had regained their winning consistency, tragedy struck. The winning streak came to a rapid end with two consecutive losses at George Mason, followed by further defeat at Maryland and Towson diamonds.

The Dukes met up with Towson State again on April 18 for a doubleheader at Long Field. Ironically, both games ended up with a 4-3 score. Unfortunately, JMU could only claim one of these games as a victory. Following losses to Virginia Tech and Radford, the Dukes competed in a weekend romp with the Howard Bison in a series of two consecutive doubleheaders the weekend of April 24-25. The Dukes successfully denied Howard a single win, sweeping the entire series 10-0, 14-1, and 6-2, and thereby SAFE? Jason Bagby slides into home plate attempting to avoid being tagged by the catcher. Speed and agility were the deciding factor between safe and out.

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

FOLLOW THROUGH! Catcher Rob Mummau looks to see if his throw makes it to first base in time to make the out. The catcher was a crucial part of the line-up due to his quick-action thinking.

Guilfoyle

"We had a rough start, but I feel we started playing like we knew we could midway through the season, especially after our big delay period." -Rick Croushore

GOOD GAME. Chris Williams discusses the outcome of the game with President Ronald Carrier. "Uncle Ron" tried to attend as many JMU events as he could.

Guilfoyle

STRIKE THREE. Pitcher Casey Brookens tries to stike out the player up at bat. The Dukes relied heavily on the power of their pitchers.

IT'S OUT OF THERE! Chuck Cruse sends the ball flying out into space. JMU had a high batting average in the first three innings.

Guilfoyle

SPEED DEMON! Chris Williams pours on the speed to get to first base. A great run meant the difference between "safe" and "out".

WINDING-UP. JMU Pitcher Kevin Woody sets up his target as he winds-up. Woody's had an impressive ERA of 3.69 for the 1993 season.

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

FLY BALL! Outfielder Chad Ginder takes a giant leap to catch the fly ball. The JMU defense was important key to the Dukes' success.

Strong Offensive

JMU baseball goes into new season playing on their field of dreams

BASEBALL

Adding four more wins to their record. The Dukes strived to finish up their season with positive results. However, this proved to be a challenge JMU was not fully ready to face, as the team wrapped up the last week of play, with two wins, four losses, and a tie.

Upon reaching the tournament, the Dukes played at .500 for the entire time they were there, which only lasted four games. This average prevented the Dukes' from advancing to the semi-finals, and the season came to a quick end for both the players and coaches.

Assistant Coach Kevin Anderson accredited the success of the team to teamwork, and the extraordinary efforts of certain players, as well. "Rob Mummau had a great year," said Anderson. Mummau batted .416 for the year and was drafted by the Toronto Blue Jays. This accomplishment gave the the Dukes their 18th consecutive year that one of JMU's finest was drafted into a major league camp. Pitcher Rick Croushore was also selected to a major league camp. Croushore signed as a free agent with the St. Louis Cardinals. Centerfielder Joe Higman finished with a .277 batting average for the year and made some tremendous plays in the outfield for the Dukes. Higman was also selected to play for the Valley Baseball League and had an exceptional season with the Winchester Royals. Exceptional pitching credit went to Scott Forster, who threw 6-3 for the year, and freshman sensation Casey Brookens, who began his career at JMU with several big games.

The players on the team also had things to say about their season. "I feel our performance could have been better, but overall, it was still a good season in that we played as a team," said shortstop Rob Mummau. Pitcher Rick Croushore agreed with his teammate, saying, "We were very compatible as teammates, and we all worked closely together to play the best we could."

Following the 1993 season, head coach Ray Heatwole retired, opening the position to assistant coach Kevin Anderson. When asked about his expectations for the coming year, coach Anderson commented, "We don't want to be an average team. We have much higher expectations, and we are expecting a great year. We had an excellent recruiting year, and I am extremely excited about the upcoming season.

The 1993 season proved to be a challenge for the Dukes, but the overall success of the team still remained and would catapult them into another winning season.

-Roland Massa

Individual Highlights

Rob Mummau

All-CAA Team
All-State Team
All-East Team

Finished 5th on all-time hit list, 229
Drafted in the 29th round and signed with Toronto Blue Jays

Rick Croushore

Signed as a free agent with the St. Louis Cardinals

Team Highlights

Marked the 21st consecutive season in which the program post a non-losing season. The Dukes had posted 20 consecutive winning campaigns before finishing with the .500 record in 1993.

Remains the only Virginia Division I program to advance to the College World Series (1983).

With signing of Mummau and Croushore, the program has had a player sign a pro contract for 18 straight season.

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

1993 James Madison University Baseball

Front Row (L to R) : Casey Brookens, Dave Boniello, Billy Beane, Mike Venafro, Paul Koch, Jason Bagby, Rob Mummau, Kevin Nehring, Brad Edsell, Ian Rogol. Second Row: Susanna Lerner, Jeff Kaufman, Scott Forster, Bobby Rubin, Chuck Cruse, Chad Ginder, Jay Johnson, Jeff Hafer, Dan McCahn, Jason Troilo, Head Coach Ray Heatwole. Third Row: Asst. Coach Kevin Anderson, Joe Higman, Greg Whiteman, Brian McNichol, Rick Croushore, Kevin Woody, Devin Floyd, Chris Slonaker, Mark Schwartz, Greg Bulheller.

LEADING OFF. Runner Kevin Nehring has his eye locked on the pitcher's movements. Stealing bases took a lot of judgment by the runner.

MEN'S TRACK AND FIELD

Soaring High

JMU men's track and field leap over competition in new season

Individual Highlights

Jerry Roney

*JMU's Athlete of the Year
All-American in 110-Meter Hurdles
CAA Track Athlete of the Year
East Team- U.S. Olympic Festival
Jesse Owens Classic Champion
All-American in 55-Meter Hurdles
IC4A Outdoor Champion, 110-Meter
Hurdles and 400-Meter Hurdles*

Matt Holthaus

*JMU's Male Scholar-Athlete of the Year
All-American in 1,500-Meters
CAA Champion in 1,500-Meters
VaSid Academic All-State First Team
Fifth in 1500-Meters, IC4A*

Kelly Hawkins

*All-East in 200-Meters Outdoors
All-East 4x400 Relay
NCAA Qualifier in 55-Meters*

Brad Meade

CAA Champion in 400-Meters

Mike Marshall

Fourth Place in 3000-Steeplechase, IC4A

Even before the official start of the spring season, the men's track team could be found in Bridgeforth Stadium running the track, working up a sweat and preparing for the upcoming season. Coach Bill Walton's daily preseason practices allowed team members to prepare themselves to excel at their highest levels.

Upon the official opening of the track season, the team got off to a great start. In late March, the team excelled when they travelled to Raleigh, North Carolina for the Raleigh Relays. The following week, the team headed to Williamsburg for the Colonial Relays. The 4x200 meter relay team, run by Eric Jones, Kelly Hawkins, Tevis Branson and Jerry Roney, captured first place in both meets.

At the CAA Championships, the team performed exceptionally, placing within the top ten in almost every event. Specific instances of victory came in the 400 meters, in which Brad Meade placed first, and the 1500 meters, in which Matt Holthaus placed first.

The JMU invitational, held in April at Bridgeforth Stadium, hosted such top teams as Seton Hall, George Mason and Navy. Many of the top teams from the East competed in the invitational, which Walton considered the highlight of the season. "There were four or five excellent teams who gave us stiff competition," said runner Chris Kearns. "There were many quality teams to present a challenge for us."

Throughout the season, many long-standing school records were broken. Matt Holthaus not only set a new school record in the 800 meters, but also qualified for the 1500 meters in the NCAA Championships, at which he finished seventh. Kelly Hawkins also received various honors, and placed in many important competitions.

Jerry Roney had yet another outstanding season at JMU. He was named JMU's male athlete of the year, received countless recognitions from the CAA and placed first in numerous events. Roney ended his collegiate career on a high note, breaking three of his own previous records, as well as being named All-American at the NCAA championships, where he placed eighth in the 110 meter hurdles.

As one of the top six track teams on the East Coast, the Dukes successfully completed another excellent season. Led by experienced competitors such as Roney, Holthaus and Hawkins, and trained under the veteran coaching of Bill Walton, the men's track team demonstrated their ability in the round to their opposition, but more importantly, to themselves.

-Amy Keller

Magin

Guilfoyle

1993 Men's Track and Field Team

First Row: Kelly Hawkins, Pat Jennings, Mirah Minarik, Paul Mbye, Shawn Foreman, Eric Jones, Brad Meade, Tevis Branson, Justin Besachie, Marshall Smith Second Row: Sam Brown, Tom Jeffrey, Richard Pierce, Gavin McCarty, David Holliday, Brian Kaupa, Chris Baker, Chris Kearns, Phil Dickenson Third Row: Asst. Coach Patrick Henner, Jon Schlesinger, Mike Marshall, Jeffrey Thompson, Keith Grayson, Matt Holthaus, Denys Fabiato, Coach Bill Walton.

COME ON! Matt Holthaus pours on the speed as a SHU runner tries to overtake him. Matt Holthaus was JMU's Male Scholar-Athlete of the year for 1993.

SUPERMAN. Chris Kearns flies through the air straining to outjump the competition. Strength and agility were required to make a jump successful.

Gulfoyle

"If this wasn't the best track team in JMU history, then it certainly was the most highly talented." -Coach Walton

FINAL LAP. Three JMU runners take the final curve pouring on the speed. The last few meters of the race were often the hardest on all runners

CONCENTRATION! A JMU runner focuses on the finish line in front of him. The JMU track team practiced at the Godwin Track year round.

Gulfoyle

Gulfoyle

Gulfoyle

HANDOFF. Eric Jones prepares to handoff to his teammate. Relays took much practice and preparation in order to succeed.

Guilfoyle

PUSH IT! Krista Purka races to the finish after clearing the last hurdle. The hurdles require speed as well as a good sense of timing.

HAND-OFF. Erica Bates quickly hands-off to teammate Jill Baumgartner in a mad rush to get to the finish. Relays took extra concentration and practice to execute a perfect hand-off.

Running Strong

JMU women's track and field take on competition with power and grace

The women's track and field team worked hard through a competitive and demanding year to pull through with a successful record. When the season came to an end, the members of the team could proudly boast of an extremely successful year filled with hard-earned victories and inspiring moments of glory.

From the start, the women competed fiercely and aggressively to bring home early victories. The season began in early December with promising performances at the Navy Invitational in Annapolis, Maryland, and the Comfort Inn/University Bookstore Invitational in Blacksburg, Virginia. Each competition turned out to have positive results for JMU, especially at the Blacksburg meet, at which two team members, Tiombe Hurd and Amy Taylor, placed first in their respective events.

willfoyle

Following a long break between the fall and spring semesters, the team's schedule rapidly picked up in intensity. Almost every weekend, the team would head off to a different location for another grueling weekend of hearty competition.

In early February, the Dukes attended another Navy Invitational at Annapolis. However, this time, JMU performed with more energy and enthusiasm than the previous time they met up with Navy. Three JMU runners, Erica Bates, Susan Ferrel, and Amy Taylor, all placed first in their respective competitions.

Due to their successful performances, JMU was invited to the NCAA Championships twice. The first instance occurred on March 13 in Indianapolis, Indiana, where Tiombe Hurd placed third in the triple jump. The week of June 1-5, Hurd once again attended the Championship to represent JMU, competing in the triple jump, but unfortunately, losing ground and placing eighth.

At the CAA Championships in Wilmington, N.C., six JMU athletes placed in the finals, including four in first place. Overall, the Dukes came in third in the competition.

On April 17, the JMU Invitational was held at Bridgeforth Stadium, and the Dukes were given the chance to show their stuff on their home field. The team performed exceptionally well, capturing three first place awards, as well as second and third place recognition.

Throughout the rest of the season, the team competed in numerous meets all over the country, and they placed in every competition to complete a successful season.

-Roland Massa

Individual Highlights

Erica Bates

All-East, Indoor 500-Meter Dash Team's Most Outstanding Runner

Susan Ferrel

Athlete of the Meet- George Mason Invit.

Stephanie Hebert

All-East, 10,000-Meter Run

Tiombe Hurd

*7TH-Ranked American Women, Tri. Jump
All American in Indoor Triple Jump
All American in Outdoor Triple Jump
East Team, U.S. Olympic Festival
CAA Champion in Triple Jump
Jesse Owens Invitation Champion
Team's Most Outstanding Player in Field Events*

Amy Taylor

VaSID Academic All-State Second Team

1993 James Madison Women's Track and Field Team

Front Row (left to right): Mona Gupta, Theresa Prebish, Kristen Purka, Middle Row: Janai Hill, Bridgette Fudala, Amy Taylor, Cindy Price, Jessica Velanzon Back Row: Melissa Adams, Erica Bates, Stephanie Herbert

TEAMWORK! Runners Melissa Adams and Stephanie Herbert pace each other in the long distance run. Runners had to pace themselves during longer events.

Standing Tall

JMU cheerleading takes on a new coach and a new vision for the season

"We really have a new outlook on cheerleading as a sport."

-Coach Cobb

The JMU cheerleading squad took on a new, more serious outlook this year. The squad has always had an abundance of dedication and spirit, but this year they got additional support from their new coach Jason Cobb. They were also fortunate to have two returning members from the previous year's squad, Terri Fleming and Bill Scudder, who became the new varsity co-captains. The captains were always there to help the less experienced members get used to their new role as a cheerleader as well as keep the team's spirits high.

Unbeknownst to JMU students, the cheerleading squad worked extremely hard, long hours throughout the year. The squad displayed an ongoing commitment as they went from cheering for football to basketball to practicing for nationals. "We've gotten a lot more serious about lifting weights, staying in shape, and about practice in general," said Coach Cobb.

Indeed, the members of the squad had to be in top physical condition to be prepared for their vigorous schedule. This schedule included appearances at sporting events and other school activities, as well as some tournaments and competitions in which they participated. Being a member of the squad required a strong proficiency in a variety of different skills such as gymnastics, flexibility, balance, strength, endurance, and a little bit of acting, as well. All of this activity was in addition to their regular class schedules and other school activities, which kept the cheerleaders extremely busy.

"It was really hard for us last year because we always had to run our own practices," stated Fleming. "With Jason (Cobb) coming here, we really have a new, more serious outlook and a lot more structure to our practices." Although Coach Cobb worked the team very hard, the cheerleaders seemed to appreciate his dedication and spirit. Respect was something very important to the squad, and they were not afraid to devote themselves to hard work and lots of practice to earn it.

This year marked an important turning point for the James Madison cheerleading squad. The squad had a successful year, and they received a lot of recognition for their concerted efforts. They gained new leadership in Coach Cobb and, even more, respect from their fellow students. "They are really dedicated to the sport," said Coach Cobb, "and that is very crucial if we want to be a great squad." Each member of the team was truly a leader and visible representative of James Madison University. It was their school spirit and leadership that gave the squad the edge it needed to be such a superior group and a team to reckon with on and off the field.

-Jennifer Howard

ROW OF CHEERS! The cheerleading squad gives the crowd a spectacular sight to see. All home crowds were entertained by the squad.

PYRAMID! The JMU cheerleading squad shows off their stuff. Moves such as this proved that the Dukes were in a class by themselves.

Guilfoyle

GET EXCITED! Terri Fleming and Joseph Linn punch out a cheer to excite the crowd. The cheerleaders led the fans in many cheers throughout games:

FROZEN MOMENT. Natalie Evans and Brian Hutchins catch a special moment with the Duke Dog. Duke was always ready to smile for the camera.

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

1993 James Madison University Cheerleading Squad
 Front Row (L to R): Prissy Nguyen, Courtney Coleman, Natalie Evans, Karri Hahn, Leni Sngnitan, Terri Fleming, Katy Dudley, Heather Mack. Second Row: Brian Rivero, Dave Mills, Brian Hutchins, Bill Scudder, Rodney Atienza, Joseph Linn, Che Turry, Nathan Lyons.

LOOKING GOD. Katie Dudley gives the crowd a smile during halftime. In addition to cheering at games, the cheerleaders also competed in competitions during the year.

ARCHERY

Target Sighted

JMU archery team shows competition their advanced skill and determination

Individual Highlights

Jeff Koch

Virginia Indoor Champion

Amy Murphy

Virginia Indoor Champion

*JMU Invitational Tournament Champion
13th at U.S. Intercollegiate Championship
Women's Team's Most Outstanding Player*

Andy Puckett

All-American

East Region Champion

Atlantic City Classic Champion

*JMU Invitational Tournament Champion
4th at U.S. Intercollegiate Championship
Men's Team's Most Outstanding Archer*

Archery was a sport of skill, requiring good aim and intense concentration. From medieval Sherwood forest to present day shooting ranges, archery was a sport that transcends time and space. At JMU, archery was taken very seriously, as was evident from the archery team's exceptional final standings of 54-20. Successfully making it to the nationals in 1993, the mixed team went 21-6, winning the East Regional Championships and the Atlantic City Classic.

Jeff Koch and Andy Puckett led the men's team to a 25-7 record. Koch conquered the Virginia Indoor Championship, shooting 537. Puckett, honored with All-American, won numerous titles, including the East Region Champion and the Atlantic City Classic champion. He was also awarded men's team most outstanding archer.

The women's team also had an successful year, ending the season with an 8-7 record. Amy Murphy led the Lady Dukes in archery, her power and precision leading her to be titled women's team's most outstanding archer. Murphy also scored big wins at the Virginia Indoor Championship and the JMU Invitational Tournament. "My personal best was at Manassas," Murphy admits. "It was a different type of tour; something I had never shot before. It was the hardest I've ever shot, but also the best." Jen Jordan also had a positive impact on the team. She placed in every tournament in which the team competed, and in her own words, "The most fun was at the nationals in Sacramento, California, when we shot against a Japanese team. It was neat to see their different styles of shooting."

All three archery teams, the men's, women's, and mixed teams, drastically improved on last year's record. The men's team went from an average 13-13 record in 1992 to a impressive 25-7. The women took their 4-7 record and coveted it to a winning record of 8-7. When their power was combined, the mixed team went from a record of 14-8 to a record of 21-6. All three teams were a dominant force in the archery world, totally destroying the competition in Atlantic City. "Atlantic City was the highlight of the year," commented Andy Puckett. "We couldn't control our excitement all day long."

With a total record of 54-20, the team on a whole had a successful year. With great expectations for the upcoming year, the archery team hopes to surpass their previous standings to provide their school and their fans with another "on the mark" season.

-Courtney Kellogg

J. Williams

J. Williams

AFTER THE SHOT! Zack Cropper retrieves his arrows after a nearly perfect shot. During practice, the team spent a great deal of time retrieving arrows.

ON TARGET! With precise aim, Jeff Koch prepares to release his arrow. Archery took both concentration and hand-eye coordination.

"We had a great time in Atlantic City, all three teams placed in first." -Archer Jeff Koch BORDERLINE! Mike Oglivie inspects his shot to determine how close to the bullseye the arrow landing. The team practiced many hours on the Hillside field.

ROBIN HOOD! With hopes of hitting the bullseye, Andy Pucket releases the arrow. A quick, smooth release was the key to accuracy.

Williams

J. Williams

Photo Finish

Sports Media Relations helps JMU sports shine in the eyes of the press

"We're a combination of historians, journalists, and analysts."

-Curt Dudley

Have you ever wondered how newspapers across the state got their information on JMU game results? Or how coaches could recall the exact score of games played several years ago? The answer is easy, and could be found in Godwin 220 in the Sports Media Relations office.

JMU Sports Media Relations served as the University's headquarters for information concerning past games, this year's athletes and future schedules. Along with the complete records of JMU varsity sports, the office held information on awards bestowed upon former JMU athletes and clip files of newspaper articles featuring JMU sports.

The responsibility of maintaining these records fell on the shoulders of Sports Media Relations Director Gary Michael, Assistant Directors Curt Dudley and Milla Sue Wisecarver and Broadcast Information Director David Gallatin. The directors performed a plethora of duties ranging anywhere from holding press conferences after games to producing media guides, game programs and seasonal brochures. Curt Dudley claimed, "There's no real succinct description of our jobs. We're really a combination of historians, statisticians, journalists, and analysts." However, this diversity did add an attractive element to the job. "The fact that there are so many different things to be done keeps our jobs exciting," continued Dudley.

The four main Sports Media directors also relied on a network of others to ensure that all sports are covered. The office was staffed with JMU students, who helped keep statistics and wrote press releases. The office also frequently hosted student interns who were interested in pursuing careers in the field of sports information.

As each sports season varied, so did the activities in the Sports Media Relations office. Sports such as basketball and football required a great deal of attention because their games were covered by state-wide media outlets. Producing the media guides and game programs for these sports were very time consuming projects, because they often contained comprehensive scores and statistics from previous seasons.

During the school year, the office was usually booming with activity. Between reporters calling for interviews, incoming and outgoing faxes of scores and coaches stopping by for information on opponents, the atmosphere could get very hectic. But it was through this frenzy of activity and hard work that the JMU athletic programs got media attention they so deserved.

-Heather Gustin

Gulfoyle

WATCHFUL EYE. Senior Kevin Drummond watches the football game carefully as he keeps statistics for Sports Media Relations. Working for Sports Media Relations allowed students to gain practical experience in the field of sports information.

COMPARING NOTES. Milla Sue Wisecarver and Gary Michael discuss ideas for an upcoming sports publication. Even when sports were not in season, the Sports Media Relations directors worked on producing brochures and media guides.

Magin

SOUNDCHECK. Broadcast Information Director David Gallatin monitors the broadcast of the "Coach's Corner" show from the control room. Gallatin produced highlight tapes for various sports throughout the year.

LIGHTS, CAMERA, ACTION! J.J. Davis interviews football head coach Rip Scherer for the "Coaches Corner" weekly show. The show was filmed in the Sports Media Relations office.

FOOTBALL

Yankee Boys

Yankee Conference gives the JMU football team new challenges and a new outlook

Scoreboard

JMU	vs	Opp
55	Lock Haven	3
13	Richmond	20
34	Connecticut	45
35	Jacksonville State	14
10	Massachusetts	33
42	Delaware	38
45	New Hampshire	21
26	William and Mary	31
52	Northeastern	21
42	Villanova	3
21	Boston University	24

When coach Rip Scherer came to JMU in 1991, no one expected the wave of results that would transform the Dukes into a Division I-AA powerhouse. In his first year as head coach at any level, Scherer led the Dukes to a 9-4-0 record and to the second round of 1991 NCAA Division I-AA playoffs. "I came here because I wanted to build a program where there were high expectations," commented coach Scherer.

Before his timely arrival at JMU, the Dukes hadn't beaten a nationally ranked team since 1986 and had never beaten a ranked opponent on the road. In 1991, JMU beat ranked foes which included Central Florida, Appalachian State, Delaware, and William and Mary. In 1992, JMU beat William and Mary and beat defending Division I-AA champion Youngstown State. The Dukes went 6-1 against these ranked teams, falling only to Samford in the quarterfinals of the 1991 NCAA Division I-AA playoffs.

The 1993 season proved to be a challenge for the young JMU team. Many new faces graced the Dukes' roster while JMU itself joined a new football conference. The Yankee conference consisted of 12 strong teams separated into two smaller divisions. The Dukes competed in the Mid-Atlantic Division of the conference with William and Mary, Delaware, Northeastern, Richmond and Villanova. The other six teams, Boston University, Connecticut, Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Massachusetts, competed in the New England Division. JMU had gone 21-19-1 overall against the current members of the conference before the 1993 season began, but in the last seven seasons, the Dukes had only made four of those 19 losses and had taken 18 of the 21 victories.

A Yankee Conference pre-season poll placed the Dukes at an acceptable fourth place behind Delaware, Richmond and Massachusetts. That ranking didn't intimidate the Dukes at all for their first bout against Lock Haven. The Dukes ended up crushing Lock Haven 55-3 in front of about 10,000 screaming fans in Bridgforth stadium. The Dukes ended up with seven touchdowns for the day, with one coming from a punt return. JMU's defense dominated the day, keeping Lock Haven from scoring a single touchdown. Lock Haven finally managed to score with a field-goal late in the second quarter. "It was a great way to start the season off right," said sophomore quarterback Gary Lyons.

JMU's next challenge proved to be one of its toughest all season. The Dukes battled the 14th ranked Richmond Spiders with persistence and determination

Guilfoyle

23..46..69..HIKE! JMU quarterback Mike Crawley prepares to snap the ball. Crawley started as quarterback as a sophomore.

STOMP! Several defensive players attack the quarterback with pure power. JMU's defense worked hard to earn the respect of the team.

Guilfoyle

PEP TALK. The JMU offense huddles together to discuss the next play. The huddle gave the quarterback a way to converse with his players.

TIMEOUT! Safety Robert Smart takes a personal timeout to relieve some stress. At tense moments in the game, players needed to just let it out.

THE SNEAK! Sophomore Mike Crawley executes the ol' quarterback sneak. The quarterback was the centerpoint of the offense.

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

RUNNING STRONG! Quarterback Mike Crawley tries to run away from the Richmond defensiveman. Richmond edged out the Dukes 20-13 with a sudden death play.

FOUR ON ONE! Four JMU defensive players attack Richmond's punter. The JMU defense forced over seven interceptions for over 50 yards.

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

Yankee Boys

FOOTBALL

Yankee Conference gives the JMU football team new challenges and a new outlook

throughout the game. The Spiders led at the half, outscoring the Dukes 13-3. In the second half it was JMU's turn at the helm, scoring a touch down and a field goal to tie the game at 13 apiece. With only seconds on the clock, Richmond was able to slip by the Dukes and score to clinch the win. "We had too many penalties, too many turnovers," said Coach Scherer. "We just lost our poise."

For JMU's third game, the Dukes travelled to Storrs, Connecticut to go up against the University of Connecticut Huskies. Wetland conditions and a strong opposing team left the Dukes with a disappointing 45-34 loss. UConn dominated the game, outscoring JMU 45-20 with only over a minute in the game, but JMU came alive to steal two last minute touchdowns to soften the blow of defeat. "We just didn't execute the plays the way we knew we could," commented senior David McLeod.

"It was if we were watching someone else on the field."

After the loss to Connecticut, the Dukes travelled home to face Jacksonville State. From the very start, JMU controlled the game. In front of 7,000 fans, the Dukes stomped all over Jacksonville State 35-14. "We played as a team," commented Marcus Ordonez, "and as a team, we can go all the way."

A week later the Dukes road tripped to Amherst, Massachusetts to take on UMass. Even though Massachusetts was in the Yankee Conference, the game did not count towards either team's conference record due to the eight conference game limit set before the season started. For JMU, this was a blessing in disguise. The Dukes were over-powered through most of the game, losing 33-10. This game brought the Dukes' record to 2-3, 0-2 in the Yankee Conference.

October 9th proved to be a turn around point for the Dukes. In front of over 11,000 students and alumni, the Dukes took their Homecoming game 42-38 against the first place Delaware Blue Hens. In one of the best games ever played at Bridgeforth Stadium, the Dukes upped their record to 3-3, 1-2 in the Yankee Conference. "Beating Delaware was really the high point of the season," said John Stein. "It told everybody in the conference that we were back and to be prepared."

The following week, the Dukes were ready to face the Wildcats of New Hampshire. The game was the highlight of Parents Weekends, with the Dukes running over the Wildcats 45-21. David McLeod had 187 yards on nine catches, breaking the JMU record of 185 yards receiving during a game, set by Gary Clark in 1982 and tied by McLeod last year against Youngstown State. Quarterback

"Beating Delaware was really a high point of the season. It told everybody that we were back and to be prepared."

-John Stein

THE SNAP! Quarterback Gary Lyons prepares to snap the ball. Lyons had a passing percentage of over .500.

READY FOR ACTION! Doug Kirby and the rest of the Dukes get ready to play some football. The Dukes won a large percentage of their home games.

JMU ATTACK! Defensive end Dion Foxx piles on top of the Delaware runner. Foxx had over five quarterback sacks for a loss of over 25 yards.

ON THE RUN! JMU Quarterback Mark Crawley runs the ball upfield against Richmond. Crawley and Gary Lyons, both sophomores, battled for the quarterback position throughout the season.

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

1993 James Madison University football team

First Row (LtoR): John Lucas, Malik Moody, Corey Roy, Joe Sparksman, David McLeod, Scott Frazier, Derek Radoski, Head coach Rip Scherer, Aldo Canestrari, Scott Layfield, Brad Morris, Trey Weis, Paul Jakatis, Todd Page, Dion Foxx. Second Row: Gerald Smith, Steve McClurikin, Ben Ackison, Mike Woolever, Shaun Marshall, John Allen, Dwight Robinson, Billy Johnson, Clint Dunn, Robert Smart, J.C. Hall, Tyrone Washington, Steve Agee, John Kraus, Kris Orendorff, Brent Secrist. Third Row: Tony Jordan, Mike Long, D'Artagan Townes, David Lee, Ed Perry, Alonzo Bowler, David Bailey, Scott McGuiney, Matt Smith, Matt Ricciardi. Fourth Row: Quincy Waller, Renell Jones, Byran Jackson, Mike Crawley, Kelly Wiltshire, Kelvin Jeter, John Stein, Bill Harper, Brad Hudgins, Lewis Cassada, B.J. Mahoney, Ryan Anderson, Paul Harris, Steve Jackson, Andrew Herbest, Lamont Gooding. Fifth Row: Steven Logan, Akiba Byrd, Julius Williams, Chet Mitchell, DeVenchi Arnold, John Haudenshield, David Byerly, John Coursey, Charlie Toth, Jude Boyle, Tony Perret, Jesse Eppard, Ingram Haley, Sonny Hathaway, Tim Schneider, Rhadshoun Miles, Todd Jones. Sixth Row: Vince Paige, Dwayne Shuler, Samir Saleiman, Delmar Christian, Brian Feola, Marcus Ordenez, Ryan Dawson, Marcus Cuttino, Sean Goodwin, Shawn Harper, Chris Buxton, Brian Smith, Eric Byrom, Jeff Deal, Michael Poskay, Dirk Phillips. Seventh Row: Kelly Rothwell, Oanh Vuong, Arvid Englund, Carter Robinson, Joe Sigfield, T.J. Giles, Owen Graham, Justin Bonser, Aubrey Toole, Tony Booth, Macey Brooks, Doug Kirby, Chris Gill, Kelly Stefanko, Shelia Ridout, Bill Siser. Eighth Row: Julie Hildebrand, Nancy Yago, Nancy Clark, Tyrone Dixon, Tom Quinn, Pete Russell, Don Eck, Rick Clark, Tim Pendergast, Jim Pletcher, Bob Colbert, Shelton Colbert, Jeff Brookshire, Liz Gurney, Mark Rappatone, Leanne Kelley, Dianne York.

Yankee Boys

Yankee Conference gives the JMU football team new challenges and a new outlook

Mike Crawley threw for over 300 yards, adding tremendously to the Dukes' score.

Having two wins in a row under their belt, the Dukes headed to Williamsburg to face William and Mary. Although the two teams had played each other several times before, this was the first time the two had met as members of the Yankee Conference. The Dukes hit the Tribe hard, keeping close to William and Mary throughout the game. But by the end of the game, it was William and Mary that came out on top, outscoring the Dukes 31-26. "Losing to William and Mary was hard because they were the last In-state team we played," commented Paul Harris.

Losing to the Tribe must have affected the Dukes more than they thought because the Dukes were truly out for revenge the following Saturday. The Dukes continued their road trip to Brookline, Mass. to face Yankee opponent Northeastern. From the get-go, JMU dominated the field, whipping Northeastern 52-21.

The Dukes continued their on-the-road winning streak by mashing another Yankee opponent, Villanova. In front of 4,616 fans, JMU streaked passed Villanova 42-3. The Dukes' defense kept the team to only to one field goal, defeating the team soundly on its own field.

JMU ended the season back at home against Boston University. The Dukes battled hard against BU, but in the end Boston University slipped passed with a score of 24-21.

The Dukes ended their third season under Coach Rip Scherer with a record of 6-5, 4-4 in the Yankee Conference. This brought Scherer's overall record at JMU to 19-16-0.

Although JMU did not excel in its first year in the Yankee Conference, it did get some much needed experience that the young team could use in the future. Both quarterbacks, Mike Crawley and Gary Lyons, battled for the top position, and had two seasons to improve their skills, both as quarterbacks and team leaders.

JMU's 1993 season was more a growth experience due to new exposure to the Yankee Conference and a young team that could excel in the future.

-Joe Olson

DOWN HE GOES! Linebacker Clint Dunn tries to pull down Delaware's quarterback. Dunn was JMU's leading defensive player with over 30 unassisted tackles.

"Our wins at Homecoming and at Parents Weekend really showed what we could do in the Yankee Conference."

-Gary Lyons

Guilfoyle

HEY NOW! Head coach Rip Scherer tells a player where to go. Scherer was in charge of every aspect of the team.

Straight Away

JMU Women's golf forces competition to get up to par

WOMEN'S GOLF

"They are one of the most enjoyable teams I've ever had."

-coach Susan LaMotte

Throughout the 1993 season, the women's golf team excelled and displayed proficient skill in all of their competitions. Fourth year coach Susan LaMotte led the Dukes through another successful year, a year which saw the members of the team surpass the standard they had established the previous year.

While women's golf has been one of the most successful sports on campus, it also has been one of the least recognized and unappreciated. An average week for a member of the young squad consisted of over 20 hours of intense practice at the Country Club of Staunton and/or various other local courses. Practices consisted of various drills, playing situations, and nine hole mini-tourneys. A typical tournament wasn't all fun and games, either. The lady Dukes would be on the course by 8:00am, practicing until 9:00am. If it was an 18 stroke round, they could remain on the course till after 3:00pm. If it was a double-round day, the team could be on the course for over eight hours. JMU competed in over 15 tournaments during the fall and spring, putting a great demand on each player. All this, combined with their class schedules, showed how dedicated each individual player had to be. "The team is very young and very dedicated," commented coach LaMotte. "They're a true joy to have."

LaMotte

The Dukes started off their season with an outstanding performance at the Lady Tar Heel Invitational Golf Tournament in Chapel Hill, N.C. Sophomore Niki Crist was JMU's top scorer, placing with a final score of 236. Team members Heather Breeden, Christy Power, Heidi McWilliams and Danielle Zahaba also participated in and scored well at the tournament.

In their second tournament at Longwood, the JMU squad dominated the field, sweeping first, second, and tying for third place. Sophomore Niki Crist took the 1st place title with a two-day score of 153. Freshman Danielle Zahaba took second with a 156 while Heather Williams tied for third.

The highlight of the season came when JMU took its third straight ECAC title. Slick conditions made the tournament more challenging for the Dukes, who trailed behind by three strokes up until the final day. Junior Christy Power was JMU's top finisher, with a three day score of 237, giving her a 5th place finish.

The JMU women's golf team excelled in every tournament they entered, proving that all their hard work and determination was the team's driving force.

-Joe Olson

LaMotte

1993 James Madison University Women's Golf Team

Left to Right: Kristin Dollenburg, Danielle Zahaba, Jessica Adams, Team co-captain Heather Breeden, Niki Crist, Heather Betts, Kim Graln, Heidi McWilliams, Robin Campbell, Head coach Susan LaMotte, Gina Little, Team co-captain Christy Power.

JUST A TAP! Co-captain Heather Breeden prepares to putt the ball. A good putting game was an intricate part of one's golf game.

CONGRATS! Sophomore Niki Crist gets a hand shake from Cindy Ho, the Longwood Coach. Crist won the Longwood tournament with a 153.

LaMotte

LaMotte

PUTTING PRACTICE! Co-captain Christy Power takes a few practice putts before the day's play begins. Power's strong putting game gave her an advantage over other teams.

LINE IT UP! Heidi McWilliams uses her putter to line up the ball and plot her course. McWilliams never thought her high-school geometry would help so much.

LaMotte

LaMotte

FOLLOWING THROUGH! Danielle Zahaba watches her ball soar towards the green. Without proper technique, golfers could not make such difficult shots.

MEN'S SOCCER

Pure Domination

JMU Men's soccer dominates through season breaking records and other team's spirits

Scoreboard

JMU	vs	Opp
4	Davidson	0
1	at Wake Forest	1
3	at Monmouth	0
5	Howard	1
3	at NC- Wilmington	0
3	at East Carolina	0
3	St. Francis (PA.)	0
4	at Mount St. Mary's	0
4	Towson State	0
1	at George Mason	0
3	American	2
1	at Old Dominion	0
1	Virginia Commonwealth	0
3	Campbell	1
3	Richmond	1
2	William and Mary	0
3	at Maryland	2
0	at North Carolina	3
3	East Carolina	0
3	Richmond	0
3	Old Dominion	0
0	at Loyola, Md	1

The men's soccer team had an outstanding year, outdoing themselves from the previous year and going through the whole season almost undefeated. This year's squad was full of agile and energetic players, both new and old, who made the Dukes a force to be reckoned with on the field. This enthusiasm from the players, in addition to the fine coaching of eighth year coach Tom Martin, resulted in their spectacular final season standings of 19-2-1.

From the beginning, the Dukes were off to an explosive start. Early wins against Davidson and Wake Forest showed that the team members were full of energy and determination. JMU crushed Davidson College, a 1992 Final Four competitor, in a 4-0 shutout. The following week, JMU played a tough game against Wake Forest, managing to pull through with a 1-1 tie.

The Dukes finished their road trip with a 3-0 defeat of Monmouth at Monmouth, New Jersey. The game was scoreless for the first 70 minutes, but then the Dukes exploded, scoring three goals in less than ten minutes. Junior forward Brent Bennett scored the first and last goals, giving the team their needed incentive to finish off the game successfully.

Over the weekend of September 17-19, the Dukes picked up two more shutout wins, beginning their Colonial Athletic Association record with impressive stats of 2-0. That Friday, JMU defeated UNC-Wilmington by a score of 3-0. Two assisted goals by Chris Maltese and an unassisted score by Brent Bennett gave the team its first victory of the weekend. On Sunday, the Dukes met up with East Carolina, again winning with a score of 3-0. JMU wrapped up their shutout streak by blasting Mount St. Mary's and Towson State by 4-0, each game.

The following week, the Dukes six-game shutout streak was broken when they beat American University in double overtime by a score of 3-2. The game winning goal was scored by sophomore midfielder Kaarlo Kankkunen. The game began in frustration for JMU, who at half-time were down 1-0. However, early in the second half, the team tied up the game with a goal by junior forward Chad Wilkinson. With ten minutes left in regulation time, JMU scored another goal, putting them up 2-1. However, the game was not over there due to an American goal in the last seconds. The first overtime period was eventless, and then, in the second, came the winning goal by Kankkunen. "We're really playing better as a team than in the beginning of the season," said Kankkunen. The fifth-ranked

Manzo

TIMEOUT! The referee takes a timeout to talk to Bob Johnson. Referees were sponsored by the NCAA.

HAPPY FEET! This player uses his fancy footwork to get the ball away from the other team's player. Soccer depended on a lot of great leg work.

Manzo

Manzo

Manzo

HEADBUTT! This player tries to head the ball into the goal. Soccer challenged players to use a parts of the body, except the hands.

SLIDE IT IN! A JMU player tries to outmaneuver a Campbell defensiveman. Defense was one of the teams strongest features.

Pure Domination

JMU Men's soccer dominates through season breaking records and other team's spirits

"Everyone's proud to be high in the national rankings, but it's not something we will let get to our heads."

-Mark Mathewson

Dukes moved it's season to 10-0-1, 4-0 in the CAA.

JMU then proceeded to defeat the Monarchs of Old Dominion by a shutout score of 1-0. The winning goal was scored in overtime by junior forward Mark Mathewson. "It feels great. I'm just glad to be able to do it for the team," said Mathewson.

JMU's next victim was Virginia Commonwealth. The game started a four game at home series that would play havoc on all four other team's records. VCU was the first to fall, with the Dukes taking the win 1-0. Up next was the team that proved to be a challenge for the Dukes, Campbell. Campbell had also had a large winning streak, ten for the record, and were as thirsty as the Dukes to keep it alive. In front of an unusually large crowd, JMU shattered Campbell's hopes for eleven in a row and upped their own to 12. "Campbell is a very skillful team, so it's a big win for us," commented coach Tom Martin. The Dukes took fourteen shots for the day, while the fighting Camels were only able to shoot for eight. Attendance was at its best, with over 1,000 people attending, some due to Parents Weekend. JMU once again upped its record to 13-0-1, sending Campbell down to 12-2.

After beating a powerhouse like Campbell, it was no wonder that JMU climbed one more notch up Soccer America's Top Ten poll to number four. The Dukes were also ranked in the ICAA coaches poll, but instead of fourth place, the Dukes had to settle with fifth. "Everyone's proud to be this high in the national rankings," commented Mark Mathewson, "but it's not something that we'll let get to our heads."

Next up for the Dukes was CAA rival Richmond. Mark Mathewson helped the Dukes take an early lead in the game with help from teammate David Villareal. Richmond wasn't able to score until after one more JMU goal, this one coming from forward Chad Wilkinson. After it was all over, the Dukes were left on top with a score of 3-1.

JMU gained two more easy victories over William and Mary and Maryland, defeating these opponents by respective scores of 2-0 and 3-2. The Dukes' undefeated season was tragically snapped at the very end, when the team lost to North Carolina by a score of 0-3.

At the CAA Championships, JMU once again came out on top, defeating all three of their opponents in the tournament and claiming the title of CAA Champions for the second straight year. The entire competition was won by three consecutive 3-0 shutouts over East Carolina, Richmond and Old Dominion.

The 1993 NCAA Championships once again called the Dukes to compete, which gave

Manzo

Manzo

HEADS-UP! Two JMU offensive players try to get the ball away from the goalie by using their heads. Manuvers were limited since hands weren't a part of the game.

GRAB HIM! A JMU player does everything he can to stop the other team's advancement. The Dukes' defense help shut-out over 11 teams.

HANDS-OFF! A JMU player uses his whole body to fake out a Howard player. A strong sense of enthusiasm and team unity helped lead the the Dukes to their successfull season.

SOARING! This student flies into the air to recover the ball. Soccer was a very physical sport whose players were often subject to injury.

Manzo

Manzo

GET IT AWAY! This player gets the ball out of the other team's reach. The Dukes allowed only six goals in their first 16 games.

Manzo

COMPETITION! Challenged by his opponents, senior Chris Maltese prepares to move the ball down the field. The senior forward started in almost every game he played.

BELT IT! This player tries to belt the ball away from the other team. Power as well as agility was needed to achieve victory.

Pure Domination

JMU Men's soccer dominates through season breaking records and other team's spirits

MEN'S SOCCER

JMU a second chance at gaining the national champion title which had evaded the team the previous year in a loss to Duke. The team entered this year's competition with higher expectations for themselves.

The team's first matchup was against Loyola in Baltimore, Maryland. Unfortunately, history repeated itself, and the Dukes were eliminated in the first round of competition by a score of 0-1. The team's NCAA hopes were again prematurely discarded, and they returned home empty-handed and broken-hearted. Despite this bad turn of luck, the team received a hero's welcome upon returning to Harrisonburg from their enthusiastic fans, who were proud of the team's seasonal and CAA successful achievements. Coach Tom Martin said, "I'm very proud of this team and all that they have accomplished this year."

The Dukes' success relied heavily on the pure domination of both the offense and the defense. Offensive player Brent Bennet led the Dukes in both goals and points, almost doubling his career record, while Kaarlo Kankkunen led JMU for the number of assists. On the defensive side, Goalie Brian Bailey was ranked second in the nation after the Richmond game, with a .39 goals allowed percentage, while Bob Johnson helped the Dukes have more than 11 shutouts during the regular season.

As a whole, the Dukes 1993 season was an outstanding success, and the final results of 19-2-1 overall proved this point. At the end of this record breaking year, not much could be said negatively towards the Dukes. In the CAA, the team remained undefeated, finishing with stats of 7-0 against their divisional rivals. Final national rankings in Soccer America placed JMU sixth, among such soccer powerhouses as

Manzo

Creighton, UCLA and Duke. JMU also proved that when they were winners, they truly were. The Dukes outscored their competition 56-12 and kept the other teams to 193 shots at the net while JMU boasted 385 attempts.

Despite the apparent overwhelming bad turn of luck that occurred at the end of the season, the team remained confident in their ability and looked forward to improving yet again for the upcoming 1994 season. Even though the Dukes were victorious through the 1993 season they were still young. If the trend of constant improvement remains static for the Dukes, next year will surely become the team's most impressive season ever.

-Roland Massa

"It was so great to finally have a team cream the living daylights out of the competition."

-An anonymous soccer fan

CLINK, CLANK! Enthusiastic fans show their support for the JMU men's soccer team. The fans also played an important role in the team's success.

WATCH OUT! This player tries to get the ball out of the hands of the Campbell goalie. JMU outscored its opponents 44-6 in the first sixteen games.

WOMEN'S SOCCER

On The Run

JMU women's soccer took on tough competition and made their presence known

Scoreboard

JMU	vs	Opp
6		Villanova
0	at	George Mason
1	at	Wright State
3	at	Dayton
0		UNC-Greensboro
1		Virginia
0	at	Rutgers
4	at	Temple
1	at	Maryland
1		Ohio State
1		Tulsa
2		George Washington
0		William and Mary
2	at	Princeton
0	at	Hartford
6		American
5		Cincinnati
0		Wisconsin-Madison
7	at	Virginia Tech
5		Boston College
1		Colgate

The JMU Women's soccer team had another exceptional season, incorporating good teamwork and refined skills to produce a final record of 11-10 for the year.

The Dukes were extremely confident in their ability as a team even before the season began. With the experience of able veterans and the freshness of new players, the coach and players were anxious to show off their improved power and style of play on the field. Returning top scorers included Jamie Dykes, Kerri O'Connell, Julie Reule, Ashley Williamson, Jon-nell Berry and Nikole Maslovs, to name a few. New faces such as Samantha Andersch, Kristi Palmaccio, Stacey Tourellotte and Jennifer Cuesta were eager to make their impact felt on JMU's opponents.

In addition, the team had another reason to be excited about their upcoming season. They began the season ranked 15th nationally, something they had never done before.

The season began on a high note for the Dukes. The first match of the season came against Villanova, which the team humiliated by a shutout score of 6-0. A shutout loss at George Mason came as cruel irony to the team, but they did not let this defeat lower their spirits so early in the season. The team came back strong with two victories the following weekend against Wright State and Dayton.

The Dukes hit a slump through the next week, suffering losses at the hands of three intimidating opponents. A 2-0 loss to UNC-Greensboro at home proved to be an unlucky break, but they still felt good that they had a higher shooting percentage for the match. "We just weren't lucky. Shots kept hitting the posts, but they wouldn't go in," said junior back Amy Metzger. Twelfth ranked Virginia beat JMU by a score of 3-1, and JMU was shutout by Rutgers a few days later.

The remaining weeks of the season had the Dukes setting into a pattern of alternating wins and losses. Included in their wins were two shutout victories, consisting of a 1-0 final over Ohio State and a 2-0 win over George Washington.

The 1993 season proved to be a learning experience for the Dukes. Being ranked nationally put a lot of unexpected pressure on the team. They experienced some disappointments throughout the season, but they were able to pull together as a team and bounce back strong.

-Roland Massa
-Jennifer Howard

Courtesy of Sports Media Relations

Manzo

1993 James Madison University Women's soccer team

Front Row (LtoR): Trainer Kristen Fritz, Lele Hossenlopp, tri-captain Carrie Praost, Tri-captain Chantel Schwandt, tri-captain Karen Schulstad, Anne Metzger, Manager Angie Lingle. Middle Row: Ashley Williamson, Jennifer Cuesta, Samantha Andersch, Jon-nell Berry, Cheryl Carr, Susie Pizzurro, Lori Strotzman, Julie Reule, Kristi Palmaccio, Dana Albertella, Katherine Carpenter. Back Row: Head coach David Lombardo, Carla Swartz, Stacey Tourtellotte, Noel Hydrick, Jamie Dykes, Kerri O'Connell, Jennifer Donaldson, Nikole Maslovs, Emily Oswalt, Carrie Blumenthal, Brandy Stafford, Loretta Maslovs, Trainer Tricia Keegan, Assistant coach Alison Foley.

GET THAT BALL! Tri-captain Karen Schulstad attempts to steal the ball from the UVA player. Schulstad was a starter in every game this season.

"We had a really tough schedule this season, but we worked together as a team and came out on top."

-Nikole Maslovs

Manzo

HOME FREE! Jennifer Cuesta runs with the ball after she fakes out the UVA defender. JMU lost to the 12th-ranked Cavaliers 1-3.

BAMM! Carrie Blumethal kicks the ball to her waiting teammate. In their first sixteen games, JMU outscored their opponents 28-27.

Manzo

"Winning the Fall Classic was a great honor. It gave me a good feeling for the rest of the season and put the team in second place." -Pleasant Hughes

SHWING! Scott Graber watches as his ball soars into the air. Golfing required both mental and physical skill.

WHACK! JMU golfer Pleasant Hughes gets ready to whack the ball. Hughes was a veteran player on the squad.

On The Green

MEN'S GOLF

JMU men's golf team took program one step further in a successful season

Throughout the 1993 season, the men's golf team played superbly, demonstrating their ability on the green with finesse. Both as a team and as individuals, the golf team set many impressive records, achieving yet another successful year.

The season began for them with the Navy Fall Classic the weekend of September 11-12 at the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland. JMU's team score of 627 put them in second place out of fifteen teams competing in the tournament. The individual champion was JMU's own Pleasant Hughes, winning with game scores of 73 and 76, giving him the best combined score of 149.

At the 9th Annual Georgetown Hoya Invitational, the Dukes tied for fourth out of fifteen teams, again performing exceptionally. Although the team could not again boast of having the individual champion, three golfers on the JMU squad placed within the top twenty-five out of approximately eighty individual competitors.

The Dukes cleaned up individually at the Virginia Intercollegiate League, where the lowest position a JMU golfer could be found was 46th, which proved to be a major win for the members of the team. On a par 72 course at Hot Springs, Virginia, senior Pleasant Hughes once again was JMU's top scorer, with game scores of 73 and 76.

Later, the Dukes competed in the Snowshoe Mountain Invitational in West Virginia. They pulled away fourth out of 21 teams competing, boosting their season standings phenomenally. At the JMU Fall Classic, the Dukes once again performed up to standards, placing six members in the final rankings for the tournament.

With a combination of returning experience and fresh new talent, the Dukes were extremely successful during this year's season. Coach Tom Hurt had great praise for the team this year. "We had a very good year, and I am very proud of the accomplishments of this year's team. I cannot wait to begin working on shaping next year's squad."

-Roland Massa

TIME OUT. A few members of the Men's golf team take time to pose for the camera. The golf team practiced together daily.

MEASURE IT! Scott Graber mentally measures the distance to the green. The JMU men's golf team practiced long hours to be ready to play.

MEN'S TENNIS

Advantage JMU

JMU men's tennis team used skill to beat the competition

"We had a hard year, both in our individual matches and as a team."

-Captain Kevin Long

The men's tennis team fought through another demanding season, and ended the year with a final record of 8-17. The team played hard, and as a result were able to make it to the CAA Championships following the close of their regular season.

The season started in early February with two losses in Richmond. The first match was played against North Carolina, which ended in a score of 3-2. The second match was played against Virginia Commonwealth, which resulted in a 5-0 shutout for VCU.

The Dukes returned to their home court for two winning matches. The team was first pitted against Maryland, who JMU easily defeated by a score of 5-1. Following a two week break in the season, JMU met up with and crushed Washington and Lee with a shutout score of 7-0.

This 7-0 shutout became a common final score in many of the Dukes' matches. Following their defeat of Washington and Lee, the team went on a one week road trip to Florida. Their first match was against Central Florida where the 7-0 victory went to the Dukes' opponents. The following day, the Dukes played against Stetson, defeating them with the very same score that they had been beaten with the day before. This peculiar score appeared once more in the team's final results when they played against Purdue. Unfortunately, the win went to Purdue.

Upon returning from their road trip, JMU played two matches at home and one more away match against American before travelling to Winston-Salem for the Wake Forest 4-Plus-1 Tournament. At the tournament, the Dukes played against Richmond, Furman, College of Charleston and Appalachian State. The team could not pull off the minimum of one win to stay in the tournament, and were forced to return home empty-handed.

Three final season games against Virginia, Old Dominion and Virginia Tech led up to the Colonial Athletic Association Championships held in Richmond. While there, the Dukes managed to pull off two wins and one loss, which placed them fifth at the Championships.

Overall the team underwent a major change between seasons in 1992 and 1993. New coach Steve Secord took over for his first season at JMU. Although his first year did not turn out as he expected, he has great expectations for the upcoming year. "I believe this year was a learning experience for us. The team and I had to adjust to each other, which may have caused the players to be confused or distracted. Next year, I think we will have a squad to be reckoned with."

-Roland Massa

J. Williams

J. Williams

EAGLE EYE! Matt Rowe prepares to hit the ball back at his opponent. Tennis was an especially demanding sport because the team competed in matches in the spring, as well as the fall season.

DETERMINATION! Paul Schaffner reaches high in order to return the ball and finish off his opponent. A good reach was the key to a successful game.

J. Williams

WORK IT OUT! Number one seed Matt Rowe stretches before his match. Rowe, a sophomore, played in the number one spot his first two years.

ACE IT! Team Captain Kevin Long puts his all into his serve. The junior competed as a starter three year in a row.

SLAM! Brian Phoebus goes airborne as he prepares to serve to his opponent. The JMU men's tennis team practiced daily on the Godwin tennis courts.

J. Williams

J. Williams

J. Williams

HERE IT COMES! Jodi Craybas gets ready to send the ball flying back to her opponent. A good forehand game was required for victory.

REBOUND! Tory Schroder reaches to return the ball. Schroder was one of JMU's finest.

J. Williams

J. Williams

Net Earnings

JMU women's tennis team profitted from hard work and dedication

WOMEN'S TENNIS

The JMU women's tennis team fought aggressively throughout the 1993 season, attending numerous invitationals and tournaments. The team had an equal number of wins and losses, but this statistic was not indicative of their talent and dedication. They worked hard and achieved many of the goals that they set for themselves.

The team's regular season play followed a roller-coaster like up and down pattern. Intermittent wins and losses caused the lady Dukes to lose their consistency which brought them their 0-8 season the previous year. Nevertheless, when the team did win, it did so with substantial impact. Two of their wins, those against George Mason and East Carolina, were 9-0 shutouts. Wins such as these proved to be confidence boosters for the ladies on the team. These wins also allowed them to prove what they were capable of when they set their minds to it.

At the Eastern College Athletic Conference Championships in New Jersey, JMU placed 5th out of eight teams competing. In February, the Dukes placed 6th when they competed in the Davidson College Doubles Classic. Lastly, and most impressively, the team placed third at the CAA Championships held here at JMU. This was an impressive accomplishment for the team, one which made them quite proud.

Individual honors on the team went to a multitude of players. Sophomore Meredith Jamieson acquired the most recognition, earning the title of Most Outstanding Player at the CAA Tournament, as well as being named CAA Tournament Flight 4 Runner-up and ECAC Consolation Round Champion. Renee Bousselaire was named CAA Flight 1 Runner-up, and Deborah DeYulia earned the title of JMU Invitational Flight 5 Runner-up. All of these individual achievements reflected the talent of the JMU tennis team.

In doubles, Renee Bousselaire and Caroline Cox were named Davidson Doubles Classic All-Tournament Team. At the JMU Invitational, the teams of Caroline Cox & Darian Smith and Meredith Jamieson & Katie Piorkowski were recognized as semifinalists.

The 1993 women's tennis team was a young team filled with much talent and promise for the future. They had a successful season, and looked forward to an even more successful one in 1994.

-Roland Massa & Jennifer Howard

"Being named to the All - Tournament team at the JMU invitational was a real honor."

-Renee Bousselaire

J. Williams

WHAM! Renee Bousselaire drives the ball back across the net. Bousselaire was an individual and a doubles player.

TEAMWORK! Tennis partners Debbie DeYulia and Caroline Cox work together to win the match. In doubles, you had to watch out for your partner as well as yourself.

VOLLEYBALL

Growing Pains

JMU volleyball fought illness and injury in the 1993 season

Scoreboard

JMU	vs	Opp
0	Virginia	3
0	SW Texas State	3
0	at William and Mary	3
0	NC-State	3
0	at UNC-Greensboro	3
1	Montana State	3
1	Furman	3
0	at Tennessee	3
0	Duke	3
0	Southern Miss.	3
0	at Alabama-Birmingham	3
0	at Maryland	3
0	Campbell	3
0	Delaware	3
0	Virginia Tech	3
3	at Loyola, Md	1
1	Marshall	3
3	at Liberty	1
2	American	3
0	George Mason	3
1	Georgetown	3
0	Radford	3
0	William and Mary	3
0	at East Carolina	3
0	at NC-Wilmington	3
0	at VCU	3
0	Towson State	3
3	Liberty	1
1	at Virginia Tech	3
0	Villanova	3
0	at Temple	3
2	Seton Hall	3
0	American	3

The JMU volleyball team showed great potential combined with fresh talent as they made their way through another demanding season. The women on the team all played to the best of their ability, and despite final standings of 3-30, they felt they had gained valuable experience on the court.

The Dukes got the season off to a disparaging start due to injuries to returning senior starters Zoe Anastas and Amber Jaunrubenis in preseason practice. The team lost all four of their matches at the William and Mary Invitational Tournament, but found hope for the future from their dropping the tournament. Their performance at the tournament helped them to analyze their weak points, and to seek improvement in those areas before their next match.

The team began to show signs of improvement when they were pitted against Montana State at home, winning the first game of the match, as well as the first for the season. However, Montana was able to come back and win the next three games, ending the match at 1-3.

With one winning game under their belts, the team members gained newfound confidence in their abilities. "I feel that consistency and confidence are the two things that we need to improve upon," said sophomore hitter Marcey Dodd.

The team did indeed begin to improve, gaining better scoring percentages in their remaining matches. Individual performances improved as well, as many players became more agile and aggressive, both on offense and defense. Individual statistics improved significantly, which helped them maintain their confidence and gain hope for better results in future matches.

The Dukes' unrelenting dedication and spirit finally paid off, as they gained their first match wins in early October, beating Loyola and Liberty by a score of 3-1. However, the team had come to realize that it was too late in the season to substantially improve their record. The permanent absence of Zoe Anastas due to a ligament replacement caused the team to face the season with a young and inexperienced squad. Coach Mary Harrington said, "We're so young that we go out onto the court, make silly mistakes, and beat ourselves."

The team's record did not reflect the hard work and dedication that each member of the squad put forth and how high the team's spirit had been. Looking back on the season, the team gained valuable experience while struggling through a tough season.

-Roland Massa

Courtesy of Sports Media Relations

Manz

1993 James Madison University Volleyball Team

Front (L to R): Assistant coach Jewel Lehman, Lisa Nobel, Grad. coach Scan Barnak
 Middle Row: Christine Amick, Theresa Moster, Team co-captain Susan Martin
 Back Row: Team co-captain Zoe Anastas, Debbi Prince, Amber Jaunrubenis, April Spotts, Valerie Kaput, Kristie Davidson, Marcey Dodd, Head coach Mary Harrington.

SLAM IT! April Spotts spikes the ball at the other team. Spotts had the highest number of assists with over 600.

THE WALL! Marcey Dodd and her fellow teammate form a wall against the other team's spike. Dodd played over 80 games during the regular season.

Manzo Manzo

SET IT UP. April Spotts sets up the ball for teammate Susan Martin. Martin lead the Dukes in attacks.

READY AND WAITING. Three JMU volleyball players prepare to receive the serve. Hitting the serve was one of the hardest things a player had to do.

Manzo

Solid Ground

JMU men's cross country team takes on new season full stride

MEN'S CROSS COUNTRY

"We all improved in some way, not in just our times, but also in ourselves."

-Matt Holthaus

Once again, the JMU men's cross country team had a season of fast running and lasting endurance. Prior to the season, the team was ranked 40th in the nation by a Division I Cross Country Coaches' Poll. This pre-season recognition gave the team motivation to fulfill these expectations during the course of the season.

The team's first meet was a success, with the Dukes soundly defeating Manhattan, Bucknell, and Rutgers at the Manhattan Quad Meet in New York. The scores were, respectively: 49-15, 38-19 and 47-16. The top three spots all went to JMU runners, with senior Matt Holthaus coming in first.

Holthaus proved to be a team leader throughout the season, leading the team in a number of victories. The CAA recognized Holthaus as a top athlete in cross country and track, and he was named JMU's 1992-93 Male Scholar Athlete of the year. "I try to stay relaxed and worry about every aspect of my life when the time comes. I think that it's important to keep a balance in your life," said Holthaus.

With further strong performances at the Indiana Invitational and the Liberty Invitational, the Dukes continued to improve their record as the year progressed. At the Indiana Invitational, the Dukes placed fourth, with Holthaus coming in a close second to Wisconsin All-American Jason Casiano, whose time beat Holthaus' by .84 seconds.

At the Liberty Invitational, JMU came in first overall, with seven runners placing among the top ten finishers. Runners Jeff Thompson, Matt Holthaus and Tom Jeffrey captured the top three slots, placing first, second and third respectively. As a team, the Dukes won first place at the tournament. The margin of scoring between JMU and second place Liberty was 60 points.

By the end of the season, the Dukes had aptly demonstrated their force on the track to all of their opponents, and gained national recognition for their efforts. With such a strong finish for the year, the team gained a powerful sense of confidence, both as a group and as individuals.

-Roland Massa

ALL TOGETHER NOW. Tom Jeffrey, Matt Holthaus, Kevin Birdsell and Mike Marshall run together during practice. Holthaus consistently led the team throughout the season with his strong finishing times.

Courtesy of Sports Media Relations

1993 James Madison University cross country team

Front Row (LtoR): Gavin McCarthy, Marshall Smith, Frank Gilhooly, Jeff Menago, Jesse Tolleson, Keith Hirschorn, Jeffery Thompson. Second Row: Chris Allport, Mike Marshall, Tom Jeffrey, Jon Schlessinger, Kevin Birdsell, Brian Kaupa, David Holiday, Matt Holthaus.

Magin

Magin

Magin

AND HE'S OFF! This runner begins his run for the day. Although cross country was mainly an individual sport, team members did rely on support from each other.

PROPER STRETCHING. Tom Jeffery, Kevin Birdsell and Mike Marshall warm up before their practice run. The team practiced throughout the year to maintain their top running speeds.

Magin

STRETCH. JMU runner Cindy Price warms up her legs. Due to inclement weather, JMU runners had to practice indoors as well.

ON THE TRAIL. Kiersten Murray runs through JMU at practice. JMU's campus made an excellent practice ground for the team.

Second Wind

JMU women's cross country team battles against tough competition

WOMEN'S
CROSS COUNTRY

The 1993 women's cross country team ran their way through another successful season, achieving great things at the numerous meets they competed in throughout the year. With determination and endless practice, the team was ready to face any challenge that came their way.

As with any other sport, preseason practice was important in warming up the team to prepare for an upcoming season. The cross country runners did exactly that, as they could be seen all over campus, or even throughout Harrisonburg, running as a group to brace themselves for their competitions.

When the season opened, the Dukes began with a strong start. At their first competition at the Manhattan Quad Meet in New York City, the team ran against and defeated Bucknell and Manhattan, and came in one point behind Connecticut.

The team made significant victories throughout the remainder of the season by coming from behind for many impressive wins. In late September, the Lady Dukes came in 9th out of 17 teams competing in the Morven Park Invitational, placing above reputable opponents such as UNC-Wilmington, Maryland, Liberty and Coppin State. This competition, and the team's resulting ninth place finish, indicated JMU's vigor and enthusiasm out on the track, despite tough competition from other aggressive schools, hungry for the reputation the Dukes had established for themselves.

JMU's last impressive season performance came at the Liberty Invitational in Lynchburg, where the Dukes pulled off an overwhelming defeat of host college Liberty and additional competitor Radford. The team's final score came to 18, in comparison to second place Liberty's final score of 46, and last place Radford's 77 cumulative points.

The Dukes' final record qualified them for the 1993 CAA Championships held in Williamsburg. JMU once again performed exceptionally, placing second overall out of eight teams that participated in the finals.

In the NCAA Region II Championships, JMU placed 9th out of 16 teams invited to compete in the tournament. This final result is rather impressive considering the tough opposition that the Dukes ran against, including nationally ranked Villanova, Georgetown and Penn State.

With final standings of 5-2, the JMU Women's Cross Country team again completed an outstanding season of aggressive running and energetic victories over tough opponents.

-Roland Massa

"This season was so very special, in that we all were looking out for each other."

-Melissa Freda

1993 James Madison University women's cross country team

Front Row (L to R): Melissa Freda, Stephine Herbert, Mindy Reese. Middle Row: Lori Phillips, Jill Baumgartner, Kiersten Murray, Jodie Reese, Jamie Rounds, Mona Gupta. Back Row: Keyne Mansfield, Anne Stangl, Melissa Adams, Bridgette Fudela, Theresa Prebish, Cindy Price, Samantha Bates.

TEAMWORK. Theresa Prebish and Stephanie Herbert team together to finish their workout. One could always count on other teammate for help when needed.

FIELD HOCKEY

Making Goals

JMU field hockey team broke into top ten by setting new goals and scoring big

Scoreboard

JMU	vs	Opp
7	Wake Forest	2
2	at Old Dominion	3
2	at Old Dominion	3
2	Connecticut	0
2	Virginia	1
3	at Duke	0
3	Northeastern	2
4	Radford	0
3	at Temple	0
4	American	0
3	at Ohio State	0
4	Stanford	0
2	Maryland	3
7	Davis & Elkins	1
3	William & Mary	0
10	Richmond	0
6	Boston College	1
1	at North Carolina	2
4	at Virginia Commonwealth	2
4	Virginia Commonwealth	0
3	William and Mary	0
1	Old Dominion	2
1	at Old Dominion	0
1	at North Carolina	2

Field hockey has always been a demanding sport which has required long hours and endless practice. The JMU field hockey team once again proved that they had served their time practicing by having a winning season in 1993.

The team even began the year off on the right foot by being ranked 11th in the NCAA pre-season poll. "We're still very young," said third year coach Christy Morgan. "Right now we're ranked 11th in the nation, but we haven't played a game yet so that means nothing to me. We need to earn that spot."

JMU's first two matches against Old Dominion resulted in scores of 3-2 and 1-1, but even these scores were impressive for the Dukes against ODU. In previous years, JMU had always been thoroughly defeated by the Monarchs, losing by scores as drastic as 7-0, 10-1 and 10-0.

Following these games, the Dukes took off on a nine game winning streak, beating such competitive opponents as Virginia, Connecticut, Temple and American. JMU managed to win five of these nine straight victories by shutout. This streak of wins shot the Dukes up the NCAA top 20 poll, moving them from their original position of 11th to 7th.

The winning streak was broken at nine by a loss to 4th ranked Maryland. This defeat did not phase the team, as the Dukes came back even stronger to demolish Davis & Elkins and shutout two CAA rivals: William & Mary by 3-0 and Richmond by a wallop 10-0.

The season came to a end with a big finish in the CAA tournament. JMU took wins from Virginia Commonwealth and William and Mary to make it to the finals against Old Dominion. The lady Dukes played tough, falling only by one point. With a second place victory behind them, the Dukes faced ODU again in the NCAA tournament finals. This time JMU had the upper hand, taking their first round 1-0. JMU's next battle took them to the quarterfinals against North Carolina, who were ranked 4th in the nation. The Dukes just missed victory, falling 2-1.

-Roland Mass Man

1993 James Madison University field hockey team

Front Row (ltoR): Kelly McDonald, Sherry Mohr, Gwen Stalzfus, Katherine Clark, Eileen Arnaldo, Carol Hilliard, Heather Colbert. Middle Row: Carale Thate, Jennifer Wilds, Danyle Hefferman, Kim Greene, Jessica Kane, Kelly Kreiger, Kelley Blומר, Jen Ruggiero. Back Row: Trainer Kevin Barry, Trainer Emily Smith, Amy Tice, Heather Armborg, Co-captain Leslie Nelson, Heather Hoehlein, Co-captain Renee Ranere, Sherry Squaires, Assistant coach Steve Wagner, Assistant coach Pam Neiss, Head coach Christy Morgan.

PREPARATION. Kelly McDonald spots the ball and waits for the pass to her. McDonald wore the "lucky" number seven.

Manzo

" I was so happy for the team when we made the top ten, it was finally the recognition we deserved and earned."

-Head coach Christy Morgan

TEAMWORK. Gwen Stoltzfus and Danyle Heffernan work together towards the goal. JMU's hard work put them in the top ten nationwide.

BAMM! Leslie Nelson hits the ball to her teammate. Good teamwork proved to be the Dukes' strength in 1993.

Sports Nuts

Loyal sports fans turned into sports nuts when the smell of victory was placed in front of them

"All you need to survive is food, clothing, shelter and Monday Night Football."

-Shannon Bailey

Imagine this--- you're at a Washington Redskins game, and you brought someone that you really like. You're really enjoying yourself and so is your date. All of a sudden some moron starts yelling from behind you at the head coach of the other team. In between the swear words and the mumbling, you can hear "QUARTERBACK SNEAK, GO FOR THE QUARTERBACK SNEAK." First of all, the coach couldn't hear the guy if he was the only person in the stadium, much less over the sounds of 70,000 other people. Secondly, this guy looks and sounds angry enough to tackle the quarterback himself. Finally, you look over and notice that this guy is starting to bother your date. You made a fatal mistake: you have a seat in front of a "sports nut."

Being diagnosed as a "sports nut" was as easy as diagnosing someone who had the chicken pox. Some of the many symptoms were: 1) An uncontrollable urge to jump from one's seat and strangle the closest referee, 2) After a game, a sports nut's throat was as dry as the Sahara desert from screaming so much, 3) Always had a beer in the left hand and a bag of chips in the right hand, without losing track of the action on the field 4) Extreme swearing at anyone wearing black and white stripes 5) You're a JMU soccer fan. 6) You watch ESPN and tape HTS at the same time. 7) You have a picture of Lefty on your ceiling. Almost everyone caught sports fever at one time or another. It definitely helped when you had a winning team, but it was not required for the TRUE sports nut.

Some sports nuts became famous for their actions. Take the JMU soccer team fans: they came to all home games, and some away games, and brought our team the support they needed and deserved, despite controversy surrounding their outrageous behavior during games.

Sports gave people a means to release built-up stress and project it in a healthy way: by directing it at somebody else. It didn't matter what sport you were watching or who you were rooting for, all that mattered was that one team or individual had to win and you got to see who did. This was why the Superbowl and The World Series were so popular: because they provided the most stress relief every year.

This feature is dedicated to all sports nuts, arm-chair quarterbacks and JMU fans for being there for their teams through good and bad.

-Joe Olson

JMU'S #1 FAN! The Duke Dog watches the games as a female admirer watches ol' Duke. Duke Dog could be seen at many sporting events.

S. Williams

COME ON! A few JMU students watch Monday Night Football at Scruples in the Sheraton Inn. Scruples was a popular hangout for sports nuts.

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

SPIC AND SPAN! JMU soccer fans beat their pans to throw-off the other team's goalie. These devoted fans were the most spirited and controversial fans of 1993.

FANS EVERYWHERE! Bridgeforth Stadium looks packed at a JMU football game. During parent's weekend, the stadium held over 1,000 more than capacity.

-Magin

GO DUKES! Melissa Barry cheers for the Dukes as they are about to score. The Dukettes helped cheer for the team along side the cheerleading squad.

Magin

Magin

WORK IT GIRL! Rebecca Greenleaf shows off her dancing moves. The Dukettes practiced long hours to perfect each move.

ATTITUDE! The Dukettes show the crowd their stuff. The Dukettes were a popular attraction at football and basketball games.

Showin' Spirit

JMU Dukettes practiced hard to please audience and themselves

If you attended a men's basketball game, you would have noticed that during half-time, the crowd was still paying attention to the court. That was because the Dukettes were performing one of their exciting routines, and the crowd was captivated. The squad earned the respect and admiration of its peers by working hard and becoming quite a superior group.

The '93-'94 JMU dance squad was a young but very dedicated team. Of the fourteen members, eleven were new to the squad. "We are almost an entirely new squad," said senior captain Mindy Aitken. "There are a lot of young girls, but there is also a whole lot of new talent on our squad." The team put in long hours of practice which included running and weight training. The hard work paid off though, as they dazzled the football and basketball crowds with their complicated and funky new dance moves.

One aspect that the squad prided itself on was their strong friendships. They worked together all year long, sacrificing a lot of free time in order to improve the team. Their season began with summer camps and practices and continued throughout the year. "If we weren't such a close team, the work would seem a lot harder," senior Rebecca Greenleaf said. "But we're all friends—we hang out and go out together." Aitken added that sometimes they got along a little too well during practice, wanting to talk with one another instead of practice!

The Dukettes had another successful and fun year. They experimented with new, more crowd-pleasing routines which proved very successful. They worked well as a team, as though they had been one for quite some time. The team's talent and dedication shone through with each performance. The dance squad made the most of this rebuilding year.

-Jennifer Howard

THE DUKETTES! The dance squad forms a pyramid to get the crowd excited. Special moves like this were created by the Dukettes and their choreographers.

"If we weren't such a close team, the work would seem a lot harder."

-Rebecca Greenleaf

Magin

Magin

GIVE ME A J! Meg Murray tries to get the crowd to spell JMU. Together, the Dukettes got the crowds excited and spirited.

WOMEN'S SWIM
AND DIVE

Making Waves

JMU women's swim and dive took over with grace and speed

"They have added quality to all events across the board in addition to increasing the spirit and morale of the team."

-Coach Judy Wolfe

The women's swim and dive team proved to be a dominating team in the CAA Conference. The Lady Dukes had an overwhelming 92-93 CAA Championship win behind them. The seasoned veterans were back for a repeat, while the new talent anticipated the unknown.

Seven new faces emerged on the deck of the Savage Natatorium, five swimmers and two divers. Coach Judy Wolfe commented, "They have added quality to all events across the board in addition to increasing the spirit and morale of the team."

The first meet was against both LaSalle and Villanova. JMU left the meet on shaky ground, with a defeat over LaSalle, but with an unfortunate loss to Villanova. For the freshman, this was their first collegiate meet. Freshman Wendy Bryant remarked, "We (the freshman) got to experience the excitement and the intensity of a college meet."

The Lady Dukes found stability as they defeated long time rival American University by 36 points. Senior Sandy Martello commented, "Since my freshman year American has been a concern for the team. It has been fun to watch JMU become a stronger team and not worry about them."

The Pitt Invitational was the next meet. The Lady Dukes rested for this meet. For the swimmers, yardage decreased approximately two weeks prior to the meet. The divers continued to perfect twists, tips and entries. Their preparation earned them second place at the Invitational.

The new year splashed in with four victories. The first victim was Old Dominion University. Parents, visiting during swimming and diving Parent's Weekend, cheered their children to victory.

William & Mary was the next to fall to the strength of JMU. This was the final home meet of the season and the Dukes left their mark as they defeated William & Mary by 20 points. Marcy Lipp, Sandy Martello and Erin McDonnell were recognized as seniors, completing their final year with the team.

The next day the team ventured to George Washington for a close, yet incredible, victory. The last relay, the 200 freestyle relay, determined the outcome of the meet. The lady Dukes won first and second place, clinching the points needed to defeat GW by one point. Junior Kristen Balint said, "The meet was amazing. We pulled it together... the enthusiasm was overwhelming."

Their final duel meet was against the University of Richmond. Once again the team proved to be a powerhouse in the water and on the board. The Lady Dukes developed a strong background that carried them to a second consecutive CAA Championship.

-Kathy Hawk

Sports Media Relations

1993 James Madison University women's swim team

Front Row (LtoR): Melissa Stefan, Kristin Brinser, Co-captain Erin McDonnell, Co-captain Marcy Lipp, Caitlyn Fitzmaurice, Sarah Dokken, Laurie Santoro. Middle Row: Manager Lauren Henn, Malia Bell, Becky Andrews, Sandy Martello, Kristen David, Annette Bultema, Jenny LaMotte, Jen Flannery. Back Row: Amanda Kuehl, Alicia Jaynes, Diana Webber, Jennifer Noonan, Denice Luviano, Kristen Balint, Wendy Bryant.

FREESTYLIN'. Junior Becky Andrews pours on the speed. Freestyle was one of many strokes the swimmers practiced.

FREEZE FRAME. Alicia Jaynes dives perfectly straight into the water. In diving, entering the pool straight helped to eliminate unwanted splashing.

KICKIN'. Freshman Laurie Santoro does a kick set during practice. Santoro excelled in the 100 and 200 fly.

Hawk

Hawk

Hawk

J. Williams

AHHHH! Assistant coach Jen LaMotte gives Caitlin Fitzmaurice two helping hands. Keeping loose during a meet helped swimmers stay focused.

TEAM SPIRIT. The Lady Dukes gather together to do their infamous circle cheer. Doing cheers before a meet psyched the team members for their events.

THEY'RE OFF! Two JMU swimmers race an American University swimmer off the blocks. Swimmers wanted to be quick off the block, but they had to be careful to avoid a false start.

Hawk

Hawk

J. Williams

HEADS UP? A JMU diver tucks into a ball in order to flip. Divers were constantly learning new dives that took several weeks of diligent practice to perfect.

TAKEOFF! Freshman Brennan Sweeney begins his 200 backstroke race with a powerful start. Starts, turns and finishes were keys to having an overall good and fast swim.

Constant Power

JMU men's swim and dive team showed constant power in the lanes and on the boards

MEN'S SWIM
AND DIVE

"Charlie, Sid, Brooks... The more things change the more things stay the same." Only those who knew the history of the JMU swimming program truly understood this clever line on the back of the men's swim and dive shirts.

In the past three years the team experienced the coaching style and personalities of three different coaches... Charlie Arnold, Sid Cassidy and Brooks Teal. Under Charlie and Sid, JMU was CAA Conference champion, and Sid even led them to win the Eastern Men's Swim League. Following in the steps of tremendous success, Brooks Teal was determined to remain number one - nothing was to change.

The men's new swim coach was joined by new dive coach Mary Sink. Sink dove for JMU in 1992 and won the one meter diving at the conference meet her senior year.

Change was evident in the new faces that joined the JMU swim and dive team as well. There was a host of talent found in the seven swimmers and one diver.

The Dukes' season began with a tri-meet against La Salle and Villanova. The meet proved to be a victory and a disappointment, as they defeated La Salle and lost to Villanova. Junior Matt Barany commented, "The loss gave our team focus and inspiration as we tried for a third conference title."

Their next excursion led them to the Pitt Invitational. It was a three day meet and JMU received second place to the University of Miami at Ohio. Junior Gian Pozzolini had a positive outlook about the meet, "Most of us had either best times or close to best times and records were broken."

Upon their return to Harrisonburg, the Dukes faced another week of training, as well as a tri-meet against the University of Miami and North Carolina State at Miami. JMU lost to both teams, but it was a good experience to compete against teams in other conferences. Junior Derek Boles said, "It was disappointing, we lost some close races, but I feel we have grown as individuals and as a team."

The new year brought new goals as the Dukes prepared for the conference meet, as well as four more victories. JMU defeated CAA conference members Old Dominion University, William & Mary and the University of Richmond.

In addition to this, the Dukes posted an extraordinary victory over George Washington University. The meet came down to the last relay, the 200 freestyle relay. JMU took first and third place to win the meet by three points. Junior Chris Schutz commented, "It was one of the most exciting meets I've ever been to." The Dukes, once again, had a successful season, winning a conference record third straight CAA conference title.

-Kathy Hawk

" I feel we have grown as individuals and as a team."

-Junior Derek Boles

J. Williams

Sports Media Relations

1993-94 James Madison University men's swim team

Front Row (LtoR): Derek Boles, Rich Rowland, Matt Dixon, Mark Patton, Corbit Wright, Aaron Wellman. Second Row: Brennan Sweeney, Pat Cavanagh, Randy Dash, Chris Lee, Brian Maher, Matt Stansbury, Bryan Halden. Third Row: Chad Triolet, Bob Bianchi, Ryan Frost, Kevin Faikish, Dave DeSpirito, Mark Gabriele, Matthew Barany. Fourth Row: coach Brooks Teal, Chris Schutz, Gian Pozzolini, David Caldwell, Brian Manning, Matt Benin, Matt Bower, Jason Bing.

SOARING. A JMU diver soars and spins in the air during the meet against William & Mary. The divers aided the Dukes in an overwhelming defeat of one of their conference rivals.

FENCING

Foiled Again

JMU fencing foiled other team's thoughts of victory by envisioning their own

"Fencing is not a mainstream sport. That is why I like it--it is different than other sports."

-Senior Lynn Mulhern

After enjoying a successful 1992-93 season, the JMU fencing team could only look to the future. With six state championships, the team was looking to maintain its position on the top of state and national competition.

As a team sport, fencing was different in that it ran year round, with competitions held in both the fall and the spring. The competitions held in the fall focused on individual matches whereas the spring competitions focused on the team. Because the sport ran year round, the women were constantly practicing. These vigorous practices included fencing skills as well as weight lifting to increase agility and strength in the upper body and legs. The women also practiced during the summer months in order to stay in shape.

A unique facet to the the sport of fencing was that it was not commonly offered at the high school level. This created a collegiate team filled with members genuinely interested in and dedicated to a little known sport. This aspect resulted in a variation of talent between different members. Although there was such a variation in talent, the team members became quite close, thus becoming a positive influence for the team. The more experienced members helped those that lacked experience. This unity made every win more enjoyable and provided a strong spirit for the tough losses. Every member brought something different to the team, creating a positive growth within. By the time the season began the team had become a tight unit, helping and supporting each other during bad and good times.

Fowley

The season began positively as the team outscored Johns Hopkins, 10-6. Team members Lynn Mulhern and Julia Tock went undefeated in their individual matches. The team went 3-3 in the remainder of its matches during the fall competitions, with Tock going undefeated in three of them. The team faced tough competition against teams from Penn State, North Carolina and Temple. The team's closest matches came against both Rutgers and New York University when they squeezed out 9-7 wins over both teams. Going into the spring competitions, the fencers had some momentum with a commanding 14-2 win over City College of New York.

Although fencing was not in the spotlight as much as other team sports, it still provided the players with the feeling of accomplishment and success. The team members were dedicated and determined to their sport. The sport combined both individual and team skills, but it also allowed for a form of escape from the trials and tribulations of everyday life.

-Matthew Vlieger

Fowley

1993-94 James Madison University fencing team

(LtoR): Laurel Hill, Suzanne Lewandowski, Kerrie Bogace, Heather Robertson, Lynn Mulhern, Mellissa Fineo, Julia Tock.

SURPRISE! Lynn Mulhern gives a Blue-stone photographer a friendly stab in the head. Some photographers got into their subjects a little too closely.

Fowley

GOT YA! Mellissa Fineo and Suzzane Lewandowski help each other by practicing their skills. The long hours spent in practice paid off for the team.

THE FEW, THE PROUD. Lynn Mulhern shows her concentration. Discipline was a great factor to the JMU fencers' success.

Fowley

Fowley

REACH. Heather Robinson lunges at her opponent in order to score points. JMU had six state championships under its belt going into the 1993-94 season.

CAA Madness

JMU sports continued to dominate the Colonial Athletic Association

JAMES MADISON

Location: Harrisonburg
Enrollment: 11,250
Date Founded: 1908
President: Dr. Ron Carrier
Nickname: Dukes
Colors: Purple and Gold
Home Court: Convocation Center (7,612)
Head Coach (Alma Mater): "Lefty" Driesell (Duke)
Record at JMU: 97-55
Overall Record: 621-279
1992-93 Record: 21-9
1992-93 CAA Record: 11-3, tie for first
1993-94 Record: 17-9
1993-94 CAA Record: 10-4, tied for first

The CAA; it's not just a pretty name anymore. It was a vital league in the NCAA that helped JMU gain more recognition both in Virginia and nationally. The Colonial Athletic Association was comprised of American University, East Carolina University, George Mason University, James Madison University, University of Richmond, College of William and Mary, University of North Carolina at Wilmington and Old Dominion University.

Founded in 1985, the CAA evolved into a potent Division I conference. Colonial men's sports included baseball, basketball, cross country, golf, soccer, swimming & diving, tennis, track & field and volleyball. Colonial women's sports included basketball, cross country, field hockey, lacrosse, soccer, swimming & diving, tennis, track & field and volleyball.

The CAA traced its roots to 1981 when six of the current members, ECU, GMU, JMU, ODU, UR and W&M, aligned with the Naval Academy and forged together a new basketball league, the ECAC South. In 1984, American and UNC-Wilmington hopped on the bandwagon and joined the ECAC South.

On June 6, 1985, the ECAC South converted into the CAA. A "Proclamation of Creation" was signed by representatives of all eight charter institutions and by members of the media that were there for the announcement. By the beginning of the 1986-87 school year, the CAA teams received automatic bids to NCAA Championships in basketball, soccer, baseball and formed its own officials bureau. In the past few years, the CAA has acquired two more automatic berths in field hockey and women's volleyball.

Ever since the start of the CAA, conference members have enjoyed considerable success both as a team and as individuals. In the 1992-93 season, 16 individuals received First Team All-American honors. These honors were not just for exceptional playing, but also for exceptional achievements in the classroom.

JMU's role in the CAA was also a factor in the conference's success. JMU sports traditionally dominated the CAA, especially in basketball. As of the 1993-94 season, JMU possessed a share of first place five years in a row in regular season play.

JMU will certainly carry out its winning traditions in the CAA in the years to come, but it is the CAA that helped us get the recognition the school deserved.

-Joe Olson

MASCOT MADNESS. The George Mason Patriot, JMU Duke Dog, the Old Dominion Bear, the American Eagle and the East Carolina Pirate hang out together at the CAA tournament. All the mascots were at the CAA championships to support their teams.

courtesy of Colonial Athletic Association

AMERICAN

Location: Washington,DC
Enrollment: 11,500
President: Elliot Milstein
Founded: 1893
Nickname: Eagles
Colors: Red, White, & Blue
Home Court: Bender
Arena (5,000)
Head Coach(Alma Mater):
Chris Knoche(AU, 1980)
Record at AU: 37-49, 4yrs
Overall Record: 37-49
1992-93 Record: 11-17
1992-93 CAA Record:
6-8, tied for fourth
1993-94 Record: 8-18
1993-94 CAA Record:
5-9, tied for sixth

EAST CAROLINA

Location: Greenville,NC
Enrollment: 16,693
Chancellor: Dr. R. Eakin
Founded: 1907
Nickname: Pirates
Colors: Purple and Gold
Home Court: Minges
Coliseum (6,500)
Head Coach(Alma Mater):
Eddie Payne(W. Forest)
Record at ECU: 23-35, 3yrs
Overall Record: 126-86
1992-93 Record: 13-17
1992-93 CAA Record:
4-10, seventh
1993-94 Record: 15-11
1993-94 CAA Record:
7-7, fifth

GEORGE MASON

Location: Fairfax,VA
Enrollment: 20,308
President: Dr. G. Johnson
Founded: 1957
Nickname: Patriots
Colors: Green and Gold
Home Court: Patriot
Center (10,000)
Head Coach(Alma Mater):
Paul Westhead (St. Joe's)
Record at GMU: 0-0, 0yr
Overall Record: 247-153
1992-93 Record: 7-21
1992-93 CAA Record:
2-12, eighth
1993-94 Record: 10-16
1993-94 CAA Record:
5-9, tied for sixth

UNC WILMINGTON

Location: Wilmington,NC
Enrollment: 8,000
President: Dr. J. Leutze
Founded: 1947
Nickname: Seahawks
Colors: Green, Gold, & Blue
Home Court: Trask
Coliseum (6,100)
Head Coach(Alma Mater):
Kevin Eastman (UR.)
Record at UNC-W: 41-43
Overall Record: 106-65
1992-93 Record: 17-11
1992-93 CAA Record:
6-8, tied for fourth
1993-94 Record: 16-9
1993-94 CAA Record:
9-5, third

OLD DOMINION

Location: Norfolk,VA
Enrollment: 16,729
President: Dr. James Koch
Date Founded: 1930
Nickname: Monarchs
Colors: Slate Blue & Silver
Home Court: Norfolk
Scope (10,253)
Head Coach(Alma Mater):
Oliver Purnell (ODU)
Record at ODU: 36-23, 3yrs
Overall Record: 80-65
1992-93 Record: 21-8
1992-93 CAA Record:
11-3, tie for first
1993-94 Record: 18-8
1993-94 CAA Record:
10-4, tied for first

RICHMOND

Location: Richmond,VA
Enrollment: 2,800
President: Dr. R. Morrill
Date Founded: 1830
Nickname: Spiders
Colors: Blue and Red
Home Court: Robins
Center (9,171)
Head Coach(Alma Mater):
Bill Dooley (Richmond)
Record at Richmond: 0-0
Overall Record: 0-0
1992-93 Record: 15-12
1992-93 CAA Record:
10-4, third
1993-94 Record: 13-13
1993-94 CAA Record:
8-6, fourth

WILLIAM & MARY

Location: Williamsburg,VA
Enrollment: 5,300
President: T. Sullivan
Date Founded: 1693
Nickname: Tribe
Colors: Green, Gold, & Silver
Home Court: William and Mary Hall (10,000)
Head Coach(Alma Mater):
Chuck Swenson (Ind.)
Record at W&M: 58-111
Overall Record: 58-111
1992-93 Record: 14-13
1992-93 CAA Record:
6-8, tied for fourth
1993-94 Record: 4-22
1993-94 CAA Record:
2-12, eighth

New Prospects

JMU men's basketball took on tough season with hard work and determination

"We've felt all along that we're the team to reckon with in the conference."

-Louis Rowe

With eight players, including four starters, gone from the 1992-93 squad, the men's basketball team faced a year seen by many as a "year of rebuilding." Gone from last year's 21-9 team that won the CAA regular season championship were Paul Carter, Jeff Chambers, William Davis and Bryan Edwards. These four starters contributed over seventy-five percent of last year's offense.

In a preseason poll, the majority of coaches predicted that Old Dominion would finish first in the conference. With these predictions, it seemed inevitable for the Dukes to pass the CAA crown over to a new leader, after winning an unprecedented four straight regular season championships. But enter four new players with the desire and drive to win and the scenario changed. Filling in the shoes of the lost players were Louis Rowe, a transfer from the University of Florida;

Dennis Leonard, a transfer from Allegany Community College; and freshmen Ryan Culicerto and Charles Lott. These four players each found time helping the Dukes make it back to the top of the CAA. Returning starters Kent Culuko and Clayton Ritter were also assisted by sophomore point guard Darren McLinton, senior forward Michael Venson, and sophomore center Kareem Robinson.

With this pool of talent, coach Lefty Driesell did his best to formulate a plan to overcome last year's disappointing CAA championship game loss. The first obstacle Driesell had to hurdle was team chemistry. With the loss of four starters, the returning players had to learn how to play with four new and different players. To help his team come together and come together quickly, coach Driesell again had the Dukes slated against a challenging non-conference schedule. With top 25 teams such as Big 10 powerhouses Purdue and Minnesota; along with such strong teams which received votes throughout the season as Virginia Commonwealth, Rutgers, and UNC Charlotte, the team had a tough road ahead of them.

Unfortunately, the beginning of the season showed that the Dukes had a long road ahead of them. A lack of chemistry was evident in the Dukes' opener against VCU. JMU shot a cold 35% and allowed a season high 61% shooting from VCU. But the Dukes learned from their mistakes and came together as a team, keeping opposing teams' shooting offense under 50%. With the team coming together as a unit, the team went on to a 12-4 record, the best start for a JMU team since coach Driesell became head coach. Suddenly, the future seemed brighter.

One of the keys to the

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

DOUBLE-TEAMED. Sophomore Darren McLinton fights through two UNC-Wilmington defensemen. McLinton, a guard from Silver Spring, Maryland, doubled his playing time from his freshman year.

HANGTIME. Senior Clayton Ritter soars into the air and goes for a hook shot. Ritter started in almost every game during the 1993-94 season.

ROLLING OFF. Sophomore Kareem Robinson goes for two as the ball rolls off his fingers. In his first 20 games, Robinson shot .547.

IN FOR THE SLAM. Center Kareem Robinson shows his powerful dunking ability. Robinson brought fans to their feet with his timely dunks.

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

TIME OUT. The Dukes take a time-out to discuss strategy. Coach Lefty Driesell was famous for his time-out "talks".

FAST BREAK. Transfer Dennis Leonard breaks for the basket. In his first season playing for JMU, Leonard averaged over 23 minutes of playing time.

New Prospects

JMU men's basketball took on tough season with hard work and determination

Scoreboard

JMU	vs	Opp
73	at Virginia Commonwealth	88
94	Howard	71
74	at Purdue	98
80	at Indiana State	64
85	LaSalle	89
83	Arkansas State	67
87	Rutgers	76
85	at Furman	73
68	at Minnesota	73
78	Liberty	64
96	Old Dominion	88
89	William & Mary	75
95	at George Mason	94
99	American	83
85	UNC Wilmington	77
70	at East Carolina	68
81	at Richmond	85
80	Morgan State	78
81	at Old Dominion	97
89	at William & Mary	85
110	George Mason	81
78	at American	84
79	East Carolina	74
78	at UNC Wilmington	110
80	Richmond	78
88	at UNC Charlotte	96

Dukes' early success was the play of senior center Clayton Ritter. As one of the CAA's top shooters in 1992-93, Ritter was looked upon to take the role of team leader. And lead he did. As the Dukes' top shooting percentage leader, Ritter was constantly one of JMU's leading scorers, again shooting over 60% for the season. He was ranked 13th nationally among Division I players in field goal percentage in early January. He was also named to the all-tournament team at the Boilermaker Invitational where he had 30 points, 14 rebounds and seven assists in two games.

Senior forward Michael Venson played a major role for the Dukes, mostly coming off the bench. Venson provided the team with intensity and determination under the boards. Venson overcame constant knee trouble to help the Dukes succeed. The pain showed in the Duke's away game against William and Mary as Venson drove down an open court visibly limping to score a decisive basket. His leadership skills and love for the game kept JMU together through the team's grueling schedule.

Guillfoyle

Junior Kent Culuko came into the season as one of the CAA's biggest scoring threats. As a highly successful three-point shooter, opposing teams kept a close defense on him, usually to no avail. On December 10, Culuko set a JMU record with seven three-point field goals, but then broke that mark with eight three-pointers against Rutgers on December 22. He later tied that mark with eight at George Mason. At one point in the season Culuko was ranked second nationally in three-point field goals per game and fourth nationally in three-point shooting percentage. On December 22, against Rutgers, he scored a career high 42 points, which were also the most points a JMU player has scored in a game since the 1978-79 season. He also set a JMU record of 35 straight successful free throw attempts. For the season, Culuko shot over 90% from the foul line, and at one point was ranked fourth nationally in free throw percentage. Culuko also made it onto the 1,000 point scorers list. He scored his 1,000th career point against William and Mary on January 12.

In his first year as a Duke, Louis Rowe was a dominant player both inside and outside. As an inside player, Rowe was a powerful force, grabbing rebounds and blocking shots. On the offensive side he was just as graceful as he was powerful, bring the crowd to its feet with his strongscoring ability. If his inside moves hurt opposing teams, his ability to make crucial outside shots crushed them even more. Rowe got off to a slow start, mainly due to being rusty after sitting out a year, but after some playing time he became a big threat for opposing teams,

Guillfoyle

SIDELINE CHAT. Members of the team and the coaching staff talk to the players about the team's foul situation. The NCAA only allowed each team member 5 fouls apiece.

SHAZAM! Kareem Robinson slams in one of his many dunks of the season. Robinson started over half of the Dukes' games.

SLAM! Senior Clayton Ritter goes up for the slam dunk. Ritter used his great size to overcome his opponents.

Guilfoyle

ONE AND ONE. Kent Culuko prepares to shoot at the line. Culuko's shooting percentage was one of the highest in the CAA.

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

GRAB IT. Senior Michael Venson runs for the loose ball. Venson continually hustled, despite a sore leg.

ALWAYS AT ATTENTION. Coach Lefty Driesell watches as his team is about to score. The 1993-94 season was Driesell's sixth at JMU.

GREAT PICK. Kent Culuko goes for two while his teammate Clayton Ritter sets the pick. During their few years playing together, the two built up a lot of teamwork.

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

ALL AIR. Junior Louis Rowe tries to net a three-point shot. Rowe transferred to JMU from the University of Florida.

THREE BLIND MICE. Junior Vladimir Cuk, freshman Ryan Culicerto and sophomore Darren McClinton watch their teammates go for a basket. As shown in this picture, the Dukes' height ranged from 5'11" to 6'9".

OVER THE TOP. Senior Michael Venson tries to score over his George Mason opponent. Venson was a starter in over half of JMU's games.

New Prospects

JMU men's basketball took on tough season with hard work and determination

MEN'S BASKETBALL

scoring 26 points against American and 23 points against William and Mary. Against UNC-Wilmington Rowe was a large factor in the Dukes win. "I think the storyline is very simple," commented Seahawks head coach Kevin Eastman. "Louis Rowe dominated the game. He was the difference."

Filling in at point guard, Dennis Leonard brought to the Dukes an extremely aggressive playing style. Always the one to want to push the ball up the court in a hurry, Leonard, nicknamed D-Rock, had opposing defenses standing flat-footed as he sped past them for a driving lay-up. As aggressive as Leonard was, he still provided the team with excellent ball control and at times would not hesitate to pull up and shoot a three-pointer. Leonard also brought his aggressive style to the defensive side of the ball, usually leaving point guards awe-struck as he raced down the court after a steal. Leonard's talents seemed to increase in the final minutes of a game. The best example came against George Mason where Leonard scored the Dukes' last six points and an important steal on an in-bounds pass with three seconds remaining to seal JMU's win.

After averaging 11.5 minutes per game during his freshman year, Darren McLinton's time increased by twice as much during his sophomore year. In the first game of the season against Virginia Commonwealth, McLinton led the team in scoring with 17 points. Against Minnesota he had a career high 20 points with six three-pointers in just 27 minutes.

The Dukes entered the CAA tournament tied for first with Old Dominion. JMU easily passed through the first two rounds of the tourney beating American and UNC-Wilmington 86-67 and 91-78, respectively. This left JMU facing the Monarchs in the finals of what would be the game that proved who solely owned and deserved first place in the CAA. Old Dominion dominated the boards for most of the game, leading by 19 points with only eight minutes of play remaining. JMU rallied in those few remaining minutes to bring that gap down to two. With only 1.1 seconds on the clock, Junior Kent Culuko fired a three point shot that took the Dukes over the top, beating Old Dominion 77-76.

Winning the CAA tournament gave JMU its first bid to the NCAA tournament since Lefty Driesell became coach of the Dukes in the 1988-89 season. JMU entered the NCAA tournament with enthusiasm as they faced the Florida Gators in the first round. The Dukes proved to be a challenge in the tournament, fueled by their victory in the CAA that proved to the sceptics that JMU was back.

-Matthew Vlieger

"For the first time in years we were not number one in the the pre-season CAA poll. That took a burden off us all."

-Senior Clayton Ritter

Gulifoye

Courtesy of Sports Media Relations

1993-94 James Madison University men's basketball team

Front Row (LtoR): Manager David Quinn, Dennis Leonard, Ryan Culicerto, Kent Culuko, Darren McLinton, Michael Venson, Manager Tripp Burton. Second Row: Associate Head Coach Chuck Driesell, Head Coach "Lefty" Driesell, Louis Rowe, Charles Lott, Kareem Robinson, Vladimir Cuk, Emeka Wilson, Clayton Ritter, Assistant Coach Bart Bellairs, Assistant Coach Kenny Brooks.

SWIPE IT. Michael Venson steals the ball away from his George Mason opponent. JMU beat George Mason twice in the regular season.

Setting Goals

JMU women's basketball program took off the ground setting new sights on the CAA

Scoreboard

JMU	vs	Opp
62	at Virginia Commonwealth	53
77	Coppin State	33
56	at Syracuse	50
46	Lafayette	58
45	Ohio State	54
44	Iowa	72
76	at St. Peter's	63
90	Robert Morris	64
63	Columbia	47
58	George Washington	88
58	Arkansas State	71
67	William & Mary	62
49	Old Dominion	71
50	George Mason	56
68	at American	35
60	Virginia Tech	74
73	at UNC-Wilmington	59
79	at East Carolinn	55
82	Richmond	58
63	at William & Mary	59
59	at Old Dominion	73
54	George Mason	71
58	American	42
74	UNC Wilmington	56
83	East Carolinn	50
61	at Richmond	67

After a season plagued by numerous injuries and close losses, the Lady Dukes were well prepared for any type of surprises that might get in their way during the 1993-94 season. Because of last year's injuries, many new or inexperienced players stepped into major roles of contribution. With this experience in hand, and the loss of only three players, the lady Dukes had a promising season ahead of them.

The season began on a positive note as the Dukes defeated Virginia Commonwealth 62-53 on the road. The Lady Dukes followed their impressive win with a 77-33 demolishing of Coppin State in their opening home game. With a quick 2-0 start, the women travelled north to New York for a December 4th meeting with Syracuse. JMU squeezed out a 56-50 win, but the win was overshadowed by a haunt from last season. Senior point guard Gail Shelly suffered a knee injury and ended up missing the remainder of the season after undergoing surgery. Unfortunately, the season was beginning to look a lot like the previous year.

The loss of Shelly was felt in the following game against Lafayette as the Dukes suffered their first loss by a score of 58-46. Shelly's experience was missed as the Lady Dukes followed their game with Lafayette with two home games against highly ranked teams from Ohio State and Iowa. JMU gave an impressive showing against Ohio State, only losing by nine points, 54-45. Iowa was a different story. Ranked in the top five, the lady Hawkeyes showed their strength and agility as they overcame the Lady Dukes 72-44.

JMU's next series of games looked like a roller coaster. They won three games against teams from St. Peters, Robert Morris and Columbia, but then turned around and suffered losses to George Washington and Arkansas State. Following the two losses, JMU squeezed out a close 67-62 win against William and Mary, but then the roller coaster took a dip and the team lost to CAA rivals Old Dominion and George Mason. During this stretch of games the team suffered the loss of two more players, junior guard Christina Lee and sophomore forward Jackie Pratt, due to injuries.

With the loss of two guards, sophomore Danielle Powell stepped in and helped power JMU over its next opponent, CAA rival American. Powell scored 15 points and had four steals in the 68-35 JMU win. "Powell has done a very nice job," Moorman said. "She's taken full advantage of her opportunity to start. She's really the only true point guard on our squad right

Guilfoyle

CONCENTRATION. Krissy Heinbaugh watches her Virginia Tech opponent, ready to block if necessary. The Dukes worked on their defensive plays in the 1993-94 season.

Guilfoyle

DIVE! Kara Ratliff dives for the ball in front of a Richmond opponent. Ratliff started for the Dukes in every game she played.

Guilfoyle

SHOOT. Junior Kara Ratliff goes for a jumpshot while two Richmond players try to steal the ball. Ratliff was a leading player on the women's team.

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

ALMOST THERE. Junior Heather Hopkins dribbles into the lane and prepares to shoot. Hopkins shot over 45% in the 1993-94 season, making her a consistent contributor to the Lady Dukes' offense.

FAST ATTENTION. Two staff members attend to Mary Eileen Algeo's knee after a bad fall. The lady Dukes had their share of injuries in the 1993-94 season.

Setting Goals

JMU women's basketball program took off the ground setting new sights on the CAA

"..our defense is what gets us started and gets us rebounds, fast breaks and lay ups."

-Coach Shelia Moorman

now." JMU's tenacious defense propelled the game, holding the Eagles to 23 percent shooting. "Our offense gets started off of our defense," said sophomore forward Krissy Heinbaugh. "In recent games our offense hasn't been scoring many points, so our defense is what gets us started and gets us rebounds, fast breaks and lay ups." Coach Sheila Moorman credited the team's defense for the team's offensive opportunities. "If we play that aggressively, you get some steals and easy baskets so we don't have to work as hard in our halfcourt offense all the time. We're not a powerful offensive team, so we have to be good on the defensive end."

The defensive momentum hit a brick wall during the lady Dukes next game against Virginia Tech. The Hokies' powerful offense crushed the JMU defense, by shooting 63 percent from the floor. "I thought defensively we did a nice job on the perimeter," Coach

Guilfoyle

Moorman said. "We just have a long way to go in defending the post. That has to be a team effort." The Hokies opened the game with a 19-9 lead, but the JMU defense brought the team back with a 12-2 run and then tied the game at 21 with a little over eight minutes to go in the half. "The way we came back, after we got down in the beginning, I thought was a real positive," Moorman said. "That showed some determination on our part." The Hokies lead was only two at the half, but in the beginning of the second half they jumped out to a 49-40 lead. The Lady Dukes managed another rally but it was too late as the Hokies interior offense took control of the game. "It seemed like every time we got the momentum, they would pound the ball inside," Heinbaugh said. "We had to keep fighting back in order to dig ourselves out." The road to the regular season championship was still open and

JMU set out to take it. "What we're concentrating on is the conference," junior guard Mary Eileen Algeo said. "Anything we can gain from these kinds of games we will take with us to get better prepared for conference play and the tournament."

With that in mind, the Lady Dukes went on a CAA tear, winning the next four games against conference rivals UNC-Wilmington, East Carolina, Richmond and William and Mary. During the win against Richmond on February 3, Kara Ratliff scored 27 points and moved into 18th place on JMU's career scoring list. With the momentum rising, the team travelled to Old Dominion to face the Monarchs for a second time. ODU was in first place in the CAA with a perfect 8-0 record, and the Lady Dukes seemed to be a low hurdle as the Monarchs advanced their CAA record to 9-0 with a 73-59 win. The loss left JMU with

Guilfoyle

DEFENSE. Mary Eileen Algeo watches her opponent, trying to anticipate her next move. Algeo excelled in defense and was one JMU's top rebounders.

POW-WOW. Members of the women's basketball team huddle up to discuss strategy. All members of the team supported each other throughout the season.

JMU DUKES

NEVER FINISHED. Members of the women's team take some time after the game to answer questions from the press. Press conferences followed each game at JMU.

FREE THROW. Jackie Pratt prepares to shoot at the line. JMU's free throw percentage was one of the highest in the CAA.

Guilfoyle Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

AT THE LINE. Christina Lee gets poised to shoot one and one. Lee only played for the first few games at JMU due to injury.

PENETRATION. Krissy Heinbaugh scans the court to see her best way of penetrating the defense. Heinbaugh missed most of the 1992-93 season due to illness.

PREPARATION. Heather Hopkins prepares to recover the ball after a foul shot. Hopkins used her height to overcome the other players.

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

CRASHING THE BOARDS. Jackie Pratt and Jen Turczyn fight for a rebound. The Dukes' defense sparked their offense.

YOU'VE GOT TO BE KIDDING. Coach Sheila Moorman questions a call by the officials. After 12 seasons, Moorman was one of the most winning women's coaches in the nation.

Setting Goals

JMU women's basketball took off the ground setting new sights on the CAA

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

a 6-3 record in the conference and a battle with George Mason for the second place seed in the tournament. Coach Moorman, however, was happy with the way that her squad was playing, especially with the many injuries and illnesses the team suffered. "Considering our circumstances, with injury and illness and the competitiveness of our schedule, we have to be really pleased with where we are," Moorman said. "It's pretty close to a miracle that we could go through the first round of the conference and be 5-2. In that respect, to this point in the season, we have to be really pleased with our record."

Injuries were a big factor for the Lady Dukes. During different points of the season, seven players had missed games because of injuries or illnesses. "We really don't have anyone who is healthy, and that's the bottom line," Moorman said after JMU's second loss to ODU. "There is nobody on our team who is 100 percent. The illness factor right now is a concern."

Because there were many illnesses and injuries, the line-ups changed almost daily, the biggest changes coming from the point guard position ever since the loss of Shelly. Christina Lee started 10 games at the point before injuring her shoulder. She was replaced by Powell, who did a superb job until she had to battle bronchitis. Krissy Heinbaugh took over the point guard position for JMU's win over Richmond on February 3. "We go to the court against Richmond with our fourth point guard starting and really no back up to her and win by quite a margin," Moorman said. "To me, it's just a testimony of the character of the kids and how hard they've worked."

There were bright spots throughout the season, though, that kept JMU in pace with the rest of the conference. Besides the consistent play of point guard Danielle Powell, freshman forward Sarah Schreib shined for the Lady Dukes. A redshirt last season, Shreib returned to the team this year and earned a starting position. "She is the one that has shown night in and night out that she certainly can play at this level," Moorman said of her forward. "Right now she is a legitimate rookie of the year candidate in the conference."

Four of JMU's final conference games were at home, giving them an advantage for the second seed in the tournament. Moorman, though, was clear in stating that she had no expectations other than the team giving it their best shot. "We have no assumptions of anything. That's probably not only the most realistic outlook but what's fair to the kids in the program. They've done an outstanding job of sticking together and giving it their best effort."

-Matthew Vlieger

"Our season has been a series of wins and losses, yet we still manage to play good ball."

-Junior Kara Ratliff

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

1993-94 James Madison University women's basketball team

Front Row (LtoR): Sarah Schreib, Krissy Heinbaugh, Jackie Freeman, Danielle Powell, Team Captain Gail Shelly, Christina Lee, Holly Rilinger, Mary Eileen Algeo, Jackie Pratt. Second Row: Assistant coach Andrea Morrison, assistant coach Betsy Blose, head coach Shelia Moorman, Heather Hopkins, Kara Ratliff, Jen Williams, Jen Turczyn, Carla Houser, assistant coach Andrea Woodson, athletic trainer Sherry Summers, assistant coach Floretta Jackson.

HELP! Danielle Powell looks for an open outlet to pass to a teammate. Powell stepped up to help lead the Dukes.

True Balance

JMU men's gymnastics balanced a tough schedule while remaining on top of the CAA

"It was a great feeling to win our first two CAA meets."

-Michael Jenks

Strength, balance, flexibility and power are all qualities that a male gymnast must possess. The JMU men's gymnastic team proved that they had all of these qualities and more.

The 1994 team was small and relatively young. There were only nine members on the team, three being freshmen. Because the team was so small, a lot of pressure was placed on each gymnast to perform well. There was no one person more important than another because everyone contributed. "We don't have much depth so everybody has to take on a little bit of extra responsibilities," said senior captain Mike Onuska. "The good part of being such a small team is that we are really close, and we know each other well." Teamwork and comradery were probably the two most important factors in the team's success this year.

Despite the size of the team, the Dukes were a strong force in the CAA. They won three tournaments that no previous JMU gymnastic team had ever won, including the Great Lake Championship, the Metro Open and the Navy Invitational. Overall, the year of 1994 was a record-breaking season for the Dukes. "It's nice that as a senior, JMU is having their best season ever," commented Travis King. "I've been on the team for three years and each year we have gotten consistently better." The men's gymnastic program in general has gotten much stronger over the past few years. This is a trend that is expected to continue in the future.

The men practiced 20 hours a week and travelled most weekends in January, February and March. Practice for the gymnasts was year-round. They had their first day of practice on the first day that school was in session and continued until the end of April. This practice included a great deal of strength work and aerobic conditioning as well as many repetitions to increase consistency. Over the summer, the gymnasts worked out at least two to three days a week in order to stay in shape. Gymnastics was a sport that required a great deal of practice and dedication. It was a tremendous time commitment for the athletes.

The 1993-94 season proved to be an excellent one for the young JMU team. "It was a Cinderella season," commented Onuska. Indeed it was, with the team taking victories left and right from team tournaments to CAA rivals. JMU proved to be a force to be reckoned with as the team forced its way to the top of the CAA and into the record books.

-Jen Howard

SWINGING AROUND. Chris Golden swings around on the high bar trying to beat the other team's score. The high bar was the alternative to the the uneven bars in women's competition.

Magin

Magin

1993-94 James Madison University men's gymnastics team

Front Row (LtoR): Michael Onuska, Scott Vierschilling, Dan Ryan, David Robinson, Chris Golden. Back Row: Jason Bouer, Michael Jenks, Todd Mercer, Travis King.

PERFECTION. Michael Onuska shows his winning form on the parallel bars. During his time at JMU, Onuska broke many school records.

STRETCH IT. David Robinson stretches his body as he flips over the high bar. Robinson excelled at this event as well as in the all-around competition.

Magin

Magin

Magin

STRENGTH. Travis King holds a difficult move by using all his strength. The parallel bars were one of the hardest events in gymnastics.

Balancing Act

JMU women's gymnastics worked hard perfecting old moves with new talent

"We're all really close. That is very important to us."

- Marchelle Yoch

The 1993-94 season proved to be a challenge for the young JMU squad. The Lady Dukes combined natural talent, hard work and strong team unity to become a powerful force in the CAA.

Gymnastics is a very precise sport that required a great deal of practice, concentration and dedication. The women practiced five days a week for about four hours each day. This year the team added a day which they designated as "skill day." This day was specifically for experimenting and trying new, more difficult tricks. The Lady Dukes also worked hard for consistency by doing their routines over and over again. Repetition, the gymnasts said, is the key.

"We're up and coming," senior co-captain Meg Woods said. "It's going to take a couple of years to build, but we are going to have a good season." The Lady Dukes had more depth this year than they have had in past years. If one gymnast was having an off day, another one was always there to pick up the slack. Unfortunately, the team was plagued with many injuries this year. At least one or two of the gymnasts were injured at different times throughout the season.

Although the official season lasted only three months, training never stopped for the JMU women. They began practicing at the very beginning of the school year and did not stop until the middle of April. Over the summer, most of the gymnasts worked out every day to stay in shape. Many of the women also tried to find a gym where they could work on their gymnastic skills as well. "It is really hard to get back into things if you don't work out over the summer," said junior member Marchelle Yoch. "I try really hard to stay in shape because it makes it easier when I come back." Gymnastics was a year round sport for the JMU team.

One aspect which the Lady Dukes prided themselves on was their strong team unity. "We're all really close," said Yoch. "That is very important to us." The women were not just teammates, they were all good friends as well. They spent a great deal of time together in and out of the gym and therefore developed close relationships. Their strong bond helped them to unite and work harder for the team goals.

Although this young team was inexperienced and had a new coaching staff, they worked together to have a successful season. The work ethic and determination exhibited by the team built a solid foundation for the future of the program.

-Jen Howard

TEAMMATES AND FRIENDS. Joy Wells, Jennifer Thomas and Jennifer Grinnell share some laughs as they prepare for some bar exercises. The team members were friends on and off the gym floor.

1993-94 James Madison University women's gymnastics team

Front Row (LtoR): Emily Winett, Ivy Wells, Penny Cash, Julie Cardinali, Kim Kupka, Joy Wells. Middle Row: Jennifer Grinnell, Marchelle Yoch, Liz Chakmakian, Jennifer Thomas, Deby Lansing, Keri Erazmus. Back Row: Lori Jackson, Meg Woods, Vikki Kettlehut, Becki Kabat.

UP, UP AND AWAY. During practice, a gymnast tries a mid-air split over the balance beam as teammates look on. The team practiced five days a week for about four hours a day.

TUMBLING ALONG. A gymnast does some tumbling exercises past a mirror which reflects her graceful image. The team worked hard on consistency by doing routines over and over again.

WRESTLING

Brute Force

JMU wrestling put out an extra effort and proved that Madison men can beat the best

"Although we were a young team, we used our individual talents to strengthen the team as a whole."

-Jon Wadsworth

As the 1993-94 wrestling season began, the team was filled with hopes and expectations of the prospects of finishing with a winning record. Coach Jeff Bowyer was faced with the challenge of teaching the new wrestlers the confidence, technique and dedication necessary to compete successfully on the collegiate level. Unfortunately, illness and injury hampered the season, but the Dukes stayed strong and conquered their hardships.

This year's season began later than previous seasons so that there would be a shortage of injuries. "Since it is a six month long season, starting later in the season should cut back on injuries," commented Coach Jeff Boyer. Although the season began later, the team practiced just as hard and just as long. Most team members wrestled on their own during the summer months and continually kept in shape. During the school year the team was lifting weights and running in the fall, while in the spring the team continued to lift weights. Practices consisted of stretching, drilling, wrestling and running. With a such a young team, technique was stressed in practice.

Even though the team was young, it placed high in tournaments. Out of seven teams in the JMU Invitational, the Dukes placed second, but in the Navy Classic the Dukes placed seventh out of seven teams. Right before the winter break the team competed in a meet between Kutztown, Cheyney and Southern Connecticut. The Dukes won each match decisively 24-15, 36-10 and 30-10 respectively, posting a quick 3-0 regular season record. After the winter break the Dukes began their CAA competition. The first meet against William and Mary was won by the Dukes easily 25-12. JMU then came back home and single-handedly defeated American 40-6, advancing their record to 5-0 and 2-0 in the CAA. Other matches during the season included meets against Army, Rutgers, Old Dominion, VMI and Virginia Tech.

Because of injuries, the Dukes relied on individual effort and motivation. Each time a member went out onto the mat he put his best effort forward. Sometimes the best wrestlers were not available because of illness and injury, but those who stepped in to take their place wrestled as hard as possible.

The 1993-94 season proved JMU's power in the CAA as well as with non-conference teams. The Dukes took the challenge given to them by their coach to succeed at what they did best. For the Dukes, this season would remain in their minds and their hearts forever.

-Matthew Vlieger

SHEER POWER. Trenton Boyd tries to flip over the wrestler in order to pin him on his back. Wrestling required power and endurance.

courtesy of Sports Media Relations

1993 James Madison University wrestling team

Front Row (L to R): Ken Rossi, Mike Gordon, Brian Dugan, Jamie Wade, Pete Smith. Second Row: Anne Ingram, Doug Batey, Doug Detrick, Jon Wadsworth, Brett Stefanko, Anthony Panzarella, Jared Giordano. Third Row: Dave Teylin, Roy Campbell, Michael Long, Chris Carpino, Matt Chang, Pat Coyle, Jamie Arnett, Mike Thompson. Fourth Row: Matt Wicand, Dan Bender, Trenton Boyd, Heath Wilkinson, John Poerstel, Jude Arena, Nathan Hanam, Cris Lull. Fifth Row: Todd Crompton, Chris Vidak, Josh Henson, Sean McKensie, David Leventhol, Kurt Hulett, Brian Gray, Brian Estes. Sixth Row: Remel Pugh, Bob Hamilton, Jon Venelli, Keith Zimmerman, Danny Link, John Clayton, Trent Gibson.

PREPARATION. Jude Arena gets ready to pounce on to his opponent. Wrestling was an extreme contact sport that required a lot from each individual.

Manzo

Manzo

Manzo

ALWAYS THERE. Coach Jeff Bowyer watches as his wrestler pins a Richmond wrestler. JMU was 2-0 in CAA matches against American and William & Mary.

HOLD HIM. Brian Gray holds on to his opponent with all his strength. Wrestling gave points for turnarounds and breakaways as well as pins.

Just For Kicks

JMU's club sports give students more choices without the pressures of the NCAA

Club sports provided a great opportunity for non-varsity athletes to participate in competitive sports without all of the added pressure and stress that varsity athletes faced. Men's and women's rugby and lacrosse were the two most well known club sports, but there were quite a few others that are becoming more popular. The martial arts, karate, bowling, softball, volleyball, caving and outing club are among these.

The lacrosse and rugby clubs proved to be very competitive around the area. They both won several titles within the past few years. However, it was not just their competitive nature that they were so well known for, but rather their team spirit and unity. Rugby president Jon O'Dette says, "We live together and party like the fraternities, but it's the love of the sport that holds us together." Both the rugby and lacrosse clubs were very close teams. The members developed great friendships and had many good times together, on and off of the field.

The caving club and outing club were two more clubs at JMU. They simply offered their members the opportunity to participate in outdoor activities within a group. The caving club tried to venture out to a different location each week, while the outing club was an adventurous organization that includes activities ranging from white water rafting to sky diving to water skiing. Each of these clubs served to provide their members with new and exciting experiences. They also tried to hold meetings every so often to see what kinds of activities interested the members. They scheduled their events accordingly.

In other realms, the bowling club offered its members a weekly league play. The club provided a great opportunity for amateur bowlers to improve their skills. The women's softball club gained experience by competing against J.V. teams from other colleges. The men's volleyball club provided a great opportunity for those who love the game to compete and learn. The martial arts club stressed self-defense techniques, while the karate club practiced the art-oriented styles. Each of these clubs offered the chance to compete, as well as the chance to improve.

Each of JMU's individual clubs offered its members the chance to compete, make new friends, and have a great time. Whether you were interested in a relaxing and leisure activity such as bowling, or fast-moving sport such as lacrosse, the club scene was a great way to get involved.

-Jen Howard

MUD-CITY. Members of the men's rugby team huddle up and prepare to get the ball. The team battled through rain, mud, snow and other elements to play their hardcore game.

BREAKTIME. Bowling club leaders Doug Sweeney, Daryl Pigat, Kristen Baumann and Jarad Phelps take a break from their games. The bowling club met at Valley Lanes for their practices.

CONFERENCE. Members of the men's lacrosse team huddle together to talk strategy. The men's lacrosse team practiced hard, trying to get their sport into the NCAA's list of recognized sports.

BREAKAWAY. Summer Clayton breaks away from a ruck and heads off to score. The women's rugby team have been state champions many seasons.

ARTISTS AT WORK. These students participate in the Art Day activities on the commons. Events such as Art Day gave students an opportunity to express their creativity and have fun.

From our first day on campus and throughout the following years at JMU, we grew as individuals. It was both our contact with others and our belief in ourselves that kept us striving toward our

Goals & Expectations

As freshmen, we entered the realm of JMU life full of hopes and fresh ideas. Through our classes, activities and social lives, we learned more about ourselves and reevaluated our ambitions and future plans.

Then, as sophomores and juniors, we continued to form our own special identities around campus. We planned our tomorrows through the activities we were involved in and with the help of those we encountered.

Looking back as seniors, we could see the vast changes we had gone through by our reevaluated attitudes and perceptions. As we prepared to make our way in the real world, we were all different people than we were when we entered the University.

As individuals, we strove to leave our mark on the University itself, as well as on the world around us. We came together with students sharing common interests and formed bonds that would last a lifetime. It was often said that friendships formed in college were the ones that lasted forever, and that was no exception at JMU.

A FAMILIAR WALK. These students walk toward the Campus Center on a clear fall day. The area between the Campus Center and the Quad was especially crowded on pleasant days.

As a school, JMU was often noted for its diversity. With students from across the country, and even from foreign countries, we were exposed to different values, ideals and perspectives. It was in fact the contact and the relationships we formed with various individuals that allowed us to form and define our own unique identities which would remain with us through our entire lives.

Editor: Hani Hong

Mary Jo Ackerman, Psyc/HCOM, Woodbridge, VA
 Seth I. Ackerman, History, Oakland, NJ
 Julie M. Ackert, Psychology, Yorktown, VA
 Jessica L. Adams, Social Work, Bassett, VA

Lisa Adams, Accounting, Burke, VA
 Meredith A. Adams, POSC, Fairfax, VA
 Steven M. Agee, CIS, Floyd, VA
 Carla D. Aikens, Accounting, Landover, MD

Looking to the future

Senior year was one full of fears, joys, memories and experiences. Looking back, seniors remembered the time they spent here at JMU. There were late nights spent writing papers, meeting deadlines, bonding with friends and going out to parties.

Many milestones of life at JMU were remembered, both the good and the bad. Most seniors were able to recall their first parking ticket, their first Thanksgiving dinner at D-hall, football games, homecomings, formals and hopefully, most were able to recall their 21st birthdays.

Senior year was a time for students to reflect on the past and to look to the future. Senior Tanya Hipson, expressing the end of her college career, said, "Senior year is a great time to reflect on the past years here and to make stronger ties with friends." Seniors spent quality time with the friends they made here before leaving. It was important for many to maintain their close ties, especially after graduation, when many students went their separate ways.

Many students were looking to the future and what it had to offer. Some students planned on going on to graduate school, and many already knew exactly what kind of work they were interested in doing. "JMU has given me the perfect background for my future career," said Brad Witzel. "I'm totally confident."

Students left here with many fond memories and experiences of the past four years and were glad to finally venture out into the "real world."

-Hani Hong

ONE LAST SHOT. Seniors pose for a last shot after four memorable years. The senior year was one of looking back and on to the future.

Mindy M. Aitken, Health/Fitness, Bristow, VA
 Dana A. Albertella, Kinesiology, Burke, VA
 Jill A. Alexander, Speech Path, Poquoson, VA
 Cheryl R. Allcock, Management, Lynchburg, VA

Jennifer J. Allen, Psychology, Mechanicsville, VA
 John J. Allen, III, Finance, Richmond, VA
 Katkina L. Allen, Kinesiology, Lynchburg, VA
 Michael S. Allred, Computer Sci, Staunton, VA

Kimberley M. Amprey, HCOM, Harrisonburg, VA
 Derek C. Anderson, Mathematics, Blacksburg, VA
 John E. Anderson, Finance, Richmond, VA
 Kellie J. Anderson, Psychology, Kennett Sq, PA

Kristen D. Anderson, Psychology, Severna Park, MD
 Mark M. Anderson, Finance, Naples, FL
 Melanie R. Anderson, Fashion Merch, Sterling, VA
 Herbert W. Ankrom, Telecom, Earlysville, VA

Jason M. Antonakas, Accounting, Colombia, MD
 Katherine K. Archer, POSC, Lignum, VA
 Joseph R. Arcona, SocSci/SECED, Harrisonburg, VA
 Jill M. Armstrong, Psychology, Harrisonburg, VA

Manzo

Manzo

Manzo

KISS GOODBYE. An affectionate senior gives his pal a kiss. Friends made at JMU lasted a lifetime.

CLASS CLOWNS. Senior Bob Hamilton and friend ham it up for the camera. Seniors had their fun before venturing out into the real world.

Nicole S. Armstrong, HCOM/Pub Rel, Auburn, ME
 Todd W. Arnold, Accounting, Cochranville, PA
 Heidi K. Arthur, Chemistry, Onemo, VA
 Cary S. Ashby, English, The Plains, VA

Michael P. Ashdown, Psyc/POSC, Herndon, VA
 Amanda D. Ashley, MCOM, Virginia Beach, VA
 Karen L. Aspy, POSC, Virginia Beach, VA
 Mark R. Aukamp, Int'l Business, Harrisonburg, VA

Alexandra C. Austin, Psyc/Educ, Richmond, VA
 Ashley L. Austin, Biology, Fayetteville, NC
 Tatiana K. Austin, English, Alexandria, VA
 Louis J. Babilino, Accounting, Harrisonburg, VA

Timothy A. Back, Economics, Reisterstown, MD
 Kimberly A. Badin, English, Springfield, VA
 Mark E. Baggett, Art/Gra Des, Natural Bridge St, VA
 J. Darcy Bailey, HCOM, Virginia Beach, VA

Leigh A. Bailey, Psychology, Springfield, VA
 Crystal L. Baker, Art, Wytheville, VA
 Kimberly C. Baker, HCOM, Harrisonburg, VA
 Michael T. Baker, CIS, Vienna, VA

Sweats and sales

They were like a magnets...it was not possible to walk past the campus center without stopping to look at the items displayed at patio sales. Almost every day, come bright sun or icy cold, vendors set up shop on the patio. They drew us in with clothes, shining jewelry and woven blankets.

Nearly every one of us stopped and checked out several of the sales. Some students could not resist looking at everything even if they did not plan to buy something. "I look at every one of them—they give you a chance to buy things you would never find in a mall," says senior Crystal Baker.

Hand woven wool or cotton sweaters, mittens and blankets were practical items for students to buy. As the it got colder, vendors took full advantage of the weather. Students enjoyed looking at the ethnically diverse items that some vendors offered such as blankets from Mexico, bags from Thailand and jewelry from South America. While most students did not really think twice about buying those items, senior Farah Wahab comments, "I think they overcharge for the ethnic stuff just because it's ethnic." Although that may be true, many students snap up items from other cultures, so price is not always a deterrent.

Patio sales were always lots of fun to look at, even if we did not buy anything. And the variety of items that the vendors sold provided students with unique memorable items for themselves or for others. Those things, along with the convenience of having sales on campus was a combination that was often hard to resist.

-Gwen Whitney

Kimberly J. Balsbaugh, Psychology, Richmond, VA
 Jaimie J. Bang, Biology, Fairfax, VA
 Jennifer, A. Banks, Finance, Richmond, VA
 Lee N. Barba, POSC/Hist, Hanover, VA

Jennifer A. Barberich, Hot/Rest Mgt, Allentown, PA
 Chadwick J. Barbour, POSC/Hist, South Hill, VA
 Leo M. Barbour, Art/Graphic Des, Bassett, VA
 Rosetta V. Barbour, Psychology, Crozet, VA

Paul E. Barden, Finance, Richmond, VA
 Steven T. Barham, Psychology, Falls Church, VA
 Aredra Barlow, Newport News, VA
 Jackquiline M. Barnes, Biology, Forestville, MD

Jill M. Barone, English, Winchester, VA
 Chandler C. Bartz, Music, Harrisonburg, VA
 Wendy M. Bass, Chemistry, Danville, VA
 Danielle C. Batdorf, HCOM, Virginia Beach, VA

Shannon M. Beal, Basic Hlth & Nutr, Alexandria, VA
 Carolyn S. Bean, Theatre/MCOM, Mandeville, LA
 Mary Elizabeth Beard, Accounting, Keysville, VA
 Daryl S. Beck, Accounting, Earlysville, VA

IT'S A DEAL! Many vendors compromised and made deals with students who were always looking out to save a penny.

SHOW YOUR LETTERS! These Greeks show off clothing that can be bought at patio sales. Many students could special order clothing to suit individual tastes.

Melissa S. Bees, Sociology, Hampton, NJ
 Steffani Beland, Accounting, Annandale, VA
 Monica S. Belcher, Psychology, Stuart, VA
 Christina L. Beltran, Interior Design, Fairfax, VA

Karen F. Bennett, Mathematics, Medford, NJ
 Kevin H. Bennett, Chemistry, Hinton, VA
 Stacey H. Berger, Health Science, Baltimore, MD
 Kevin L. Berry, Accounting, Harrisonburg, VA

Michelle C. Beucler, English, Chesapeake, VA
 Diane L. Beury, Acctg/CIS, Crofton, MD
 Dawn M. Bilello, Sociology, Herndon, VA
 Matthew C. Bingay, MUI, Harrisonburg, VA

Kim Birnbaum, Psychology, Harrisonburg, VA
 Emily C. Black, Music Educ, Chantilly, VA
 Lilia R Blackstone, POSC, Richmond, VA
 Kristen L. Blalock, Music Educ, Roanoke, VA

Sonya N. Bland, Health Science, Petersburg, VA
 Valerie S. Blase, Social Work, Alexandria, VA
 Chris K. Blazie, Computer Science, Street, MD
 Steven R. Bluhm, Management, Annandale, VA

An everyday alternative

Switching on the radio, one found only a few select stations that would penetrate the mountains that surrounded the mecca of Harrisonburg. That was why JMU's own station, WXJM, propelled itself into its high popularity by giving James Madison, and the rest of the 'Burg, a new choice to the humdrum music played on other stations. "WXJM was a nice alternative to the typical sounds of the Shenandoah Valley," commented senior Christain Munson.

WXJM was made up of many student volunteers, whose only reward was getting to hear their own voices on the radio and playing "cool tunes" of their choice. The radio station played a variety of music to satisfy the palates of almost all at JMU. Alternative, classic rock, rap, reggae and early 80's music topped the WXJM list. The diversity of the music played strongly reflected the diversity of the student body.

The station broadcasted on 88.7 FM, a channel that was usually already preprogrammed on most students' radios. It aired almost 20 hours a day, and 24 on the weekends. WXJM also provided news, weather and sports information to give everybody a little taste of a what a true station really was. Not only were there the "regular" daily deejays, there was often a list of substitutes, which only added to the variety of music played on the station. As the station's motto stated, "we put interesting things in your ears."

- Joe Olson

YOU'RE ON THE AIR. Nicole Curry works the microphone. WXJM deejays put in long hours in the booth.

Christine M. Bodkin, Nursing, Sterling, VA
 Kerrie L. Bogaz, Psychology, Chesterfield, VA
 Allison P. Bogert, Biology, Mechanicsburg, PA
 Tracy L. Bolander, HCOM/POSC, Manassas, VA

Ronald L. Bolen, Nursing, Harrisonburg, VA
 Mary S. Boling, Psychology, Middleburg, VA
 Michael B. Booker, Social Science, Dumfries, VA
 Rhonda R. Boone, PrePhsTh/Psyc, Boonesmill, VA

Betsy C. Borders, Art Ed/Art Hist, Poquoson, VA
 Paula M. Borkowski, Mgmt., Woodbridge, VA
 Richard A. Bottomley, Art, Reston, VA
 Renee M. Bousseilaire, CIS, Springfield, VA

Jamie W. Bowlus, Accounting, Frederick MD
 Kristi M. Braden, Finance/BLaw, Springfield, VA
 George Bradshaw, GraDes/Art Hist, Bloomsbury, NJ
 Julia E. Bragg, MCOM, Richmond, VA

Michael S. Breeden, POSC, Elkton, VA
 Amanda L. Breeding, English, Roanoke, VA
 Anne M. Breitbach, Psychology, Harrisonburg, VA
 Cynthia M. Brennan, Biology, Westifield, NJ

Hawk

Hawk

Hawk

DECISIONS. Jeff Speight selects Wthe CDs from a plethora of discs. XJM had it all, from alternative to rap.

CHECK LIST. Susan Ford makes sure things are organized. Much preparation went into producing a radio program show.

Susan M. Brinkworth, Accounting, Malvern, PA
 Laura J. Brittingham, Health Science, W-P AFB, OH
 Shari M. Brittingham, Computer Sci, Salisbury, MD
 Carrie E. Broach, Nursing, Harrisonburg, VA

Javan M. Brooks, Art/Educ, Pleasantville, NJ
 Chris J. Broussard, Marketing, Shoneham, NY
 Andrea Y. Brown, HCOM, Roanoke, VA
 Jennifer M. Brown, Spanish, Phoenixville, PA

Jennifer A. Brown, Psychology, Fairfax, VA
 Laura A. Brown, CIS, Richmond, VA
 Tia L. Brown, POSC/Eng, Troutville, VA
 Jacquie L. Bruce, Computer Sci, Dumfries, VA

Andrea M. Bryant, Psychology, Montclair, VA
 Alison Buchan, Biology, Berryville, VA
 Tara S. Bunker, POSC, Malevern, PA
 Cecilia Burh, Psychology, Charlottesville, VA

Tracy M. Burgis, Intl Business, Virginia Beach, VA
 John J. Burke, Marketing, Gainesville, VA
 Jeffrey R. Burmeister, Biology, Midlothian, VA
 Cheryl K. Burnett, Mktg/Mgt, Staunton, VA

Up to see the sunrise

Papers, exams, a great party—on any night, these were reasons for students to stay up late. College students were notorious for getting little sleep during the week. Most made up for it on the weekends and to the faculty's dismay, some made up for it in class. Pizza places and several restaurants around the 'Burg stayed open late to serve students who had late night munchie attacks, but Senior Adam Anderson was sometimes out of luck. "About 6 am you want food, but D-hall doesn't open until 7 o'clock so you have to stay up even longer."

Senior Kimberly Brown remembered her late nights, saying, "It was weird seeing the sun rise—after a while, you begin to hallucinate from lack of sleep." Students welcomed any source of caffeine while trying to cram the last few hours of the night with work.

Parties with good friends and good music were hard to resist and kept students awake almost any night of the week. Sometimes parties were a method of procrastination, but, like everything else, only resulted in an even later night full of work.

Everywhere on campus, students seemed proud to have stayed up late. It wasn't uncommon to hear one telling another how late he or she was up. Some never made it past two a.m., while others were just getting started then. Whatever the reason, late nights for students were usually unavoidable and left some Dukes in need of some z's.

-Gwen Whitney

Scott D. Burnop, Biology, Marion, VA
 Kelli A. Burr, Finance, Stafford, VA
 Forrest K. Burtette, Music Ind, Hampton, VA
 Jerald K. Burton, Marketing, Danville, VA

Sean P. Burton, History, McLean, VA
 Spencer C. Burton, Social Science, Arlington, VA
 Kelly L. Bussey, Biology, Virginia Beach, VA
 Linda M. Butler, Psychology, Oakton, VA

Jennifer D. Byers, Economics, Boalsburg, PA
 Cecil K. Cadwallader, III, Acct/Fin, Earlysville, VA
 Mark A. Cagley, CIS, Charlottesville, VA
 James A. Cales, III, POSC/Eng, Portsmouth, VA

Carrie A. Calleran, POSC, Richmond, VA
 Christina K. Campo, Art, Lewes, DE
 Rosheen M. Campbell, Social Sci, Havertown, PA
 Jeffrey H. Capilongo, Marketing, Chesapeake, VA

Susan J. Cappel, Anthropology, Springfield, VA
 Denise R. Carey, Biology, Wytheville VA
 Michael D. Carr, Accounting, Roanoke, VA
 Carrie A. Carreno, Biology, Youngstown, NY

J. Williams

Hong

THE MIDNIGHT HOUR. Sophomore Ellie Pattee studies late at night. Living in a suite often allowed students to study in the common area without disturbing their roommates.

CRASHED OUT. Junior Miranda Kilby can only handle so much studying in one night. Sometimes students weren't able to make it through the night.

Franca

AN EXTRA MEAL. Junior Hani Hong goes on a food run late at night. Many students had munchie attacks while working late on papers and projects.

Jennifer A. Carrier, History, Manassas, VA
 Poni Q. Carter, Mathematics, Severna Park, MD
 Melissa A. Casey, Intl Business, Covington, VA
 Kerri L. Cash, Management, Buena Vista, VA

Catherine E. Cassidy, Hlth Sci/Span, Arlington, VA
 Sheri L. Cervenka, Business Mgt, Succ, NJ
 Min C. Cha, History, Vienna, VA
 Raminder S. Chadha, Intl Bus, New Delhi, India

Choi L. Chan, Fin Engineering, Winchester, VA
 Robert E. Chandler, POSC, Leesburg, VA
 Jenny K. Chang, Mathematics, Harrisonburg, VA
 Angela B. Chapson, Intl Business, Rockville, MD

Linh K. Chau, Psychology, Springfield, VA
 Mark G. Chauvin, CIS, Baltimore, MD
 Nicole J. Cheeks, MCOM, Yorktown, VA
 Alanna H. Cho, CIS, Falls Church, VA

Jarret R. Christensen, Marketing, Culpeper, VA
 Tonia L. Churchwell, POSC, Richmond, VA
 Erika M. Chvala, CIS, Midlothian, VA
 Patricia M. Cicelski, English, Woodbridge, VA

Waiting for the day

Oh, what a difference a year makes! To most JMU students, the difference between the ages of twenty and twenty-one seemed longer than the normal 365 days. Turning twenty-one was a much anticipated event that gave students a new type of adult freedom.

Some students were lucky enough to turn twenty-one during the early part of their junior year. These were the people who suddenly received phone calls asking for them to sign for kegs or run by the ABC store for their still underage classmates. Those who did not reach legality until the summer before or even during their senior year found they had some catching up to do with friends who were already accustomed to attending Ladies' Night at JM's. Senior Drew vanEsselstyn said, "I watched patiently with my coke at the Beanery, knew I would be turned away on Tuesday night at JM's, and now that I'm finally 21, I have a lot of time to make up for."

While being able to drink was the most commonly cited new privilege acquired, even those who did not drink were excited to turn legal.

They could now join friends and socialize in places filled with people their age because they could get into bars to see bands

Activities planned for the big day ranged from person to person. Some opted to have a party while still others barhopped around Harrisonburg hoping to get free birthday drinks. No matter how they chose to celebrate, students found that turning twenty-one was one of the best aspects of growing older.

-Heather Gustin

Ian A. Cillay, Marketing, Bethesda, MD
 Nancy D. Clark, Health Science, Manassas, VA
 Melissa A. Click, Marketing, Roanoke, VA
 Jeffrey P. Clift, Economics, King George, VA

Brian G. Cochran, POSC/Econ, Leesburg, VA
 Nancy B. Coffindaffer, Intl Affairs, McLean, VA
 Anne M. Coffman, Finance, Ft. Defiance, VA
 Mark A. Coffren, Kinesiology, Burke, VA

Jeffrey A. Cohn, Chemistry, Gaithersburg, MD
 Delaney C. Colbert, Management, Alexandria, VA
 Erik E. Cole, POSC, Nashville, TN
 Thea L. Coleman, Spanish, Richmond, VA

Jennifer L. Colter, MCOM, Langhorne, PA
 James A. Colucci, Economics, Leesburg, VA
 Kristin A. Colvin, Biology/Art, Pomoton Plains, NJ
 Courtney L. Coleman, Marketing, Ashland, VA

Cynthia M. Combs, Art, Virginia Beach, VA
 J.P. Connelly, Intl Bus/French, Harrisonburg, VA
 Donna F. Conner, Speech Path, Strasburg, VA
 Valerie A. Conner, Marketing, Vinton, VA

Manzo

Manzo

SMILING IN THEIR LEGALITY. These students display their happiness in being able to drink...legally. Those under 21 could not hold their beer so proudly outside.

BEER RUN! Jill Johnson returns with two cases of beer to her apartment. Getting beer was an automatic job for those students who were fortunately 21.

Carmen A. Conrey, Dietetics, Ellicott City, MD
 Julie M. Conroy, Theater/MCOM, Overland Pk, KS
 Anthony E. Cooch, Jr., Accounting, Burke, VA
 Christina B. Coons, HCOM, Bryantown, MD

Elizabeth P. Cooper, Intl Business, Vienna, VA
 Jennifer G. Cooper, English, Lynchburg, VA
 Laurel J. Cope, POSC, Falls Church, VA
 Candy M. Corcoran, Accounting, Bethesda, MD

Sara E. Cordeiro, Hot/Rest Mgt, Wakefield, RI
 Lisa M. Cordiano, MCOM/Thtr, New Providence, NJ
 Maria E. Cordle, Psychology, Highland Spgs, VA
 James A. Cordovana, Hist/PreMed, Chesapeake, VA

Brenda S. Corley, Speech Path, Waynesboro, PA
 Keri B. Craig, Intl Business, Woodbridge, VA
 Timothy Craig, Computer Science, Fairfax, VA
 Alisa B. Cramer, Accounting, Mechanicsville, VA

Michelle M. Craver, Speech Path, Maurertwon, VA
 Cherie K. Crawford, Intl Bus, Hagerstown, MD
 Jody L. Craybas, Hotel/Rest Mgt, Greenwich, RI
 Thomas D. Croci, POSC, Bohemia, NY

Mass quantities

Looking around the room, you see...spots! What is this, you wonder? There are spots everywhere: on the refrigerator, on placemats, on the plants' pots, on the stove and all over the room. Either you need to get your eyes checked, or what you see is...a "cowtchen." There are cows everywhere. And why? Senior Lori Dolby who collects cows, says "It all started as a joke, and then my mom caught on and that was the end of it!"

Collections were sometimes an extension of the collector's identity and personality. Collections could range from fountain pens for the future novelist, baseball cards for fans of the great american sport, CD's for the would-be deejay, many items of a favorite animal and knick knacks in general. Collections often showed off part of someone's personality, such as items from a favorite pas-time: ballet, golf, and other sports and activities. Even certain hobbies could be represented in a collection of items: note pads with music notes, rubber stamps with the treble clef, stationery with a musical staff and other items for the music lover. The theatre major might collect drama masks, and dinosaurs for the future paleontologist.

Collections were great to make a student's room feel more comfortable and ward off feelings of homesickness. Many ended up receiving gifts with the general theme of their collections. Students generally always had something to show off, and their collections seemed to come up front.

-Hani Hong

Daryl E. Cronk, Finance, Roanoke, VA
 Christopher W. Crooks, Comp Sci, Springfield, VA
 Scott T. Cross, Marketing, Basking Ridge, NJ
 Charles E. Crowder, Finance, Colonial Hts, VA

Rebecca L. Crusse, Psychology, Charlottesville, VA
 George P. Cullen, Nursing, Staunton, VA
 John R. Cunningham, CompSci, Glenshaw, PA
 Tina M. Curry, Psychology, Alexandria, VA

Matthew P. Cushing, Accounting, Rockville Cnt, NY
 Max Custer, Biology, Virginia Beach, VA
 Francesca E. Czaja, History, Alexandria, VA
 Nicola R. Dacres, Political Science, Columbia, MD

Mary K. Dadisman, Sociology, Harrisonburg, VA
 Marchetta N. Daniels, Fash Merch, Richmond, VA
 Catherine C. Darby, Finance, Stafford, VA
 Marcia L. Daughtry, CIS, Portsmouth, VA

Benjamin Davidson, Journalism, York, ME
 Melissa L. Davies, Social Work, Staunton, VA
 Alex J. Davis, Accounting, Gaithersburg, MD
 Brett P. Davis, History, Laurel, MD

Hong

Hong

COW CRAZY. This student has an obvious fetish for these bovines. A cow cutting board and a cow kettle are a few of the paraphernalia displayed.

CUDDLY CREATURES. This student displays a variety of stuffed animals. Who could say stuffed animals are just for kids?

Sharen A. Davis, MCOM, Gretna, VA
 Steffany C. Davis, Marketing, Williamsburg, VA
 Wanda G. Davis, Computer Sci, Lynchburg, VA
 Mathew D. Daw, Biology, Ramsey, NJ

Stephen N. Day, MCOM, Colonial Heights, VA
 David W. Deane, POSC, Stanardsville, VA
 Deborah M. Deaver, Socio/SPED, Staunton, VA
 Angela C. Deck, Kinesiology, Dumfries, VA

Donna J. de Haas, Psychology, Alexandria, VA
 Amity L. De Jong, Psychology, Newton, PA
 Tara L. Delaney, Art, Thornton, PA
 Julia E. DeLise, History, Rockville, MD

Kimberly A. Dement, Nursing, Waldorf, MD
 Amanda K. Denis, Social Sciences, Vienna, VA
 Christy T. Denslow, MCOM, Arlington, VA
 Lara E. Derby, MCOM, Monkton, MD

Michael S. Derrer, POSC, Harrisonburg, VA
 Edward J. D'Ettore, Finance, New Fairfield, CT
 Sheila Detwiler, Speech Path, Richmond, VA
 Debra L. Diaz, Psychology, Coral Springs, FL

Doing your own thing

Living off campus meant finally having a place of your own. There were no more RAs or annoying two a.m. fire drills. For many, it meant more privacy and the ability to be more independent. "I love living off campus because I'm more independent and I don't have to eat dinner in D-hall," said junior Heidi Manley.

Having pets was an added incentive for some to move off. Junior Lindy Daum agreed and added, "I finally can have a cat now that I'm off campus."

There were a few negative points to off campus living such as cooking and taking buses to campus, but most students brushed them aside. "I hate the cooking," said junior Jill Parcell, "but it is a small sacrifice to make for more freedom."

"The only bad thing I can think of is that I'm not surrounded by people all of the time," said junior Stephanie Griffin. Other students, however, noted that there always seemed to be a party around the block, or even the corner. Said junior Hani Hong, "Living in Ashby Crossing, it was always easy to find a party, and I didn't have to drive anywhere!"

Whether students lived in apartments, such as Hunter's Ridge or Ashby Crossing, or houses, off campus living was viewed in a positive light. The increased independence more than made up for the few inconveniences associated with off campus living.

-Colleen Crowley

IN CONTROL. Junior Todd Creswick sits back and relaxes in front of the tube in Olde Mill. Students felt more at home when living off campus.

Laurie Ann Dick, Psych /SPED, Herndon, VA
 Denise C. Dickinson, Sociology, Axton, VA
 Ann R. Dickson, Eng/French, Sewiddey, PA
 Tracy D. DiBon, Mathematics, Culpeper, VA

Michael Dilorio, Music Industry, Richmond, VA
 Leigh D. Dillard, Psyc/ECED, Tappahannock, VA
 Stephanie D. Dillard, Marketing, Yorktown, VA
 Jennifer L. Di Orio, English, Fanwood, NJ

Heidi M. Dix, Nursing, Tappahannock, VA
 Lynne M. Dohner, MCOM, Hershey, PA
 Lorine Dolby, Psychology, Arlington, VA
 James J. Donaldson, Psychology, Oakton, VA

Robert P. Dorr, Accounting, Washington, D.C.
 Benjamin R. Dorsey, History, Midlothian, VA
 Kristen A. Douth, Social Work, Chesapeake, VA
 Francile M. Downey, Psychology, Harrisonburg, VA

Lemmie M. Downs, Psychology, Crewe, VA
 David Bryan Doyle, Management, Harrisonburg, VA
 Lara E. Doyle, Speech Path, Salisbury, MD
 Douglas G. Drake, Physics, Big Rapids, MI

J. Williams

Hong

AIRDOLBY. Senior Lori Dolby stands triumphantly over a fallen Tanya Hipson at a basketball court at Ashby Crossing. Off campus living often provided extras such as courts and a weight room.

Roxanna G. Drake, Art, Alexandria, VA
 Jason F. Drakopoulos, Mktg, East Northport, NY
 Kevin A. Drummond, Public Rel, Elliot City, MD
 Susan E. Dryden, Nursing, Pocomoke, MD

Andrea L. Dubin, Mktg, West Gaithersburg, MD
 Joanna K. Dubois, Intl Affairs, Lexington Park, MD
 Kimberly A. Duck, Psychology, Chesapeake, VA
 Lisa M. Duffy, Marketing, Newark, DE

Kelly Duke, Accounting, Richmond, VA
 David C. Duncan, Geol/Anthrop, California, MD
 Paige A. Duncan, History, Alexandria, VA
 Edward J. Durocher, Accounting, Yorktown, PA

Marcia L. Edmundson, French, Midlothian, VA
 Melanie L. Edwards, Speech Path, Bridgewater, VA
 Tara H. Edwards, HCOM, Radford, VA
 Dawn R. Eggleston, Art, Winsburg, VA

Shonda D. Eldes, Psychology, Charlottesville, VA
 Sheri R. Ellis, Music Education, Richmond, VA
 Lorie E. Elmore, Interior Design, Waynesboro, VA
 Chad T. Emery, International Affairs, APO, AE

Flying by

Cars were often an extension of one's personality. JMU students viewed their cars as treasures. For many students, a car was the first major item they owned and it was considered a most prized possession. "I'm a pretty neat person, so my car has to be very clean," said Jeff Haas, owner of a 1982 Honda Prelude. "It's my baby, one of the few things that I truly rely on."

Owning a car in Harrisonburg could be somewhat of a burden, especially when considering the parking problem here at JMU. However, cars were a blessing to most students. "I like having my car here because I don't like having to find a ride," said Mike Thompson. "I don't have to depend on anybody." Owning a car at school was definitely more of a benefit than not, as most lucky students with wheels would quickly attest.

- Jon Wadsworth

TREASURED SPACES. X Lot was always full of cars that belonged to students who lived on campus. As anyone can attest to, it was usually impossible to find a space.

Manzo

Joseph M. Erhart, English, Rockville, MD
 David C. Erickson, Geology, Austin, TX
 Jeffrey M. Erickson, POSC, Virginia Beach, VA
 Maryanne C. Estrella, Intl Business, Norfolk, VA

Amy K. Everitt, Accounting, Newport News, VA
 Tamara M. Faison, Marketing, Midlothian, VA
 Stacy L. Falls, Dietetics, Dover, PA
 Felicia L. Farrar, HCOM, Richmond, VA

Kristen E. Farrell, HCOM, Alexandria, VA
 Thomas B. Fatouros, English, Deltaville, VA
 George R. Feldman Jr., Comp Sci, Toms Brook, VA
 Claire M. Ferguson, Psyc/ELED, Newport News, VA

Danielle A. Ferguson, English, Richmond, VA
 Diane M. Fernandez, Marketing, Arnold, MD
 Remigio P. Ferrara, Marketing, Vienna, VA
 John M. Finamore, Mathematics, Waldorf, MD

Monica L. Finch, Political Science, Poquoson, VA
 Melissa P. Fineu, Psychology, Norfolk, VA
 Ly T. Finney, History, Arlington, VA
 Jennifer A. Finnie, English, Harrisonburg, VA

Hong

BEAM ME UP. This lucky student gets ahead of the rest of us, while we trail along behind. Many students would have liked a nicer car, but for most, it was just a dream.

RUSTY & TRUSTY. The typical student's car at James Madison was usually a hand me down. Most students, however, just needed something to get around in.

Hong

Angela G. Firkins, English, Stafford, VA
 Susan J. Firth, Social Work, Manassas, VA
 Sarah L. Fischer, Intl Affairs, Alexandria, VA
 Mark S. Fisher, Telecom, Middle Island, NY

Paula C. Fisher, HCOM, Weems, VA
 Christopher N. Fitch, English, Charlottesville, Va
 Sean R. FitzGerald, GERN, Harrisonburg, VA
 Karen S. Flannery, HCOM, San Francisco, CA

Debra L. Flechner, Speech Path, Hampton, VA
 Kavis P. Fleming, English, Manakin-Sabot, VA
 Susan R. Fleming, International Affairs, Stafford, VA
 Rhonda L. Fleshman, OSM, Bridgewater, VA

Heather L. Flood, Intl Affairs, Reston, Va
 Amanda G. Flora, Psychology, Rocky Mount, VA
 Margaret M. Foecking, Marketing, Richmond, VA
 Kristen L. Folks, Speech Path, Covington, VA

Terri R. Folston, Marketing, Portsmouth, VA
 Ginger L. Fonzi, Psychology, Richmond, VA
 Susan B. Ford, Photography, Media, PA
 Carla L. Foster, Psyc/Criminal Just, Hampton, VA

Beauty is JMU deep

The beauty of JMU's campus was one of its main selling points. The administration invested a great deal in terms of both money and manpower to keep the grounds looking their best.

A prime time to exhibit the lovely scenes of nature on campus was parents weekend. For weeks ahead of the long-awaited weekend, JMU grounds crews were hard at work planting and cultivating flowers and shrubbery. "Wow, I see them out there all the time!" said junior Colleen Magin. "They must plant all night!" Fences strategically placed to prevent students from trampling freshly planted grass were removed around the time parents began arriving on Friday afternoon.

The winter months didn't give JMU groundskeepers a rest. They were out early to shovel snow and remove ice so students could reach their classes safely. The landscapers also managed to inject a little sunshine into students' days by planting brightly colored flowers during the winter months. "My room had no heat for four weeks, but it lifted my spirits to see posies outside my window," said sophomore Jon Wadsworth.

Graduation day brought many visitors and many more truckloads of purple and gold tulips to campus. As they entered the real world, memories of one of the most beautiful campuses on the East Coast went with them.

-Kristi Shackelford

INBLOOM. One of JMU's flowerbeds is caught in full bloom. Thanks to a great landscaping staff, JMU maintained a reputation of having a beautiful campus.

Jennifer A. Foster, Biology, Roanoke, VA
 Jennifer L. Foster, Finance, Annapolis, MD
 Stephaney D. Foster, Marketing, Norfolk, VA
 Jennifer L. Fournier, Art, Herndon, VA

Tina H. Fox, HCOM, Springfield, VA
 Julie C. Francis, Geology, Reisterstown, MD
 David A. Frankel, CIS, Pittsburg, PA
 Rebecca E. Franz, English, Harrisonburg, VA

Brian D. Frazier, Music Educ, Timonium, MD
 Christine A. Frazier, Nursing, Woodbridge, VA
 Delinda D. Frazier, Music Industry, Alexandria, VA
 Sharon A. Freeland, Health/Fit Prom, Carlisle, PA

Freda D. Freeman, Biology, Alexandria, VA
 Christina M. Frey, Management, Gaithersburg, MD
 Christina M. Fry, Music, Reston, VA
 James D. Fugit, Intl Affairs, Tampa, FL

Blessed C. Fuller, HCOM, Hampton, VA
 Brian M. Fyock, Accounting, Midlothian, VA
 Shaun W. Galang, Psychology, Bridgewater, VA
 Crista D. Galvin, Dietetics, Staunton, VA

Gustin

Hong

Gustin

AN ABUNDANCE OF COLOR. JMU's landscapers often planted purple and yellow flowers in the spirit of JMU.

SPRING YEARROUND. With plants blooming all year, it always felt like Spring on campus. The grounds crew here often worked year round to keep campus looking great.

Karen E. Gardner, HCOM, Warrenton, VA
 Erin G. Garvin, Kinesiology, Roanoke, VA
 Andrea T. Gease, Accounting, Richmond, VA
 Karen M. Gelfond, Sociology, Springfield, VA

Dona Gentile, Psychology, Frazer, PA
 Robert C. Gentry, Jr., History, Richmond, VA
 William B. George, Finance, Richmond, VA
 Christopher R. Ghion, CIS, Silver Springs, MD

Roger P. Giardino, Finance, Bayside, NY
 Susan E. Gibbons, English, Hampton, VA
 Betsy K. Gilbert, Accounting, Alden, NY
 Kathryn A. Gilliam, HCOM, Altavista, VA

Jeffrey C. Gilliatt, Computer Science, Chester, VA
 Kimberly J. Gilmer, Psychology, Fort Wash, VA
 Randi H. Gische, Intl Affairs, Manalopan, NJ
 Kristie L. Gladwell, Nursing, Luray, VA

Ashley L. Glazebrook, HCOM/Eng, Powhatan, VA
 Beth E. Goddard, Nursing, Hampton, NH
 Rebecca J. Gofreed, Sociology, Centerville, VA
 Robert R. Goller, CIS, Petersburg, VA

Looking good

Colorful beaded necklaces, dangly earrings and outrageous rings were just a few of the pieces of jewelry seen on students around campus. Jewelry not only accessorized an outfit, but it was also a means of self-expression. "Jewelry can say something about a person's personality because there are so many different styles of jewelry these days," commented junior Malia Bell.

The different styles could be seen in the size of necklaces that were worn. Chokers were a new trend, but the long necklaces (rope or leather strings) with bright beads and wild pendants were still seen frequently around the necks of students. "I love making beaded necklaces because there are so many different beads and it is inexpensive," said sophomore Melissa Stephan.

Earrings ranged from simple gold hoops to exotic indian bead earrings. These days the ear lobe was not the only place on the body being pierced. Noses, belly buttons and the upper ear were being marked with small hoops and simple studs.

Men, as well as women, were sporting jewelry. Guys wore necklaces, chains, earrings in all places, and rings. Jewelry often portrayed personality and was popular among students. Its diversity was reflected in the student body.

-Kathy Hawk

WRAPPED AROUND YOUR FINGER.. Rings abound on students' fingers. Unusual designs went hand in hand with the original classic designs.

Brian A. Gonzales, Biology, Hopewell, VA
 Norman M. Gonzales, Anthrop, Virginia Beach, VA
 Victor M. Gonzales, Intl Affairs/Span, Arlington, VA
 Judith J. Good, English, Shenandoah, VA

Teresa L. Good, Psychology, Stanley, VA
 Dana L. Goodman, FMD, Sandston, VA
 Carrie L. Gordon, Nursing, Burnie, MD
 Denise G. Gordon, Marketing, Roanoke, VA

Todd S. Gordon, Accounting, Gaithersburg, MD
 Michael S. Goolieb, POSC, Great Falls, VA
 Wendy L. Graf, POSC, Centerville, VA
 Jonathan E. Graham, Psychology, Richmond, VA

Maria I. Granados, Intl Bus/Spanish, Mclean, VA
 Timonth W. Graul, Chemistry, Fairfax, VA
 Kenneth H. Gravlich, Marketing, Huntington, NY
 Edward A. Gray, MCOM/English, Blacksburg, VA

Caryl A. Brebowski, Marketing, Pittsburgh, PA
 Latia C. Green, HCOM, Virginia Beach, VA
 Tina Y. Green, CIS, Drive, VA
 Rachel C. Greer, HCOM, Vienna, VA

Vo

Vo

Vo

IT'S A STEVE THING. Junior Steve Antoine sports a "hoop" in his left ear. Earrings were commonplace on both men and women on campus.

DANGLERS & BEADS. This student displays the loose, beaded look. Students' jewelry was very diverse.

Susan M. Greer, Psychology, Springfield, VA
 Lillian S. Gregorio, Music Educ, Virginia Beach, VA
 Corinne L. Gregory, Psychology, Shady Side, MD
 Bonnie L. Griffiths, Biology, Randolph, NJ

Eric S. Grinnell, Management, Lynchburg, VA
 Gregory E. Grinnell, Mgmt/CIS, Stafford, VA
 Vincent E. Grippa, Intl Affairs, Nescanset, NY
 Cindy A. Grubenmann, French/Intl Aff, Triangle, VA

Joseph K. Guilfoyle, MCOM, Virginia Beach, VA
 Angelina M. Gulino, MCOM, Alexandria, VA
 Aimee J. Gunnoe, Health Science, Lynchburg, VA
 Heather L. Gustin, HCOM/Eng, Newport News, VA

Jennifer D. Hackett, Fine Art, Harrisonburg, VA
 Jennifer L. Haddock, Psychology, Bowie, MD
 Tammy M. Hade, Speech Path, High Bridge, VA
 Kimberly R. Hagy, Health Science, Tazewell, VA

Leslie F. Hagy, Dietetics, Tazewell, VA
 Rebecca Haile, MCOM/Anthrop., Camp Hill, PA
 Kristi L. Hale, Psychology, Harrisonburg, VA
 Katherine H. Hall, Acctg/Russian, Toms River, NJ

A season for all occasions

Living in the Shenandoah Valley was quite a change for many students. The Valley area tended to fluctuate temperatures from one day to the next. The weather at JMU was never predictable and the seasons had no pattern.

Students had to learn to adjust to the various weather conditions. Although closet space was sparse, students found it was necessary to keep summer and winter clothes year round because they always came in handy. Students also kept swim suits around for those unseasonably warm days and snow boots for those random snow storms.

JMU students also found themselves more susceptible to getting sick. Aside from the stress and lack of sleep of college students, the weather often caught them off guard. As Suzanne Smith says, "No wonder everybody was so sick this year—one day it's sunny and eighty degrees, and the next day it's forty degrees and raining."

Snow was often in the picture, too.

The Shenandoah Valley was a beautiful place to live. The sunsets over the mountains were a sight to see. But dealing with the rapid weather changes was another story... From rain to snow and back again.

-Valerie Leighton

GLOOMY DAYS. Students keep dry on a brisk, autumn day. The weather in Harrisonburg changed drastically, so that umbrellas were usually a necessity.

Robyn M. Hall, Marketing, Hampton, VA
 Deborah L. Halterman, POSC, Monterey, VA
 Thomas W. Hamilton, Fin/Mgmt, Annandale, VA
 Cheryl L. Handy, Sociology, Chesapeake, VA

Elizabeth A. Hannon, Fine Arts, Sterling, VA
 Lori A. Haralampus, Graphic Design, Alexandria, VA
 Stacy R. Harrell, Psych/ECED, Franklin, VA
 Edward B. Harris, CIS, Gloucester Point, VA

Kedra L. Harris, Management, Harrisonburg, VA
 Mary N. Harris, Art, Williamsburg, VA
 Sonya A. Harris, OSM/Business Ed, Dillwyn, VA
 Sonja D. Harrison, POSC, Rockville, VA

Ward M. Harrison, English, Manassas, VA
 Ann M. Hart, POSC, Rockville, MD
 Jason R. Harzog, MCOM, Staunton, VA
 Jennifer Harvey, Health/Fit Prom, Alexandria, VA

Kia N. Harvey, Speech Pathology, Richmond, VA
 Sherri L. Haskett, Mangement, Midlothian, VA
 Stephen B. Hassmer, Jr, Music, Sandston, VA
 Gregory A. Hastings, MCOM, Virginia Beach, VA

S. Williams

S. Williams

ROCKIN' BREAK. This student takes a break by Kissing Rock, while enjoying some music. When the weather was pleasant, students often spent time on the quad.

Yolanda E. Hawkes, POSC, Richmond, VA
 Geni I. Hawkins, Business Mgmt, Harrisonburg, VA
 Kelly D. Hawkins, Health Sci, Virginia Beach, VA
 Kristin M. Hayden, Psychology, Woodbridge, VA

LaDonna, C. Hearn, English, Collinsville, VA
 Carrie L. Heath, Biology, McLean, VA
 Jason P. Heimberg, Marketing, Rockville, MD
 Heather L. Heinfeldten, Psychology, Ellicott City, MD

Karen N. Held, MCOM, Richmond, VA
 Beth A. Hemmeter, Speech Path, Phoenix, MD
 Agnes M. Hendrick, Marketing, Richmond, VA
 Tonya E. Henley, Speech Path, Rockville, VA

Chris S. Henry, Psychology, Little Rock, AR
 Robert D. Hensley, Athletic Trg, Charlottesville, VA
 Stephanie A. Herbert, POSC, Blacksburg, VA
 Courtney L. Herman, Eng/MCOM, Baltimore, MD

Avis A. Hicks, English, Lynchburg, VA
 Charlie H. Hightower, Kinesiology, Vernon Hill, VA
 Janai L. Hill, Health Administration, Springfield, VA
 Carol A. Hilliard, Graphic Design, Newville PA

Hidden talent

Art was alive on the JMU campus. Painters, sculptors, photographers and other student artists across campus were fortunate to have the Zirkle House Art Galleries in which to exhibit their work. The galleries were the only ones in the state completely run and exhibited by students.

Students wishing to show their work in the galleries were required to have their work critiqued and chosen by a panel of student gallery directors. If chosen, an artist was given his or her own show or a joint show, and shared the gallery with another artist.

Each artist's show ran for two weeks with a special opening night on the first day of the show. Opening nights brought a large turnout of students and faculty. Everyone was drawn by the first opportunity to see the work of friends in the gallery, to eat and to socialize.

Students who wanted to get involved in the operation of the galleries earned class credit as a gallery assistant. Responsibilities included monitoring, maintenance and helping a student artist hang his or her show. As gallery assistants, students sampled a career in museum work.

The other main gallery on campus was Sawhill Gallery. Run by Stuart Downs, the gallery featured work from artists across the country representing a variety of media, while exhibiting work from members of the JMU community as well. The annual highlights of the gallery were the faculty art exhibition and the student art exhibition.

- Beth Anne Howie

Chisa Hino, Finance, Tokyo, Japan
 Tanya B. Hipson, HCOM/German, Herndon, VA
 Heather M. Hodges, POSC/HCOM, Newp News, VA
 Deana M. Hoisington, MCOM/Art Hist, Sterling, VA

Courtney W. Holden, Geography, Bedford, VA
 Barbara A. Holland, Mathematics, Poquoson, VA
 Beth A. Holler, Anthropology, Springs, PA
 Tonya R. Hollomon, CIS, Richmond, VA

Dana L. Holt, Social Work, Phenix, VA
 Matthew R. Holthaws, MCOM/Germ, Columbia, MD
 Michelle Hong, Spanish, Annandale, VA
 Melissa A. Hood, Computer Sci, Indianapolis, IN

LaShawn R. Hopson, OSM, Richmond, VA
 Marc J. Horner, Marketing, Alexandria, VA
 Amanda R. Hough, English/MCOM, Monterey, VA
 Amber M. Hough, Biology/Med Tech, Monterey, VA

Terri E. Houston, Public Relations, Richmond, VA
 Amity K. Hovey, Psychology, Columbia, MD
 Chip F. Howard, Biology, St. Johnsbury, VT
 Jenny L. Howard, HCOM, Churchville, VA

Humke

Hong

LANDMARK. Zirkle House stands across the quad on mainstreet. The age of the house added flair to the gallery.

CREATIVITY. A wood construction by Steve Zapton is a main attraction of the faculty art exhibit. The exhibit gave the art faculty a chance to show their skills.

Jessica E. Howat, Intl Affairs, Nutley, VA
 James R. Howe, Jr., Accounting, Woodstock, VT
 Rendi L. Howell, Psychology/ ECED, Hampton, VA
 Susan M. Howell, Marketing, Madison Heights, VA

Beth Anne Howie, MCOM, Vienna, VA
 Sarah F. Hoyt, Sociology, Alexandria, VA
 Karen E. Hubley, Psychology, Springfield, VA
 Jeffrey S. Huepper, Marketing, Clastonbury, CT

Jennifer C. Hueston, Music Educ, Richmond, VA
 Kimberly A. Huffman, Art History, Abingdon, VA
 Karen D. Hulick, Marketing, Kennett Sq, PA
 David J. Hummel, Biology, Mt Laurel, NJ

W. Michael Hunt, Psychology, Salem, VA
 Evelyn R. Hurley, English, Fairfax, VA
 Lee Anne Hurt, Marketing, Yorktown, VA
 Nancy L. Hurwitz, Biology, Rockville, MD

Michael P. Hutton, MCOM, Reston, VA
 Catherine A. Indelicato, POSC, Richmond, VA
 Shirin F. Irani, Biology, Wilmington, DE
 Jennifer A. Irrgang, POSC, Mechanicsburg, PA

Happy, happy, joy, joy

Sixty happy minutes. Well, usually more than that. Students often had a happy hour in their homes to start off their evenings with a little joy that lasted well over an hour.

Happy hours, like everything else, had their pros and cons. Many favored them because they allowed students to avoid throwing full blown parties that required major janitorial work. They also focused more on a closer group of friends and kept strangers at bay, limiting the number of people present. Many students liked going to a happy hour especially when there was schoolwork to be done since these "hours" didn't last through the night and were great for breaks.

Unfortunately for those sponsoring these great events, happy hours usually lasted longer than expected and a short evening sometimes stretched into a long night. "We had a happy hour that lasted six hours once. It's hard to ask your friends to leave, sometimes," said senior Mike Keaton.

Students liked the chance to dress up at semi-formal happy hours to spend some quality time with close friends. Sophomore Melanie Simpson commented, "A buddy of mine had one that was somewhat dressy. It's great to have an excuse for everyone to look nice even while we're merely hanging out together at a friend's."

These mini-parties were a great stress reliever for many and were also a fun option to choose over the typical bar scene, especially if one was under the age of twenty-one.

-Hani Hong

A. Christian Iudica, Bio/PreMed, Landenberg, PA
 Christy A. Ivey, Psych/ECED, Richmond, VA
 Cheryl C. Jackson, HCOM, Fredericksburg, VA
 Sharon E. Jackson, Accounting, Harrisonburg, VA

Heather E. Jacobs, Psychology, York, PA
 Jennifer Jacobs, HCOM, Laurel, MD
 Stephanie V. Jakobovic, Mgmt, Winchester, VA
 Ericka R. Janifer, Speech Path, Clinton, MD

Jeannie M. Janousek, Gen Soc Sci, Va Beach, VA
 Michael R. Jansen, Health Admin, Ijamsville, MD
 Cherise M. Jarvis, Fashion Merchan, Hampton, VA
 Amber Jaunrubenis, English, Saratoga, CA

Sarah E. Jenkinson, Eng/ECED, Arlington, VA
 Angela M. Johnson, Hth Sci/PhyTher, Stafford, VA
 Britt Johnson, Psychology, Winchester, VA
 Demetra A. Johnson, Psych/Mktg, Hyattsville, MD

Ethan L. Johnson, HCOM, Richmond, VA
 Jill D. Johnson, POSC, Alexandria, VA
 Jocelyn N. Johnson, Fine Arts, Rockville, MD
 Kevin W. Johnson, Hth ServAdm, Midlothian, VA

Hong

Magin

CHEERS. Seniors Lori Dolby and Adam Torman enjoy daiquiris at a friend's house for a happy hour. Many students had dressy occasions that usually lasted more than just an hour.

SOCIAL. Friends gather on the balcony on a nice day at the Commons apartments. Any excuse was good enough for students to get together.

Kristin Johnson, HthSci/HthServAdm, Catharpin, VA
 Kristine M. Johnson, Health Sci, Huntington St, NY
 Mia D. Johnson, Psychology, Chesapeake, VA
 Shawn E. Johnson, Psychology, Burkeville, VA

Tara C. Johnson, English, Glen Allen, VA
 Magnus H. Johnsson, Public Adm, Richmond, VA
 Beverly D. Jones, Nursing, Roanoke, VA
 Eric C. Jones, Office Sys Mgt, Philadelphia, PA

Jeffrey M. Jones, Philos/Relig, Richmond, VA
 Kimberly M. Jones, POSC/Span, Alexandria, VA
 Richard E. Jones, Intl Business, Alexandria, VA
 Richard L. Jones, Mathematics, Emporia, VA

Jennifer L. Jones, Marketing, Dale City, VA
 Sheri L. Jones, Psychology, Roanoke, VA
 Kathryn G. Jordan, Biology, Alexandria, VA
 Thomas S. Jordan, Computer Sci, Richmond, VA

Kimberley M. Joyner, Public Adm, Richmond, VA
 Stacie L. Jude, Spanish, Richmond, VA
 Lara Juenger, Computer Sci, Downingtown, PA
 Robert D. Kaiser, Management, Murrysville, PA

Giving a helping hand

Helping someone who needs you can be a great feeling. It was an even greater feeling when that someone was a child. Several JMU students chose to devote their time and energy into becoming a big brother or big sister.

There were many children in the Harrisonburg area who simply needed someone to spend some time with. Many big brothers and big sisters were regarded as role models. Most of the kids in the program came from single-parent homes and were in desperate need of attention. The big brother or big sister was there to be a friend and to share experiences with his or her little brother or sister.

Becoming involved in the program was a rather lengthy and complicated process. These steps included an in-depth interview, an application, personality tests and other forms of information. All of these steps were for the safety of the children.

Once paired with a little brother or sister, the volunteer was advised to spend at least three hours a week with the child. This time was often spent on the weekends so big brothers and sisters often sacrificed much of their free time to spend it with their little brother or little sister. This responsibility was considered a big commitment that could not be taken lightly, as the child's feelings were at stake.

Taking on this responsibility required determination and goodwill and these volunteers found that becoming a big brother or big sister was not just a commitment, but that it was one of the most rewarding activities that they could become involved in.

Jenn Howard

Karen Y. Kalas, HCOM, Hurt, VA
 Jennifer M. Kallas, Psychology, Concord, MA
 Peter N. Kamilakis, Biology, Fredericksburg, VA
 Jessica A. Kaminski, Graphic Design, Dumfries, VA

Jeffrey L. Kane, CIS, Crofton, MD
 Kevin Kasten, MCOM/Economics, Dresher, PA
 Melinda J. Kastler, Intl Affairs, Staunton, VA
 Jill S. Kautz, English/MSED, Bel Air, MD

Angela M. Keaveny, French/SECED, Va Beach, VA
 Sarah E. Keeton, Public Relations, Midlothian, VA
 Jennifer M. Keller, English, Lovetsville, VA
 Mandy Lyn Keller, Marketing, Woodbridge, VA

Amy L. Kellison, Marketing, Berryville, VA
 Eileen T. Kelly, Social Work, Woodbridge, VA
 Racquel N. Kelly, POSC, Elmont, NY
 Marlene Y. Kenney, Psychology, Richmond, VA

Deborah M. Kemtos, Interior Design, Flanders, NJ
 Daniel V. Kern, Sociology, West Chester, PA
 Tonya R. Kerns, Marketing, Waynesboro, VA
 David C. Kerr, Accounting, Winchester, VA

A HAPPY PAIR. This big sister and little sister enjoy their time together. The program sponsored many different activities for participants.

BEHIND THE BACK. This big brother smiles as his little brother goofs around. Being a big brother was a way for JMU students to become involved in the community.

Troy D. Kiger, Biology, Lynchburg, VA
 Cindy M. Kilmoon, Marketing, Yorktown, VA
 Ae R. Kim, Biology, Richmond, VA
 Jinhee Kim, Finance, Annandale, VA

Kristie A. Kimsey, Soc/ECED, Tappahannock, VA
 Shea Y. Kinder, Speech Path, Abingdon, VA
 Elizabeth A. King, Health/Fit Prom, Radford, VA
 Kris B. King, Sociology, Richmond, VA

Travis W. King, Marketing, Newfoundland, Canada
 Valinda J. Kinkead, Social Work, Martinsburg, WV
 Ellen R. Kirby, Nursing, Virginia Beach, VA
 Tonya M. Kirby, Art, Newport News, VA

Deborah E. Kissell, Marketing, Wilmington, DE
 Robert P. Knapp, Finance, Gulf Breeze, FL
 Kimberly L. Knight, Psychology, Jeffersonton, VA
 Katherine A. Knupsen, Art, Springfield, VA

Heidi M. Koeckert, Chemistry, Arlington, VA
 Michelle A. Koehl, Psychology, Arlington, VA
 Daniel L. Koerner, Finance, Pittsburgh, PA
 Matthew F. Kossman, Finance, Virginia Beach, VA

Reuse or refuse

Wondering what to do with all of those old cans of uh, Pepsi? Have those cans been building up in your room? Is the trash can overflowing with aluminum, paper and plastic? Well, that problem can now be easily eliminated. Just jump on the environmental bandwagon and start recycling.

Recycling bins were everywhere on JMU's campus. They were in front of halls, class buildings and eating establishments. It seemed that everyone was separating paper, plastic and aluminum.

"Indeed many people are catching on. Recycling is a great habit that we all should get into," said Mike Howard. "It helps the planet and it doesn't take much effort."

Every year, tons of useful and recyclable materials were thrown away when they could be reused to conserve what resources are left. Recycling programs such as the one at JMU were helping to increase the environmental awareness of students and do a little bit to help the planet.

-Jon Wadsworth

HOME CENTER. This recycling center was in a sophomore suite in Ikenberry. Many students were very active in reducing waste.

Todd A. Kovner, Theatre/Religion, Norfolk, VA
 Jennifer L. Kratochvil, Speech Path, Chester, NJ
 Daniel B. Krause, Psychology, Spotsylvania, VA
 Todd D. Krauser, Finance, Scotrun, PA

Dolores M. Kreiger, Intl Business, Poquoson, VA
 Jennifer L. Krey, Athletic Training, Manalapan, NJ
 Julie M. Kropp, MCOM, Fairfax, VA
 Sarah M. Kugel, Nursing, Lancaster, PA

Kelly E. Kunclrs, Speech Path, Newport News, VA
 Jeanette C. LaVere, Art Hist/Eng, Arlington, VA
 Nancy J. Labuguen, Music Ed, Virginia Beach, VA
 Michelle Lafon, Accounting, Lynchburg, VA

Christine L. Lally, Psychology, Wllmington, DE
 David J. Lambrecht, POSC, Fredericksburg, VA
 Jennifer L. LaMotte, Graphic Design, Derwood, MD
 Mark G. Lamparella, Hot/Rest Mgt, Wescosville, PA

Ayanna L. Lane, Psychology, Richmond, VA
 Stephanie P. Lane, Fashion Merch, Richmond, VA
 Brenda G. Largen, Social Sci/ECED, Manassas, VA
 Susanna M. Larner, Health Sci/Hist, Staunton, VA

RECYCLING CONVENIENCE. Recycling bins were placed everywhere around campus, making it more difficult to avoid recycling than it was to become active in it.

A STEP BEYOND. Just an extra step of help towards recycling was a benefit to the environment. Clubs such as EARTH encouraged recycling.

Hong

Humke

Amy A. Larsen, Psychology, Vienna, VA
 Anna K. Larson, Health Science, Burke, VA
 Angelique D. Lashley, HCOM/PubRel, Savage, MD
 Matthew S. Lau, Biology, Midlothian, VA

Elizabeth A. Lawless, Psychology, McLean, VA
 Anna C. Lawson, Accounting, Berryville, VA
 Heather J. Lawson, English, Hampton, VA
 David S. Layne, Sociology, Richmond, VA

Steven W. Lazzarini, History, Vestal, NY
 John E. Leber, Anthropology, Chester, VA
 Angie M. Ledford, English, Richmond, VA
 Jekyu Lee, CIS, Chantilly, VA

Joo H. Lee, Art/Graphic Des, Alexandria, VA
 Mary J. Lee, POSC, Harrisonburg, VA
 Shannon M. Lee, Dietetics, Emmaus, PA
 Dina M. Leech, Biology, Manassas, VA

Meredith A. Leech, Mktg/French, Lancaster, PA
 Michael R. Leedom, History, Glenwood, MD
 Shannon M. Leffel, Social Work, Harrisonburg, VA
 Ashley C. Leigh, Finance, Centreville, VA

A walk through nature

Perhaps the best kept secret in Harrisonburg was the arboretum. Situated behind the Convocation Center, most JMU students knew where the arboretum was, but few knew about what it had to offer.

Students used the arboretum for several different activities. The ROTC program used it for training and combat exercises. Biology students could often be found in the arboretum studying wildlife for class. Students looking for a little exercise found the nature trail a pleasant alternative to running down the concrete sidewalk and avoided traffic this way. Others just enjoyed sitting at one of the many rest areas and relaxing by the pond, to slumber in the peace or to spend some time with a few friends. Benches offered students a place to rest and take in the fresh air and natural scenery. The arboretum was a great getaway for students who just wanted to take a break from classes, meetings and schoolwork.

In the autumn, the arboretum was especially beautiful. Many students dragged their parents over to this grand secluded place to appreciate the beautiful change of color during Parents Weekend, when the leaves were usually at their peak.

Junior Jennifer Franca said, "It was really relaxing to just go over there for a few minutes during the day to reflect a bit, and to get some peace and quiet from my chaotic life." It took away all the tension and buildup that students often needed to release. One could often hear students express "It looks like an arboretum night!" on a clear evening when the stars were shining bright. The arboretum was a welcome escape from the stress and pressures of daily school life.

-Jon Wadsworth
 & Hani Hong

Tiffani Leighton, Intl Affairs, Mechanicsville, PA
 Alex B. Leikus, English, Timonium, MD
 Jennifer A. LeLacheur, POSC/Span, Alexandria, VA
 Justin C. Lenhard, Finance, Herndon, VA

Michael C. Leopold, Chemistry, Grafton, VA
 Lorraine A. Levine, German, Manassas, VA
 Christine L. Lewis, CIS, Springfield, VA
 Kerensa A. Lewis, Psychology, McLean, VA

Angie R. Lingle, Psychology, Fairfax, VA
 Kristi M. Linn, Psychology, Damascus, MD
 Danielle M. Liquori, Intl Affairs, Stony Brook, NY
 Gina F. Little, Kinesiology, Chase City, VA

Trisha M. Little, Nursing, Mercersburg, PA
 Charles C. Livengood, Biology, Blue Ridge, VA
 David J. Lloyd, Management, Falls Church, VA
 Aimee B. Lockman, Health Sci, Annandale, VA

Jennifer E. Lofquist, Hist/Intl Affairs, Richmond, VA
 Tammy L. Londeree, Hist/Theater, Scottsville, VA
 Juliet D. Long, Nursing, Williamsburg, VA
 Anthony J. Lopes, Psychology, Annandale, VA

Hong

Hong

WINTER TIME. The tranquility of the arboretum offered serenity to many students. After the leaves fell and the temperatures dropped, Harrisonburg was even more beautiful.

QUIET TIME. Sophomore Chet DeGuzman and Kristina Corzine look out at the arboretum scenery. Many hikers found this off-campus hide-away a favorite spot.

Christie A. Lovelace, Marketing, Danville, VA
 Ken Lovic, Kinesiology, Jacksonville, FL
 Lisa N. Lowrie, Speech Pathology, Hampton, VA
 Allison P. Lucente, Psychology, Sterling, VA

Christopher B. Lupton, Computer Sci, Roanoke, VA
 Mary V. Lynch, Hlth Serv Admin, Rocky Mount, VA
 Robert D. Lynch, Jr., POSC, Haymarket, VA
 Keely L. Mackey, Art, Youngstown, NY

Corey V. Maddox, Marketing, Carlisle, PA
 Lori A. Magill, Nursing, Wynnewood, PA
 Alana J. Mahdalik, Dance/Econ, Stafford Spgs, CT
 Taronna R. Maines, Biology, Evington, VA

Jennifer J. May, HCOM, Woodbridge, VA
 Lynn A. Malacane, Mathematics, Herndon, VA
 Steve Malekzadeh, Health Sciences, Seneca, MD
 Verta A. Maloney, HCOM, Harrisonburg, VA

Chondra K. Malson, Speech Path, Va Beach, VA
 Kathryn L. Mangano, HCOM, Harrisonburg, VA
 Suzanne M. Mannion, Eng/French, Allendale, NJ
 Grace P. Manuel, Music, Logan, WV

An unexpected gift

Getting around in Harrisonburg was relatively easy with the bus system, except that it took forever to get from point A to point B. The solution was simple: get a car. JMU students, both on and off-campus, brought their own means of transportation with them. Although a car solved the time problem, another problem arose: parking.

Parking was very limited to students due to the fact that the size of JMU couldn't hold very many cars and that faculty and staff had to have parking space. Parking stickers were given to residents and commuters, to ensure that each would park in the proper location. Also, a commuter lot was located at the Convocation Center with bus service to all parts of campus for overflow parking.

And what happened to those daring few that decided to go against the norm? Parking tickets. Yes, parking tickets were JMU's answer to those that dared to park illegally. Tickets were $15.00 for most violations and for the more serious ones, they went up to $30.00. If the ticket was not paid for within ten days, then a $5.00 late charge was added. Sometimes illegal parking was not even an option: students from the JMU parking staff often had to block restricted lots to keep students from risking a ticket.

Receiving a parking ticket at James Madison became so commonplace, that it was practically a milestone in college life. Many students, as well as faculty, learned their lessons, but parking will always be a problem here at JMU, and tickets will continue to be a regular part of college life.

-Joe Olson

BEWARE! This student disregarded the no parking sign and parked in the fire lane. With limited student parking on campus, students got desperate.

Travis V. Manuel, Geology, Lebanon, VA
 Kathleen M. Markel, Biology, New Cumberland, PA
 Michael D. Markisello, Geography, Falls Church, VA
 Priscilla W. Marshall, Accounting, Harrisonburg, VA

Sandra A. Martello, Health Science, Lutherville, MD
 Brandon M. Martin, Marketing Educ, Atlanta, GA
 Dreama D. Martin, Finance, Harrisonburg, VA
 Hunter C. Martin, POSC, Elkton, VA

Leslie D. Martin, Sociology, Forest, VA
 Nancy L. Martin, HCOM, Harrisonburg, VA
 Stephanie L. Martin, POSC, Chambersburg, PA
 Tia L. Mason, MCOM, Herndon, VA

Jacqueline L. Mathias, Mathematics, Fulks Run, VA
 Krista L. Mathias, Intl Affairs/French, Richmond, VA
 Nichole J. Matous, English/French, Roswell, GA
 Jennifer E. Mauk, Finance, Woodbridge, VA

Linh T. May, History, Chesapeake, VA
 Jack T. Mayo, CIS, Burke, VA
 Gary L. Mays, Public Administration, Bassett, VA
 Tina M. Mazey, Intl Business, Roanoke, VA

ILLEGAL PARKING. This student used the sidewalk for a parking space. Unfortunately, the creative parking of students often led to receiving a ticket.

IT'S A TICKET! Despite this sad note, the parking official was not deterred. Many students were greeted by the sight of these little white slips for parking illegally.

Manzo

Manzo

Manzo

Tanya F. Mazyck, Span/Intl Aff, Chesapeake, VA
 Amy R. Maier, Social Work, St. Jericho, NY
 Megan S. McAveney, Off Sys Mgt, Springfield, VA
 Doran R. McBride, CIS/OSS, Richmond, VA

Jennifer A. McClain, Psychology, Linwood, NJ
 Steven H. McClemons, MCOM, Arlington, VA
 Michelle L. McCord, Social Work, Turners Falls, MA
 Jennifer R. McDaniel, Social Sci, Columbia, MD

Andrew B. McDonald, Accounting, Winchester, VA
 Timothy S. McDonald, Geology, Midlothian, VA
 Erin C. McDonnell, Hotel Rest Mgt, Phoenix, MD
 Kerry L. McFarland, English/HCOM, Richmond, VA

Lisa M. McGarney, Nursing, Ellicott City, MD
 Betsy A. McGrath, French, Long Valley, NJ
 Corey R. McIntyre, Accounting, Virginia Beach, VA
 Chandra D. McKay, Hlth Sci/Ath Trg, Berryville, VA

Marcus S. McKinney, Psychology, Arlington, VA
 Matthew W. McLean, Acctg Info Sys, Midlothian, VA
 James R. McNair, Computer Science, Reston, VA
 Amy M. McReynolds, Geology, Gordonsville, VA

Oh what a night

Formals provided students with the opportunity to do something a little different than the regular party scene. Getting dressed up, having a nice dinner, and dancing the night away were a few of the reasons that students loved these events.

Social fraternities and sororities, as well as athletic, service, and professional groups, held formals each year. Senior Randa Haddad of Alpha Chi Omega said, "I love that we get to dress up. And the guys always look pretty good in their tuxedos."

Along with just being a lot of fun, formals gave students the chance to spend some quality time with that significant other. They also provided a great excuse to ask out that someone that you have had your eye on all year. These events were very special and provide memories that will last a long time.

Another exciting aspect of formals was that they often became road trips. Many groups chose to hold their formals in nice hotels in Charlottesville, Virginia Beach, Washington, D.C., or Richmond. Junior Bill Gale of Alpha Kappa Lambda said, "Partying before and after in the hotel was the best part."

Most everyone agreed that formals were fun and exciting events that were always looked forward to. They were the perfect chance to be with good friends and make great memories.

-Jen Howard

Kara C. McReynolds, Intl Affairs, Richmond, VA
 Christopher S. McWhorter, Biology, Deerfield, VA
 Beth A. Meacham, CIS, Morristown, NJ
 Joy C. Meador, Management, Roanoke, VA

Amy M. Mehnert, Industrial Mktg, N Syracuse, NY
 Kathy M. Meiser, Music Industry, McAlisterville, PA
 Lela A. Meldrum, Nursing, Christiansburg, VA
 Martha E. Melroy, Speech Path, Midlothian, VA

Tamaika L. Menefee, CIS, Ferrum, VA
 Andrea L. Meredith, Speech Path, Poquoson, VA
 Diane H. Metzler, Social Work, Bridgewater, VA
 Kyle H. Meyer, Art/Psych, Midlothian, VA

Nicole A. Michal, MCOM, Weens, VA
 Heather N. Michels, Nursing, Silver Spring, MD
 Wendy D. Miles, Accounting, Palmyra, VA
 Justin T. Miller, CIS, Winchester, VA

Michele L. Minderlein, CIS, Forest Hill, MD
 Holly A. Mison, Hotel Rest Mgt, Midlothian, VA
 Jason B. Mitchell, Sociology, Harrisonburg, VA
 Jennifer L. Mitchell, HCOM, Richmond, VA

Gustin

Gardner

KARAOKE QUEENS. Friends Rachel Phillips, Kirsta Rauch, and Ann Marie DeRose belt out the tunes at the Pi Sigma Epsilon formal as a friend looks on.. Karaoke was a popular alternative to just a deejay.

DINNER AND DANCING. Friends Kristi Shackelford and Dennis Hughes smile for the camera at a formal office Christmas party. Good friends helped make formal occasions more fun.

Kimberly R. Mitchell, Speech Path, Dry Fork, VA
 Leslie P. Mitchell, Fashion Merch, Owings Mills, MD
 Jay Mixell, Psychology, Shrievport, LA
 Nancy A. Moffet, Music, Richmond, VA

Jeanne F. Monahan, Psychology, Alexandria, VA
 Dixie R. Monger, Accounting, McGaheysville, VA
 Wesley A. Monger, Accounting, Sandston, VA
 Jennifer L. Moniz, Health Serv Admin, Seekonk, MA

Julie L. Monrad, MCOM, Littleton, CO
 Andrew M. Monsour, Finance, Roanoke, VA
 Tonya R. Monteiro, HCOM, Centreville, VA
 Ebonee L. Montgomery, History, Alexandria, VA

Jennifer L. Montgomery, Psychology, Va Beach, VA
 Chris Moon, Health Science, McLean, VA
 Chris J. Mooney, English, Rockville, MD
 Sarah R. Mooney, Finance, Richmond, VA

Courtney E. Moore, English, Richmond, VA
 Desirea Moore, Speech Pathology, Woodbridge, VA
 Donna S. Moore, Marketing Educ, Sutherland, VA
 Matthew L. Moore, MCOM, Herndon, VA

Everyone wins

Courage came in many shapes and sizes. Sometimes it came in the form of a national hero who has done a great deed. Sometimes it came in the form of a pro athlete who dominated his or her sport. However, sometimes it could be seen in a group of people just having fun.

That was the scene at this year's Special Olympics at the Harrisonburg Community Center. JMU students volunteered a few hours weekly to help train handicapped residents of Harrisonburg and the surrounding areas.

"The support from JMU was fantastic. We had three times the number of volunteers we had last year," said JMU Volunteer Coordinator, Brad Witzel. "I was very pleased."

Many of the student volunteers at the event were inspired by the performances of the athletes. "I was personally moved by the spirit and perseverance that I saw," said Junior Jennifer Franca.

Junior Hani Hong expressed how she felt about the Special Olympics. "I volunteered a few hours because I just really enjoyed working with the athletes. It's an extremely rewarding feeling to help anyone out."

The Special Olympics program showed how JMU and the Harrisonburg community can work together for a common good. "We did a great service to the community," said Witzel. "We had fun and helped a lot of deserving people."

-Jon Wadsworth

STRIKE A POSE. Hillary Malawer and Rick Armstrong ham it up for the camera with a new friend. Thanks to some JMU students, a good time was had by all..

Sharon L. Moorefield, Accounting, Clinton, MD
 Renee Moran, Accounting, Wilmington, DE
 Ruth I. Moran, Health Science, Baltimore, MD
 Vanessa L. Morgan, Computer Sci, Rustburg, VA

Glenda R. Morris, Marketing, Roanoke, VA
 Matthew J. Morrow, Kinesiology, Timberville, VA
 Sherry L. Morse, Accounting, Sterling, VA
 Christine M. Mueller, Rom Lang, Harrisonburg, VA

Lynn D. Mulhern, Psychology, Annandale, NJ
 Heather D. Mullen, Dietetics, Midlothian, VA
 Janice L. Muller, Psyc/Theater, Medford, NJ
 Kerri A. Mullins, Interior Design, Valley Cottage, NY

George A. Munn, Intl Business, Fairfax, VA
 Brent S. Munsey, Psychology, Salem, VA
 Christian T. Munson, English, Richmond, VA
 Deborah J. Murphy, Nursing, Woodburg Hts, NJ

Margaret V. Murray, CIS, Vienna, VA
 Jessica A. Mussinan, Mgt, Richmond, VA
 Amy C. Myers, Psychology, Springfield, VA
 Amy C. Myers, Psychology, McGaheysville, VA

Hong

Hong

BEST BUDS. Colleen Meehan and athlete Bill Lowery, take a moment to watch the festivities. Students got to meet some special individuals.

Michael D. Myers, Music Industry, Harrisonburg, VA
 Rachel M. Naleppa, Nursing, Sterling, VA
 Joseph R. Nardone, Computer Sci, Ridgewood, NJ
 Leslie A. Nason, English, Lincoln University, PA

Joy L. Natalini, Finance, Midlothian, VA
 Eric W. Nelson, Public Administration, Trenton, NJ
 Lisa G. Nelson, Accounting, Arlington, VA
 Karla E. Nemeth, Psychology, Red Bank, NJ

Laura L. Nesbitt, MCOM, Atlanta, GA
 Eric J. Nenfeld, Finance, East Northport, NY
 Emily B. Neville, Art, Wilmington, DE
 Laura L. Newbanks, Biology, Dumfries, VA

Huong T. Nguyen, CIS, Chesapeake, VA
 Steven L. Nguyen, CIS, Springfield, VA
 Jennifer L. Nickles, Health Sciences, Vienna, VA
 Scott P. Noon, International Affairs, Raleigh, NC

Amy P. Normand, POSC, Fredericksburg, VA
 Carrie B. Norris, Psychology, Staunton, VA
 Brian A. Norusis, POSC, Falls Church, VA
 Roger L. Ocker, History, Virginia Beach, VA

Gang way

Remember that trusty Huffy with the banana seat and high handle bars? Well, many found it was a good idea to pull it out of the garage, dust the cobwebs off and grant it a second life here at JMU! Maybe not the old no speed with standard coaster brakes, but a mountain bike was a great college investment!

A bike on JMU's campus had many uses, such as transportation, recreation and credit. Yes, credit! Garth Kunkle, JMU graduate and owner of the Cool Breeze Cyclery & Fitness, taught a mountain biking class for kinesiology credit. Biking was a great way to enjoy the sites of Harrisonburg's outer limits while getting exercise and academic credit.

If that was too demanding, there was still the option of jumping on your bike! Enjoying the changing of the foliage at Skyline Drive, taking bikes bike camping and exploring the great outdoors or just taking a ride on some of the quaint backroads surrounding Harrisonburg were great ideas.

A bike could also become a handy piece of equipment, especially for getting from Zane Showker Hall to Anthony Seeger in just a few minutes, or just to get around and run some errands. A bike could be reason enough to be able to zoom up and down rolling hills, feel the rush of wind, and bounce over tracks while avoiding pedestrians. One important thing to remember was: always look out for the transit buses!

- Jen Williams

GETTING AROUND. This student rides her bike to class so she won't be late. Bikes were a great way to get around campus.

Manzo

Kerri M. O'Connell, Marketing, Fairfax, VA
 Marni M. O'Connell, POSC, Hampton, VA
 Michael L. Ogilvie, Physics, Richmond, VA
 Sungjin S. Oh, CIS/Eng, Vienna, VA

Heather S. Oldham, Intl Rel/Span, Nokesville, VA
 Mary J. Olenick, Psychology, Harrisonburg, VA
 Jeffrey W. Oliver, Psychology, Richmond, VA
 Marci K. Oliver, Social Work, Burke, VA

Kristine J. Olka, Econ/Environ, Harrisonburg, VA
 Laura S. Olrion, Mass Communication, Danville VA
 Carolyn B. Olson, Intl Affairs, Alexandria, VA
 Heather E. O'Neil, MCOM/Russ, Harrisonburg, VA

Marina I. Ospina, Intl Business/Span, Fairfax, VA
 Kathryn G. Ouellette, Psyc, Manchester, Conn
 Jennifer A. Owen, Finance, Fairfax, VA
 Wendy A. Owens, POSC/Eng, Virginia Beach, VA

Amy E. Ozeki, English, Dayton, VA
 Arlene L. Pace, Psychology, Hampton, VA
 Chris M. Pace, Social Science, Ashland, VA
 Barbara A. Padgett, History, Washougal, WA

Manzo

RACK IT UP. JMU students lock their bikes next to their classes. Bike racks really helped students keep their bikes safe.

SAFETY IN NUMBERS. Two JMU students travel through campus. Bikes were a good way to transport oneself if a car wasn't available.

Ja Y. Paek, Psychology, Burke, VA
 Sandra H. A. Pafford, Music Educ, Roanoke, VA
 Jonathan E. Page, Music Industry, Piney River, VA
 Jonathan E. Page, Eng/Pre-Med, Columbia, MD

Todd L. Page, Finance, Montclair, NJ
 Teresh L. Painter, English, Waynesboro, VA
 Gregory W. Pappanastos, HCOM, Davidson, NC
 Christopher R. Parcell, Acctg, Fredericksburg, VA

Ketan Parekh, Finance/Accounting, Bayport, NY
 Robert P. Parisi, Marketing, Basking Ridge, NJ
 Catherine M. Parkerson, CIS/Mgt Richmond, VA
 Christian A. Parrish, POSC, Sparhill, NY

Shane A. Parrish, Management, South Hill, VA
 Jason Parsons, POSC, Alexandria, VA
 M. Shane Parsons, Mgt, Charlottesville, VA
 Denise R. Pasquantino, Psych, Chesterfield, VA

William J. Patterson, Marketing, Greenville, SC
 Benjamin K. Peak, Sociology, Staunton, VA
 Emily E. Peake, Intl Business, Fairfax, VA
 Zerrick T. Pearson, Graphic Design, Alexandria, VA

We want you

ROTC was a program where students could get contracted so that after graduating, they would be commissioned as a second lieutenant rank in the army. There were four levels in ROTC, beginning at MS1 and progressing to the level of MS4, and each corresponded with the number of years in the program. The first two years, MS1 and MS2, were introductory years, and the students in the program were squad members. The third year, MS3, was considered the most important year. It was an advanced level in ROTC, where the students dealt with rotating leadership roles. The MS3 level was the beginning step to becoming an officer. After the third year, students went to an advanced camp where they were evaluated and rated. Those in the upper percentile were given active duty when they graduated and their choice of branch. In the final year, MS4, the students took classes that acted as a transition from being a cadet to becoming an officer.

ROTC taught students to become disciplined, among other things. Damian Walke, an MS3, said that

"ROTC prepares you for the leadership challenges you will face in life. I am looking forward to using ROTC to further my career goals."

Students could take a semester class in ROTC, called "Leadership Lab" and they did not necessarily have to be contracted. Christina Evers, who was in her second year of the program, said that "The best part of ROTC is the lab on Thursdays because you can just forget about school and get out there and have fun."

-Sara Ringdahl

J. Blake Peddicord, MCOM, Richmond, VA
 Stacey M. Pedigo, Hot/Rest Mgt, Newburyport, MA
 Wendy L. Peko, Math, Richmond, VA
 Laura J. Pell, Accounting, Manassas, VA

Kerry S. Pence, Finance, Olney, MD
 Jennifer L. Penney, POSC, Annandale, VA
 Corey B. Perdue, Health Serv Adm, Winchester, VA
 Michael E. Perdue, MCOM, Petersburg, VA

Travis L. Perdue, POSC, Winchester, VA
 David C. Perry, Geography, Blacksburg, VA
 Fachon M. Perry, HCOM, Fairfax Station, VA
 Jennifer M. Perunko, Anthropology, Salisbury, MD

Robert H. Peterman, Geography, Richmond, VA
 Brent E. Peterson, Finance, Germantown, MD
 Sarah E. Pettit, Management, Suffolk, VA
 Erica U. Petzold, Psychology, Shaker Heights, OH

Catherine C. Phillips, HlthServAdm, Travis AFB, CA
 Michael E. Phillips, Accounting, Bristol, VA
 Karen D. Piano, Spanish, Hackensack, NJ
 Caryn N. Pierce, Office Systems Mgt, Landover, MD

Photo courtesy of ROTC

Photo courtesy of ROTC

GROUP MEDITATION. ROTC members converge to discuss strategy for capturing the other team's flag. ROTC members used different training exercises to strengthen leadership skill.

CAMOUFLAGE MAN. This unidentified tries to blend in to the forest by painting his face green. ROTC members practiced long hours to look like the plants surrounding them.

Robert J. Pikarsky, Marketing, Maywood, NJ
 Lynette C. Pikul, Nursing, Capac, MI
 Stacy M. Pineo, Intl Affairs, Chambersburg, PA
 Angela M. Pino, Social Work, Manassas, VA

Rosalyn P. Pitts, Psychology, Hampton, VA
 Kristin A. Plauchan, Psychology, Springfield, VA
 Christopher W. Plunkett, Biology, E. Setauket, NY
 Michael J. Policicchio, Accounting, Hyattsville, MD

Claire J. Polizzi, HCOM, Burke, VA
 Erika A. Porter, MCOM/Eng, Springfield, VA
 Lisa M. Potter, English, Fairfax Station, VA
 Amy C. Powell, Sociology, Staunton, VA

Eric B. Powell, Geology, Franklin, VA
 Sarah B. Pratt, Management, Harrisonburg, VA
 Stacy J. Presnick, Marketing, Centreville, VA
 Lynn A. Pruden, Marketing, Roseland, NJ

Heather J. Pruitt, Finance, Vienna, VA
 Daniel M. Purrington, Finance, Virginia Beach, VA
 Lori K. Pyle, Psychology, Staunton, VA
 Janice K. Quick, Hlth Sci/ Pre Med, Portsmouth, VA

Living together

Being assigned a roommate freshman year was like playing the lottery. You may end up winning and living with someone you get along with, or you may lose out and not agree on anything.

Living so closely with someone you didn't know was a major adjustment to make. "It just ain't natural," says Howard Arnn. Both people needed to consider each other's feelings or the two of them could end up having a big blowup. Everyone with a roommate lost the privacy they were used to at home. Senior Adam Anderson said having a roommate also "takes away from when you can sleep."

We all had to deal with others' habits; both good and bad. Because of all of our work, we would study at night and sleep during the day, so we had to work around each other's schedules. It helped if we had the same unusual habits. Senior Kimberly Brown likes "the fact that both of us like to sleep with the fan on."

Often, however, solid friendships came out of living together. The friends we lived with were much different and closer than any friends we'd ever had. Sometimes we got to know more about them than we wanted to, but we all created lasting ties.

-Gwen Whitney

SHAKE IT! Roommates Tammy Sheldon and Tina Curry jam to the music at the reggae festival. Roommates spent a lot of time together, both in and out of their homes.

William D. Quillen, II, POSC, Georgetown, DE
 Todd F. Rabold, Finance, Mercersburg, PA
 Donna W. Ragsdale, MCOM, Chatham, VA
 Ben G. Rainey, English, Harrisonburg, VA

Omar A. Rana, Biology, Harrisonburg, VA
 Aimee M. Ratliff, English, Roanoke, VA
 Kirsta L. Rauch, Hot/Rest Mgt, Winchester, VA
 Kristin L. Raymond, English, Pensacola, FL

Catherine Reams, Marketing, Lynchburg, VA
 Christina L. Rebich, HCOM, Waynesboro, VA
 Michael J. Reeb, Finance, Corleysville, MD
 Lisa M. Reed, Anth/Art Hist, Washington, DC

Deborah M. Reem, Nursing, Alexandria, VA
 Sandy J. Reese, Hot Springs, VA
 Eugene I. Reich, Accounting, Annandale, Va
 Laurie A. Reid, Chemistry, Ramsey, NJ

Michael S. Reid, POSC, Richmond, VA
 Izabela C. Reis, POSC, Rockville, MD
 Helen M. Renne, POSC, Williamsburg, VA
 Laura C. Renner, Anthropolgy, Winchester, VA

Magin

Hong

CLOSE TIES. Carrie Farrell and Laura Horton show that roommates can also be friends. Living with a friend made a room into a home.

Scott C. Reppert, Intl Business, Arlington, VA
 Cary W. Reynolds, Art History, Virginia Beach, VA
 Eric C. Rhodes, Finance, Harrisonburg, VA
 Tracey L. Rice, HCOM, Lynchburg, VA

Julie B. Riley, POSC, Harrisonburg, VA
 Elizabeth M. Roach, Management, Richmond, VA
 Richard S. Roan, POSC/Eng, Yorktown, VA
 Philip M. Roberts, Music Ind, Richmond, VA

Amy Robinson, Psychology, Overland Park, KS
 Andrea M. Robinson, CIS, Alexandria, VA
 Angela R. Robinson, HCOM, Richmond, VA
 Jeneen L. Robinson, French/Intl Aff, Chatham, VA

Katherine L. Robinson, Social Sci, Harrisonburg, VA
 Nicole D. Robinson, Speech Path, Richmond, VA
 Twanda L. Robinson, Marketing, Richmond, VA
 Victoria Rocco, Social Work, St James, NY

Amy C. Rogers, Biology, Richmond, VA
 Lori A. Rogers, Spanish, Winchester, VA
 Jeffrey I. Rohe, Intl Business, Camden, DE
 Kimberly M. Ronald, Chemistry, Chantilly, VA

Convenience

It is 12:37 at night. You are studying for a test that might one day decide the future success of your career, and suddenly you get a craving. If you do not get something to eat soon, you may not make it to tomorrow, but there is nothing in the fridge. You can not take time to go out and get something to eat, you might not even have a car! You only have one chance. Quickly, you dial the numbers and place your order. A thirty minute eternity later you are in heaven. Your hunger has been satiated until next time...

This was a familiar situation for many students during the year. Those late night hunger pains meant one thing: getting food delivered. The sight of a Papa John's delivery man or a Domino's sign hanging out of a car window were common items in Harrisonburg. Is it any wonder why there were so many places that deliver in Harrisonburg? Local delivery businesses feasted on the appetites of students and students didn't seem to have any qualms.

-Jon Wadsworth

Donna L. Roney, Chemistry, Chester, VA
 Paul J. Rooney, Health Science, Herndon, VA
 Christy M. Rose, HCOM, Colonial Heights, VA
 Bonnie L. Rosenblatt, Psychology, Aberdeen, MD

Mark A. Rosenfield, Soc/POSC, Burke, VA
 Jill S. Rosensweig, HCOM, East Windsor, NJ
 Matthew L. Rosner, Marketing, Vienna, VA
 Katrina E. Ross, History, Roanoke, VA

Megan L. Ross, Health Science, Charlottesville, VA
 Pamela P. Rossi, Intl Business, Smithtown, NY
 Alisa B. Rubin, Accounting, Virginia Beach, VA
 Karen E. Ruhl, Accounting, Cleona, PA

Vanessa L. Ruiz, Speech Path, Virginia Beach, VA
 Karen E. Rule, Psychology, Richmond, VA
 F. Valerie Rusk, Economics, Rockville, MD
 John W. Rust, Finance, Annandale, VA

Ann M. Sack, Bio/HCOM, Fairfax, VA
 Christy A. Sander, Eng/French, Reston, VA
 Paul H. Sanford, IV, Marketing, Woodbridge, VA
 Brent Saunders, MCOM, Alexandria, VA

Humke

Hong

TEMPTATION! A Pizza Hut driver shows a customer his order. Pizza Hut was one of many pizza delivery chains that tried to monopolize the city's pizza business.

MUNCHIES. Amy Zeafra and Jenn Franca chow down on pizza and goldfish crackers. Ordering out was a popular alternative to making a late-night-snack.

Jessica L. Sautner, Economics, Sicklerville, NJ
 Mary A. Scafidi, Hlth Sci/Fit Prom, Midlothian, VA
 Mary E. Scates, Nursing, Warsaw, VA
 Erin Schalter, Biology, Glen Rock, NJ

Rob B. Scharpf, Biology, Vinton, VA
 Deryn Schiff, Psychology, Fairfax, VA
 Kimberly A. Schlemmer, Nursing, WashingBoro, PA
 Jodi L. Schnepper, Music Industry, Chantilly, VA

Joanne E. Schmidt, MCOM/Eng, Burke, VA
 Brookie L. Scholten, MCOM/Psyc, Harrisonburg, VA
 Judith L. Schor, Psychology, Fredericksburg, VA
 Alisa M. Schorn, Dietetics, Northport, NY

Christine L. Schubert, Math, Ellicott City, MD
 Jeffrey J. Schum, Marketing, Louisville, KY
 Erin R. Schumacher, Finance, Arlington, VA
 Craig A. Schuster, Computer Sci, Kilmarnock, VA

Daniel A. Schwarz, Psychology, Silver Spring, MD
 Sarah S. Schulze, Health Science, Ellicott City, MD
 Allison A. Schweisguth, Biology, Swiftwater, PA
 Alison L. Scott, Hotel Rest Mgt, Roanoke, VA

The hunt is on

There came a time in almost every student's life when he or she decided that the move off of campus would be a beneficial one. The first choice in this process would be whether or not you wanted to live in an apartment or a house. Both of these living arrangements had their share of pros and cons. Apartments often had the modern conveniences of microwaves and such, but houses had that special "homey" feeling to them. Apartments in Harrisonburg for students were in great abundance. Ashby Crossing, Squire Hill, Hunter's Ridge, Forest Hills, University Place, Olde Mill and Campus Condos were popular choices for starters.

For some students the move off campus was a hard one since parents sometimes tried to combat the situation. Sophomore Meghan Coperich made a list comparing the price of on-campus living versus off-campus, then added some of the extras included in off campus living. She then sent the letter off to her parents and the parents of all the people she wanted to live with.

Off campus living offered many extras that on campus living could not. Choices such as the number of people you wanted to live with were also a plus, and even the matter of single sex or coed dorms was no longer an issue.

In the end, students were usually content with the place in which they chose to live, and had finally found that perfect place.

- Jen Williams

LEVELS OF LIVING. The University Towers look like a civil war balcony. The University Towers were the home of many JMU students.

Komisch

Brian C. Scott, Finance, Harrisonburg, VA
 Chris L. Scott, Accounting, McLean, VA
 William I. Scudder, Geog/HCOM, Yorktown, VA
 Cheryl Scully, Finance, Baltimore, MD

Sean S. Secrest, Biology, Collinsville, VA
 Marla C. Seidelman, Art/Graph Des, Columbia, MD
 Hasan M. Seif, POSC, Chesapeake, VA
 Caroline J. Seklemian, MCOM, Los Angeles, CA

Erica L. Seligman, Biology, Roanoke, VA
 Amy E. Sexton, POSC, Woodbridge, VA
 Helen T. Sexton, French/MCOM, Richmond, VA
 Marcus S. Shaker, Biology, Arlington, VA

Jennifer N. Shakesby, Biology, Abington, PA
 Susan E. Sharp, English, Hayes, VA
 Dwayne R. Sharpe, Music Industry, Bedford, MA
 Monica T. Sharper, Accounting, Glen Allen, VA

Curtis N. Sheets, Public Admin, Mt. Sidney, VA
 Gail S. Shelly, POSC/Criminal Just, Va Beach, VA
 Tammy P. Sheldon, Intl Relations, Annandale, VA
 Heather E. Shenk, Finance, Carlisle, PA

NEED A PLACE TO CALL HOME THIS SPRING, LADIES!

Well, here you are! You're leaving the area for student track spring semester. I have a great room to sublet here! It's at UNIVERSITY PLACE - Unit 488-a ground floor apartment! The room has it's own private bathroom!

Call me for information about rent and such. And you can come take a look at it for yourself!

Room for Spring, Angie 434-5119
 Room for Spring, Angie 434-5119
 Room for Spring, Angie 434-5119
 Room for Spring, Angie 434-5119

PLEASE A ROOM IN THE COMMONS FOR SPRING '94 FOR ONLY $125/MTH PLUS PAY ONLY ELECTRICITY AND PHONE FREE CABLE

FOR INFORMATION CALL (804)371-3221

FRENCH ONLY PLEASE

Shackelford

RECRUITING. Patricia Delk and Susan Gibbons man the Commuter Student Council table at Student Activities Night. The CSC offered commuter students many benefits.

MANY OPTIONS. This bulletin board displays many different advertisements for students wishing to sublet rooms. May session was a common time to sublet rooms.

Komisch

Jerel A. Shepard, Kinesiology, Manassas, VA
 Christopher M. Shepherd, MCOM, Va Beach, VA
 Jared A. Sherman, Finance, Wyncote, PA
 Katrina Sherman, Speech Path, Roanoke, VA

Neil D. Sherman, Health Admin, Baltimore, MD
 Scott W. Sherwood, Anthro, Gaithersburg, MD
 Angela K. Shifflett, Management, Madison, VA
 Scott E. Shirley, Marketing, Olney, MD

Julia A. Shoemaker, Psychology, Annapolis, MD
 Rachel D. Shortt, English, Shortt Gap, VA
 Cameron W. Shoup, Soc/ECED, Waynesboro, VA
 Traci L. Showalter, CIS, Troutville, VA

Christie A. Shuk, CIS, Saratoga, CA
 Maurisa D. Shyne, Psychology, Arlington, VA
 Renee Sickinger, Marketing, Harrisonburg, VA
 Wendy L. Siemon, Biology, Fairfax, VA

Michael B. Siewers, Mktg/Mgt, Richmond, VA
 Michelle H. Sileo, English, Arlington, VA
 Anthony R. Simoes, Jr, CIS, Aliquippa, PA
 M. Sharley Simpson, MCOM, Reston, VA

Victoria L. Sims, Health Sci, Colonial Hts, VA
 Jeffrey A. Skalinski, Accounting, Cranberry, NJ
 Melissa A. Skasko, Marketing, Waynesboro, PA
 Kimberly A. Slater, Accounting, Dumfries, VA

A dramatic act

The theater department at James Madison was one full of talent and experience. The department was divided into two types of theater: Main stage and experimental.

Main stage theater put on the larger scale productions, usually in Latimer-Schaeffer theater. It was directed and produced by faculty. Other aspects of theater, such as costuming, lighting design and set design were also all done by faculty.

Experimental theater was staged by students. Funding was provided through the university as well as the Stratford Players, the theater's student organization. The number of productions per semester depended on the number of productions students were willing to make. The only limitation was one of funding and of approval by faculty. Plays were usually performed in Theater II on Main Street.

A new major was added this year, Music Theater, combining two departments for the first time, enabling students more options for their future careers.

-Hani Hong

SIGN OF THE TIMES. The Theatre II sign stands out on Main Street for all to see. Theatre II was home to many theatre students.

Humke

Chris A. Sloanaker, POSC, Charlottesville, VA
 Cynthia S. Smiley, Health Sci, Hiwassee, VA
 Lauren B. Smiley, English, Boston, VA
 Christine I. Smith, Marketing, Melville, NY

Corey, L. Smith, Kinesiology, Sterling, VA
 Diron D. Smith, Acctg/Econ, Salem, VA
 Elizabeth R. Smith, HCOM, Lynchburg, VA
 Emily A. Smith, Athl Trg, Fishersville VA

Eric D. Smith, Management, Annandale, VA
 Jeffrey R. Smith, Accounting, Charleston, WV
 Jeffrey S. Smith, Theater, Springfield, VA
 Margaret C. Smith, Letters & Sci, Richmond, VA

Rebecca S. Smith, Geology, Reston, VA
 Kristen M. Smola, POSC/Econ, Monrovia, MD
 Diane L. Smullen, Sociology, Millington, NJ
 Suzanne M. Snodgrass, Sociology, Urbanna, VA

Joshua K. Snyder, Bio/Psyc, Chantilly, VA
 Kristyn L. Snyder, Music Educ, Salisbury, MD
 Pek Quann Soon, Finance, Singapore
 Jeffrey D. Spangle, Hot-Rest Mgt, Stu Draft, VA

Kenneth E. Spencer, Finance, Dumfries, VA
 Christina N. Spenik, Mgt, Eastchester, NY
 Susanna Speshock, Psychology, Nashville, TN
 Michael S. Sphar, Economics, Springfield, VA

Magin

Humke

DO I MAKE YOU NERVOUS? Nurse Ratchet and RP McMurphy chat during a spring production. Theatre II developed many fine actors in their alternative plays.

FREE ADVERTISEMENT. The experimental theatre presents for your enjoyment, the "Lloyd's Prayer". Theatre II was the home for many experimental plays.

Michelle S. Spinka, FashMerch/Thtr, NewNews, VA
 Jeanette M. Stackhouse, Intl Business, Vienna, VA
 T. Craig Stallings, Accounting, Smithfield, VA
 James Stallins, Jr, Economics, Harrisonburg, VA

Sherry A. Stancil, Soc Wk/Soc, Lynchburg, VA
 James C. Standiford, Theater, Baltimore, MD
 Francis J. Stanek, Jr, Kinesio, Harrisonburg, VA
 Matthew W. Stark, Eng/Mktg, Harrisonburg, VA

Paul D. Stark, MCOM, Centreville, VA
 Jeremy R. Starkey, Finance, Onancock, VA
 Kelly R. Stefanko, Accounting, Hampton, VA
 Alicia R. Stevens, Biology, Meers, OK

Justine A. Stevens, HCOM/Eng, Burke, VA
 Robert S. Stewart, Accounting, Westminster, MD
 Yolanda Y. Stewart, HCOM, Portsmouth, VA
 Bertram L. Stiff, Hlth Serv Adm, Harrisonburg, VA

Robert D. Stiles, Acctg Info Sys, Woodstown, NJ
 David A. Stock, POSC, Reston, VA
 Deanne L. Stolte, Economics, Fairfax, VA
 Theodore R. Stone, History, Chesterfield, VA

Cool tunes

Music concerts are the greatest means of escape. For two hours, one chants, screams and revels in the euphoria of lights and sounds that is, unquestionably, the ultimate auditory experience. JMU students in the 90's now attend concert tours whose scope and ambition have grown to outrageous proportions. Whereas the 70's emphasized bombastic arena rock and the 80's, gratuitous stage antics, today's concert scene aims to bedazzle the audience with special effects and elaborate staging. Nevertheless, like the affluent bachelor pictured in the Maxwell recordable cassette commercial, most JMU students go to concerts simply to be blown away.

According to junior Brian Lancaster, concert tours have gotten progressively better. "I've seen a lot of concerts while at JMU, but my favorite one so far has been Aerosmith's Get a Grip tour. It's an awesome experience to hear music live and in person. It's definitely a nice break from classes."

Some students, such as junior Eiji Shimizu, are content with the concerts provided by the UPB. "I've seen many legendary concerts, including the Rolling Stones reunion tour in Tokyo, but James Brown was simply the best. It was more than a concert. It was pure showbiz entertainment. He appeals to all generations. I did... feel good!"

- Brian Tetro

WHOLE HEARTED. Toad the Wet Sprocket sings at Godwin Hall for a packed crowd. Toad was one of the many shows JMU has given in the past few years.

Rachel K. Stouffer, Public Admin, Clear Spring, MD
 Garnett E. Stover, Biology, Richmond, VA
 Katherine T. Stover, Psychology, Richmond, VA
 Sharon M. Stow, Psychology, Severna Park, MD

Tenita L. Stuart, Nursing, Roanoke, VA
 Christopher M. Stup, Music Industry, Frederick, MD
 D. Gregory Sturgill, Acctg Info Sys, Hampstead, MD
 David M. Sturm, Hist/Germ, Ellicott City, MD

Jeremy N. Suess, Psychology, Springfield, VA
 Beth D. Sunderland, Education, Woodbridge, VA
 Christopher J. Susil, Acctg/AIS, Blacksburg, VA
 Shannon N. Sutherland, Art Hist, Gloucester Pt, VA

Michael L. Sutton, Public Admin, Fishersville, VA
 Heather L. Swager, Nursing, Chesapeake, VA
 Carol J. Swancott, Speech Path, Centreville, VA
 Brent R. Swaney, Music Industry, Yorktown, VA

Philip J. Sweeney, Sociology, Arlington, VA
 Jennifer D. Symonds, Psychology, Buffalo Grove, IL
 Michael A. Syrek, Accounting, Orchard Park, NY
 Tyler W. Swift, Intl Business, APO, AE

Magin

ACAPELLA.. James Taylor and his band harmonize beautifully at their spring '93 concert. The campus was lucky to have classic artists such as Taylor and James Brown.

Desmond

Mary L. Taliaferro, Accounting, Center Cross, VA
 Roger D. Tankersley, Geography, Blacksburg, VA
 G. Bennett Tayloe, English, Norfolk, VA
 Alveeta L. Taylor, Hotel Rest Mgt, Richmond, VA

Cindy J. Taylor, English, Upper Marl, MD
 Danyelle Y. Taylor, Mktg Educ, Richmond, VA
 James E. Taylor, Jr, Accounting, Richmond, VA
 Randy L. Taylor, History, Harrisonburg, VA

Amber Teagle, Eng/French, Berkeley, CA
 Alane Tempchin, POSC, Brookeville, MD
 Julie A. Thill, Spanish, Leesburg, VA
 Bradley J. Thompson, Economics, Colonial Hts, VA

Jennifer E. Thompson, Nursing, Colonial Hts, VA
 Laurie Thompson, Psychology, Marlboro, MD
 Stephanie L. Thompson, Art, Richmond, VA
 W. Scott Thompson, Finance, Fairfax St, VA

Barbara S. Thorne, Accounting, Philadelphia, PA
 Tara E. Thornhill, Social Work, Culpeper, VA
 Matt P. Thrift, Mathematics, Harrisonburg, VA
 Jenita R. Thurston, Hotel Rest Mgt, Louisa, VA

Come on over

Every year, a number of students make the decision to transfer here and become a part of the JMU family. They arrive here wondering how this school will compare with the one they came from. "I was both nervous and excited to come here, but I was definitely ready for a change," was how junior Lesley Scarborough described her anticipation of her move. Feeling like a stranger at first, transfers began making wonderful friends, and learned to appreciate the "JMU experience."

Some students de-cidied to transfer for academic purposes. A number of students transferred because they wanted to major in something that was not offered at the school they came from. Yet another factor for students to transfer was the academic quality at James Madison University. Melissa Coughlin, a junior that transferred this year from West Virginia University, said, "The Special Education program at this school is much more reputable because it has more hands-on practical training, whereas my old school didn't."

The most common reason for students to transfer was that they did not enjoy their former school, or it was the wrong size for them. James Madison University appealed to many, with a reputation for warm welcomes that created a friendly atmosphere. Regardless of the reason people decided to transfer, it was a change for the better. The students became involved on campus, they made many friends, and enjoyed a happier college experience.

-Sara Ringdahl

Mark M. Thurston, Marketing, Louisa, VA
 Renita J. Thurston, Fashion Merch, Louisa, VA
 Amy L. Tice, Gen Social Sci, West Chester, PA
 Kerri L. Tilghman, Nursing, Columbia, MD

James E. Tilley, Intl Business, Bristol, VA
 David L. Timmons, Accounting, Alexandria, VA
 Melissa A. Tindall, Psychology, Falls Church, VA
 Jeff R. Todd, Hlth Serv Admin, Woodbridge, VA

Michelle L. Tolbert, History, Boones Mill, VA
 Carol L. Townsend, Nursing, Churchville, VA
 Mary-Kaye Tribble, Marketing, Harrisonburg, VA
 Alexander F. Tsao, Intl Business, Springfield, VA

Heather N. Turnbow, Art History, Woodbridge, VA
 Daniel R. Turner, MCOM, Oakton, VA
 Jill R. Turner, Biology, Radford, VA
 Julie A. Turner, English, Hagerstown, MD

Michele L. Turpin, POSC/Eng, Roanoke, VA
 Kishia R. Tutt, English, Lexington, VA
 Maura Elizabeth Twohey, POSC/SocSci, Vienna, VA
 Beth A. Vandegrift, English, Wayne, NJ

S. Williams

S. Williams

JMU RULES! 5th year senior Michelle Stough and transfer student Melissa Shank glance at Michelle's scrap book. Although transfer students missed their old school, many stated that JMU was worth the move.

SMART WOMEN. Transfer students Amy Ratliff, Shannon O'Leary, Heather Shippie, and Margie Carter show their pride for their new school. Many students transfer here after their freshman year somewhere else.

Andrew D. vanEsselstyn, MCOM, Fairfax, VA
 Carla M. VanPelt, Studio Art, Mt Crawford, VA
 Susan D. Van Slyke, Dietetics, Virginia Beach, VA
 Svein A. Varhaugvik, Intl Bus, Harrisonburg, VA

Eric L. Veiel, Finance, Severna Park, MD
 Jennifer A. Venable, Dietetics, Roanoke, VA
 Katherine A. Vernall, Nursing, Poquoson, VA
 Sheryl A. Vezina, Hotel Rest Mgt, Sterling, VA

Kristi M. Via, Sociology/MidEduc, Stuarts Draft, VA
 Josephine E. Vidarte, English, Portsmouth, VA
 Keith A. Vincent, Intl Business, Reston, VA
 Matthew D. Vlieger, English, Richmond, VA

Katherine L. Vogan, Dietetics, Garrisonville, VA
 Andrew Y. Vought, English, Newport News, VA
 Charles S. Waddy, Computer Sci, Maidens, VA
 Kevin L. Wade, English, Madison Heights, VA

Tina A. Wade, Accounting, Rocky Mount, VA
 Andrea J. Wagner, Fit/Hlth Prom, Collegetown, PA
 Farah S. Wahab, Intl Affairs, Washington, DC
 Michael D. Waite, POSC, Fredericksburg, VA

C+ always a pickup

Nineteen to the left. Thirty-five to the right. Four to the left...and pray. Pray that the envelope was addressed to me and it wasn't from a credit card company.

As students trekked across campus they inevitably made that sometimes joyous, sometimes disappointing, pit stop at the post office boxes. For some it occurred once a day, for others, more often. The driving force was the hope that there would be a letter from a friend or a parent to bring a smile. Sophomore Shannon Wilson liked to get mail because "It lets you know that there are people who care about you away from JMU. You know that you are not a random person without friends."

The highlight of opening a mailbox was finding one of those little purple slips that said there was a package waiting for you. Who didn't love a care package from Mom or a loved one? Some even ordered everything by mail, just to receive a package.

Of course, there was the down side of getting mail. Credit applications, bills or a CD of Milli Vanilli because you forgot to let your music club know you didn't want it were common disappointments.

On the whole, finding mail in a P.O. box brightened everyone's day. It gave students the opportunity to learn about what was going on in the lives of friends and family who were away from JMU.

-Beth Anne Howie

PACKAGE TIME. Students anxiously wait in line in order to pick up their packages. Getting mail was the highlight of any student's day.

J. Williams

Susan A. Waligura, Nursing, Centreville, VA
 Cynthia A. Walker, Soc/ECED, Newport News, VA
 Jonathan R. Walsh, Accounting, Silver Spring, MD
 Kimberly A. Walsh, French, Harrisonburg, VA

Valerie A. Walsh, Marketing, Reston, VA
 Amy J. Wan, Eng/Soc, Simsbury, CT
 Stephanie M. Ward, Marketing, Alexandria, VA
 Margaret L. Warren, Psychology, Harrisonburg, VA

Amy E. Waters, Dietetics, Fairfax, VA
 Laura L. Weatherly, Intl Business, Midlothian, VA
 Gwen M. Weaver, Econ/Psych, Waynesboro, VA
 Brian D. Webb, Music Industry, Harrisonburg, VA

Dana L. Weber, Intl Affairs, Annandale, VA
 Laura L. Weber, Art, Glen Rock, NJ
 Tim J. Weidner, Psychology, Springfield, VA
 Laura E. Weiland, Speech Path, Lake Ridge, VA

Manzo

J. Williams

MAKING CHANGE. A JMU postal worker gets change for a student. The post office personnel tried to keep smiling, even during the noon hour when lines for their services got extremely long.

FOOD FROM HOME? Freshman Ryan Frost stops to talk to Bob Bianchi before he goes home to open his care package. Care packages reminded students that someone was thinking of them.

Seth J. Weinberg, MCOM, Cherry Hill, NJ
 Katrine M. Weiss, Fin/Psyc, Luthanville, MD
 Troy T. Welck, CIS/Acctg, Gambrills, MD
 Jeffrey M. Wells, Physics, Herndon, VA

Stacey J. Wengert, Speech Path, Centreville, VA
 Janet E. Wenzel, Public Relations, Herndon, VA
 Christopher M. West, POSC, Roanoke, VA
 Nicole M. West, English, Norwalk, CT

Elizabeth K. Westley, HCOM, Rockville, MD
 Katie E. Wethman, Acctg/Fin, Wodbury, NJ
 Michael S. Wetzel, Biology, East Hanover, NJ
 Lisa A. Wheeler, POSC, Lynchburg, VA

Tara S. Whetzel, Psychology, Edinburg, VA
 Adriane R. Whindleton, Psychology, N Garden, VA
 Julie R. Whitacre, Accounting, Oakton, VA
 Catherine A. Whitacre, Psych/Educ, Harrisonburg, VA

Buddies forever

Once in a lifetime, a special friend comes along and leaves a pretty significant impression on you. This is the one person with whom you share everything — your triumphs, your defeats, your sorrows, and your joy. This is the person that you can laugh with, confide in, and who won't complain if you eat up all the Ben & Jerry's...well, maybe not that, but this is someone you can really count on to be there for you through thick and thin.

On campus, it's easy to see best friends because they are often found in pairs. Together, they take classes, they eat their meals, they join clubs, and they go to parties, just to name a few. When they aren't with one another, it's common to hear, "Where is your other half?" Sophomore Katy Barrett said that "People are shocked when I'm not with my best friend. They invariably ask me where she is."

With all the people that pass through four of the most important and memorable years of your life, it is not a surprise that many students find one person to consider as a most trusted companion.

-Gwen Whitney

Christopher L. Whitlow, Pub Adm/POSC, Henry, VA
 Mary A. Whitlow, Psychology, Hampton, VA
 Gwendolyn L. Whitney, English, Macungie, PA
 Amy S. Wicker, Psychology, Mechanicsville, VA

Mason K. Wilburn, HCOM, Midlothian, VA
 Anna L. Wilkinson, Mktg/Intl Bus, APO, AP
 Kristin L. Willey, Marketing, Fairfax, VA
 Christopher T. Williams, HCOM, Warm Springs, VA

Jeffrey L. Williams, POSC, Harrisonburg, VA
 Kimberlee C. Williams, Biology, Manassas, VA
 Pamela A. Williams, Psychology, Dahlgren, VA
 Steve C. Williams, Mktg/Mgt, Front Royal, VA

Troy H. Williams, English, Harrisonburg, VA
 Edwin G. Wilson, Marketing, Alexandria, VA
 Greg A. Wilson, English, Louisville, KY
 Kevin M. Wilson, Finance, Baltimore, MD

Michael W. Wilson, HCOM/Pub Rel, Forest, VA
 Rhonda K. Wilson, HCOM, Randallstown, MD
 Jeffrey D. Wilttrout, Intl Affairs, Macungie, PA
 Monica M. Windley, HCOM, Randallstown, MD

GIGGLES. Best friends Jen Flannery and Denice Luviano laugh together after a tough day. Friends were there for each other through good and bad times.

GOOD CHUMS. Travis Myers and David Trout discuss proper ways to tap a keg. Male bonding was an important part of the male psyche.

BUDS FOR LIFE. Malia Bell and Becky Andrew team up together to solve a problem. Friends worked together to solve any sort of problem.

Hawk

Hawk

Hawk

Rochelle L. Wingert, French/Eng, Mechanics, PA
 Sandra D. Winn, Psyc/MSED, Yorktown, VA
 Brian M. Winterling, Marketing, Clarksville, MD
 Bonnie A. Winters, Accounting, Hackettstown, NJ

Melissa T. Witte, Intl Business, Salem, VA
 Bradley S. Witzel, Psychology, Springfield, VA
 Pamela Wolpert, Marketing, E Northport, NY
 Tracy A. Wong, MCOM, Harrisonburg, VA

Sandra N. Woodin, Biology, Herndon, VA
 Melvin T. Wooding, Jr, Art/Int Des, Roanoke, VA
 Kelly D. Woodruff, MCOM, Chesapeake, A
 Leigh A. Woods, Dietetics, Gainesville, VA

Andrea D. Woodson, Kinesiology, Harrisonburg, VA
 Renee G. Woolfolk, Computer Sci, Richmond, VA
 Christine E. Worontzoff, Finance, Waynesboro, VA
 Edward L. Wright, Economics, Fredericksburg, VA

Suzanne L. Wright, Geography, Eagle Rock, VA
 Wendy K. Wright, Intl Business, Newport News, VA
 Mark G. Wunder, Accounting, Newport News, VA
 Andrea R. Wyche, Finanace, East Hampton, NY

Partaking in our pastimes

Assuming that you had spare time after class, reading and homework what did you usually do during your spare time? JMU students found time to do things other than schoolwork. For some people, taking care of a pet was a hobby. Amy Ingram liked spending time with her dog. "I like to play with him or take him for walks when I get the chance," she said.

Sports were a great way for students to unwind.

Jared Phelps liked to play soccer when he's not busy. Ivan Elias enjoyed playing a little pick-up football on the weekends with his friends. "It's a great physical activity that brings out the competitor in me," he said. Also, the slopes in Massanutten were great for students who wanted to spend more time indulging in the sport that was so enjoyable to many.

On JMU's campus, theater was a pastime for quite a few students. "Theater is my life," said Ashly Covington, who also happened to be a theater major, "I'd do it even if it wasn't my major."

JMU students had a great deal of widespread interests. What they did as an escape from the everyday rigors of school may very well have determined what they do when it was time to go out into the real world.

-Jon Wadsworth

PICTURE THIS. Hani Hong catches up on some printing. Photography was a favorite pastime of many students.

Magin

Joanna E. Wyland, History, Midlothian, VA
 Kimberly A. Yager, MCOM, Richmond, VA
 Nancy L. Yago, Health Sci, Pennsauken, NJ
 Lilliana S. Yanez, Marketing, Burke, VA

Barbara J. Yarnell, English, Bel Air, MD
 Jenny W. Yeatts, Accounting, Roanoke, VA

Chris C. Yi, Mathematics, Springfield, VA
 Sheri L. Yoho, History, Damascus, MD
 Dianne M. York, Kinesiology, Chester, VA
 Jackie D. Young, Marketing, Penhook, VA

Sandra L. Young, English, Harrisonburg, VA
 Graham M. Youngblood, Intl Bus, Lovettsville, VA
 Donesh R. Zamani, POSC/PubAdm, Springfield, VA
 Brian J. Zarahn, MCOM, Deer Park, NY

SEGA WARRIORS. Senior Paul Klewens and Junior Matt Zvolenski attempt to conquer the undiscovered territory playing a new Sega Genesis game.

SEND MONEY. Sophomore Jenn Gilbert spends some time writing letters to keep in touch with friends and family. Many students wrote home for money from parents.

J. Williams

Hong

Amy M. Zeafra, Mathematics, Baltimore, MD
 Kristin A. Zempolich, Psychology, Lanham, MD
 Jerry V. Zepp, Sociology, New Market, VA
 Melinda R. Zwart, Music Educ, Newton, NJ

Tiffany D. Acors
 Patricia E. Anderson
 Eric C. Andros
 Brent C. Apponyi
 Jeffrey E. Auton

Brett B. Baier
 Melanie L. Bailey
 Christine R. Baldwin
 Audra E. Barlow
 John M. Barry

Gearing up for next year

Junior year was one full of expectations and anticipation. Many juniors bustled around and immersed themselves in activities in order to aggrandize their resumes for the future. Junior year was an eventful one and usually the most productive. Students maintained the level of hard work and diligence that they were used to during their junior year, attempting to lessen their possible course loads for senior year. "My class load this year is killer," said junior Jackie Steffey, "but I don't want to have to stress about it later and I want to be able to enjoy my last year here."

Juniors often looked forward to their upperclassmen years. Junior year allowed many to finally go to Ladies' Night at JM's as well as other clubs and bars after reaching their eagerly awaited 21st birthdays. Along with seniority came priority: juniors often found popular classes still open when it came time for telephone registration. Students could finally take the classes within their majors that they found interesting, as opposed to the liberal studies requirements that dominated the course load freshman and sophomore years.

For juniors, the third year in college was full of many new experiences. Many students moved off campus their junior year and entered into a newfound freedom. Others were fortunate enough to enjoy a semester abroad. Junior Tricia Clark, who was travelling to London, said, "Although I'll miss being here at JMU, I'm looking forward to travelling abroad and enjoying the sights in Europe."

The third year was the beginning of the end. Over half-way through college at this point, students were beginning to think about the future and what it had in store for them. Juniors looked forward to working towards a more focused career goal and getting out into the "real world."

-Hani Hong

Kristen L. Baumann
 Samantha A. Beares
 Ben M. Benita
 Cory J. Birch
 Tiffany N. Black

Molly E. Blaney
 Carrie L. Blumenthal
 Elisabeth L. Boivin
 Amy E. Bond
 Kimberly D. Boyd

Shelley C. Bradley
 Lisa R. Branner
 Maggie E. Brock
 Kevin R. Bucher
 Wyndi P. Bullock

Andrea J. Camfield
 Anthony S. Carter
 Mark T. Carter
 Kimberly A. Casserly
 Lisa M. Cherry

Madonna L. Chiu
 Jennifer L. Clark
 Sally R. Clark
 Bruce H. Clarke
 Kari A. Cluverius

Guilfoyle

Wyatt

MAINTAINING FRIENDSHIPS. Kristi Shackelford, Colleen Magin, and Renee Bradley exemplify true friendship. Friends provided one another with support.

PAPER PRESSURE! Junior Randi Baker is in the process of writing a paper. Junior year was stressful since classes students took were the 300 and above level classes.

Sarah M. Coggins
 Christin E. Cogley
 Lashaun M. Coleman
 Jennifer A. Condon
 Jennifer O. Cooper

Jennifer L. Crouch
 Adam C. Crowl
 Colleen Crowley
 Michael E. Davis
 Richard W. Day

Timothy A. Day
 Stephanie A. Dean
 Bridget M. Deel
 Robert D. Delmarco
 Deitra A. Dobbins

Kimberly C. Dougherty
 Chad M. Dunham
 Cliff C. Eichler
 Carla S. Emore
 Stephanie L. Erb

Kathryn A. Erskine
 Michelle A. Esguerra
 Michael J. Everton
 Daniel V. Farmer
 Kathryn M. Farmer

A place for amigos

The Steakhouse, on the top floor of Warren Hall in the Campus Center, was a great place to just sit back with friends and enjoy a different dining environment. Students with any meal contract could enjoy the three course meal at the Steakhouse ten times per semester.

While dining at the Steakhouse, you could enjoy the spectacular view of Massanutten Mountain. The meal included a salad, main meal, side orders, and a dessert of your choice. Best of all, this was brought out to you, rather than having to carry your tray around—a big step up from D-hall and Dukes!

The Steakhouse was also an excellent source of on campus employment. It was a perfect way to get twenty work hours a week without conflicting with classes. Also, steakhouse workers never had to stay in Harrisonburg while everyone else parted for the holidays because when campus is closed the Steakhouse was as well.

If anyone was in the mood to eat, drink, and be merry, all they had to do was make reservations by calling before 4 p.m. and arriving promptly.

-Jen Williams

CASUAL CONVERSATION. The steakhouse has a casual atmosphere conducive to holding conversations. Students could catch up on news while enjoying a good meal.

Holly B. Ferguson
 Becca L. Fisher
 Tony Fleming
 Edie D. Fleshood
 Tiffany D. Flora

Ashley L. Foster
 Cheri N. Frame
 Heidi S. Frank
 Stacey A. Friedl
 Jennifer Frost

Aimee E. Gardner
 Amy L. Gibson
 Christina L. Gibson
 Marc C. Gibson
 Amy L. Gifford

Nicholas B. Giovanello
Lori L. Gollayan
Katharine T. Goodman
MaryBeth Goodman
Rebecca L. Greenleaf

Dawn T. Gresham
Karen E. Grippo
Jennifer A. Grob
Heather E. Hales
Jennifer L. Harlow

Hawk

Hawk

Hawk

THE LIGHT SIDE. Sophomore Kirsten Powell and Mike Powell make a salad before receiving their meals. The salad bar was one of three courses served.

MAY I TAKE YOUR ORDER? At Christmastime this waitress got into the holiday spirit. Friendly service was one of the best aspects of the steakhouse.

Stacey L. Harmon
Susan M. Harnett
William G. Harper
Christina M. Harris
Karen E. Harris

Wendy E. Harris
John T. Harrison
Carrie L. Hartley
Katherine A. Hawk
Erica L. Hawley

Leslie G. Hawksworth
Katina M. Hayden
Mike A. Heffner
Ann-Elizabeth Heiser
Christine P. Hemberger

Ginnie A. Henry
 Angel M. Herlihy
 Kent M. Herr
 Tiffany L. Hillian
 Kristine A. Hinck

Stephanie L. Hoffman
 Chandra L. Hohert
 David A. Horton
 Kerry H. Hough
 Elizabeth A. Howell

Sounds of JMU

The Music Department at JMU was organized for students for the following purposes: to prepare students to teach vocal and instrumental music in public and private schools; to provide a specialization for students who desire a profession in performance or composition; to prepare students for careers in music business; and finally, to provide opportunities that further musical growth. The numerous JMU musical ensembles afforded cultural benefits to the community as well as further students musical understanding.

Sophomore Brendan McGlynn said, "I am a second violin in symphony orchestra as well as a biology major. My schedule is somewhat demanding being as how I devote large chunks of my time to both music and my major. However, I am reved up to go as far as music is concerned. It is an incredible feeling to be in the middle of the music scene. I could never listen to music but rather have to be in the middle of it to experience its true value. Right now, I am taking private lessons but with restructuring, it is a day to day thing with me since I am not a music major."

According to Ryan Benton, a sophomore piano player, "I am a piano major in the jazz band and jazz chamber ensemble. Again, like most music majors, time is of the essence. I practice two times a week for jazz band and three times with the jazz band ensemble. Since being a piano major does not afford a great deal of opportunities, I decided to devote my piano playing to jazz. As far as my future plans are concerned, I aim to work for a recording company and play piano on the side."

Student musicians often performed in Wilson Hall or around campus for the student body as well as local residents and faculty for entertainment.

-Brian Tetro

Jessica M. Hubley
 Will Ingram
 James A. Johnson
 Tamara J. Johnson
 Robert C. Jones

Jacqueline L. Kauffman
 Kimberly A. Keffer
 Katie L. Kendrick
 Jennifer R. Kern
 Anne Carter C. Killmon

K. Jacob Kim
 Teri Kim
 Usha Koduru
 Paige Koontz
 Amy E. Koss

Katherine M. Kramer
 Adrian T. Kress
 Jennifer A. Kucinskis
 Anne E. Kunkle
 Amy D. Lancaster

Kelly E. Larson
 Quoc K. Le
 M. Scott Lea
 Myung Sil Lee
 Richard S. Legon

Magin

Magin

LIGHTS, CAMERA, ACTION. Sarah Allen sings of her sorrow in the fall opera, "Street Scene." The Theatre and Music Departments collaborated on this musical production.

TOOTIN' HER OWN HORN. Stephanie Erb prepares for her concert. Many students put a lot of practice and time into their performances.

Emily I. Levenson
 Christopher C. Liles
 C. Meredith Linberger
 Bradi P. Littrell
 Kwan C. Lou

John L. Loveland
 Paul W. Lutz
 Rebekah C. Lynard
 Sandra D. Maddox
 Nettie Y. Mahone

Tonya N. Mainor
 Mike C. Marshall
 Jennifer N. Martin
 Marjorie S. Maslayak
 Alexis J. McCombs

Jerry E. McCormick, Jr
 Shelly A. McMinn
 Jennifer M. Meade
 Heather L. Meeuwissen
 Jennifer M. Miller

Matthew J. Miller
 Mark C. Mitchell
 Sarah L. Mobelski
 Lori A. Moore
 Stephanie A. Mullins

Sorry, that class is full

Registration for classes. That time of year came all too often and the rush to the phones was incredible. Registering was a very stressful time for many. Freshmen were left in the last position for getting classes. Sophomores and juniors grasped for that last liberal studies class. Seniors worried that they would not get all the classes they needed to graduate.

Every student was assigned a time based on their year and social security number to call in and tackle the phone registration system. Usually half of the time on the phone was spent waiting for the line to pick up. Then, if students were fortunate enough to have the phone pick up, students punched in their various numbers, social security and birthdate, to commence the system. Once students were connected, they then tried their luck at their first choice of classes. From then on, it was all a matter of luck.

Every student had a different experience with registration. Amy Herbster said, "I think the most stressful part of registration is deciding what classes I need and how they will fit into my schedule. The actual registration process has been relatively easy for me- I can do it in the comfort of my own bed."

Depending on what major you chose, the availability of classes differed accordingly. Mike Ogilvie, a physics major said, "I've never had a problem getting into any classes. As a physics major you usually don't need an override for Quantum Mechanics."

Eventually everyone got the necessary classes and then faced the challenge of the course workload for the following semester.

-Valerie Leighton

Todd D. Myrick
 Arisa Nagashima
 Leonard B. Navitskis
 Matthew D. Newquist
 Anne T. Nguyen

Michelle S. Nothdurft
 Kerry A. O'Connor
 Elizabeth L. Obester
 Jeannie L. Palmer
 H.J. Ellen Park

Christopher E. Partin
 Drew D. Pascarella
 Michael D. Pickles
 Melissa G. Pugh
 Anjanette D. Rakes

Karen N. Ramsay
H. Shana Rascoe
Dina I. Relan
Mirella Retrosi
Dawn M. Rhinehart

Branden M. Rhodes
Elizabeth M. Robbins
Quincey R. Roberts
Roberta A. Roberts
Brian J. Robilotta

S. Williams

S. Williams

GOOD LUCK! Greg Rollins attempts to get his desired classes on the telephone. Students found telephone registration a frustration because of the gridlock on classes.

HELPING OUT. The staff at the registration center helps students arrange their schedules. Students went to the registration center to drop and add classes.

Karen C. Roets
Gavin J. Rogers
Babette M. Rogol
Amoreli C. Ronquillo
Kristi L. Rorrer

Tiffanie N. Rosier
Brett M. Sabin
Leslie M. Sadoff
Couri C. Saunders
Craig A. Schilpp

Jeanne A. Schmecht
Ryan B. Schoenfeld
Tara B. See
Karen A. Segermark
Susan L. Seidnitzer

Christopher J. Self
 Brian R. Senatore
 Heather E. Shell
 Eiji Shimizu
 Ann M. Shepperson

Kristin M. Simmer
 Lori M. Simms
 Julie A. Simpson
 William D. Sisler
 Renee D. Sloan

Keeping Order

Imagine working all day, all week, all month, and almost all year... Such is the life of a Resident Advisor. Becoming a resident advisor required a lot of sacrificing and a lot of responsibility. Resident advising was a difficult job for some and was often referred to as a "24-hour job." RA's were a necessity in dorm life.

A resident advisor was a confidant and a friend. He or she was often found to be patient, dependable, and trustworthy. Many students called upon their advisors to help them in when they were locked out, to get the vacuum, or to borrow the VCR. Advisors were required to organize six programs per semester to benefit the residents and often included many interesting topics including yoga, sexual assault, health topics, time management, and more.

Advisors made many sacrifices in becoming an R.A. Sometimes both nights of the weekend were spent in the office (also known as a "suicide weekend") and often weekdays were spent on duty as well. These authority figures were also always on campus until the last possible hour to check out their residents before breaks, and were usually the first ones to return in order to let everyone back in!

Becoming a resident advisor is a great deal of work, and the next time you see yours, be sure to let them know how much you appreciated the help you might have taken for granted!

- Hani Hong

TAKING A BREAK. RA's Sharon Dillon and Susan Toewe share a laugh in the office. Throughout the year RA's served as friends and guides to students living in the dorms.

Danelle M. Smoker
 Craig A. Steger
 Jennifer A. Streit
 Jennifer L. Stimpson
 Jennifer P. Stockton

Jessica R. Stone
 Anne M. Steventon
 Jenny Sun
 Max V. Surikov
 Deb K. Swartzendruber

Tammy R. Taylor
 Tonya R. Temple
 Brian E. Tetro
 Jay M. Thomas
 Tricia L. Thomasson

Cheryl J. Trent
 Lindsay N. Trout
 Jason S. Tyree
 Tamara M. Ward
 Vernon L. Warnecke

J. Williams

ON DUTY. Chris Susil, an RA in Hoffman, sits the desk. One of the many responsibilities of an RA included office duty.

Richard B. Waters, Jr.
 Amy C. Welsch
 Elizabeth J. Wenzel
 Candy L. White
 Karen L. Willis

Shannon C. Wilkins
 Christina L. Wise
 Tanya L. Woltemath
 Kenneth K. Wong
 Celeste A. Young

Dany N. Abdul-Khalek
 Kathryn P. Alessandria
 Lori K. Alexander
 Melissa M. Anderson
 Michelle I. Ahn

Jason W. Adkins
 Jennifer J. Balisle
 Jeffrey E. Batt
 Michelle Beam
 Danielle M. Behrman

Major decisions

It was a year of uncertainty. No longer the new kid on campus, but not yet upperclassmen. Able to find your way around campus, but still getting lost in Harrisonburg. Getting tired of the same old parties, but too young to get into bars. The trials and tribulations of being a sophomore.

But being second year had its benefits. Many sophomores took advantage of the opportunity to be on their own and moved off campus. "One year of Eagle was all it took for me!" said Sarah Allen. "I was looking for apartments by November!"

Those that chose to live on campus had the chance to select their roommates instead of being paired with a stranger. In addition, sophomores could enter a lottery to pick the dorm, rooms and suites they preferred. Most found that this option was better than the random assignments of the university. Those staying on campus also had the opportunity to keep their cars on campus.

Many students chose their sophomore to enter the Greek system, and both fraternity and sorority rush were filled with many second year students. Going Greek allowed students to another place of belonging around campus.

There were innumerable little advantages to being a sophomore. Finally learning their way around Carrier Library and campus in general, mastering the art of adding prices in your head in Dukes and having some registration priority were advantages sophomores enjoyed and freshmen eagerly anticipated.

-Kristi Shackelford

MIRROR MIRROR ON THE WALL. Sophomore Beverly Dickhudt gets ready to go out. It always seemed that dorms didn't provide enough space to hold a students' necessities.

Matthew R. Beland
 Jennifer K. Biondi
 Virginia A. Bolen
 Leigh A. Bouknight
 Crystal F. Bowers

Katherine F. Bradbury
 Emily C. Brandt
 Elizabeth M. Brawley
 Cristina C. Breen
 Mary R. Brizendine

Judy V. Browder
 Melissa B. Bryant
 Judy S. Bullard
 Joy E. Burke
 Jorie B. Burkman

Alyssa R. Burnette
 Jennifer L. Burnfield
 Meghan E. Bury
 Dana S. Bushrod
 Natalie A. Butts

Kerry F. Callahan
 Keith L. Carrington
 Ricky D. Castillo
 Caroline F. Causey
 Todd W. Catlett

J. Williams

S. Williams

HEAVE HO. Sophomore Brian Rivero uses his strenght to help out in a tug of war during greek week. Sophomore year was a prime time for students to pledge a greek organization.

Fung Yung Chang
 Sharon E. Chewning
 Maria L. Christopher
 Lauren E. Cogswell
 Alicia D. Collins

Wendy E. Costello
 Tracey L. Cramer
 Jacqueline R. Crisci
 Rachel A. Cunningham
 Rachel M. Daigle

Brandy L. Daugherty
 Amy C. Derr
 Jennifer R. Dickerson
 James P. Doran, II
 Alice M. Donohoe

Christie N. Duty
 Jill K. Duvall
 Shanna C. Edgell
 Heather L. Egan
 Christopher Ellingsen

Courtney E. Ellison
 Jennifer A. Erskine
 Jennifer E. Falls
 Christie L. Fariss
 Kevin G. Finch

Campus life

On campus housing seemed to be the ideal choice for college living arrangements. Proximity to campus life and classes, a generous meal plan and accessibility to faculty and students supported arguments for living on campus.

Upperclassmen had their choice of residence halls and were able to choose their own roommates. This was achieved through a lottery system based on a student's class, allowing seniors to have the best selection of living arrangements. Those who chose to do so could also spend their college years in their fraternity or sorority houses. The transportation hassles and the distance from campus that off campus housing entailed inspires students to remain on campus during their glorious college years.

According to junior Thanh Huynh, "For one thing, it is very important to meet people and on campus living affords the most conducive environment for this to happen. Another thing I like is that it is very convenient for classes and campus activities. Above all, on campus life provides the greatest educational experiences."

For other students, on campus housing offered a suitable environment for studying. According to junior Lisa Cherry, "Easy access to the library and the plethora of residence hall study lounges allows me to get a lot of studying done. I appreciate the frenzy of activity that occurs in on campus life. Ultimately, I enjoy the interaction of my fellow classmates in on campus housing."

-Brian Tetro

SPRING CLEANING D.J. Mark gives his room a good once over. One thing being subject to periodic inspections was one element students living on campus were generally not fond of.

Karen M. Flannery
 Kristen P. Fleshood
 Diana L. Frederick
 Tamesha Y. Freeman
 Molly R. Frierman

Deborah C. Funk
 Jennifer L. Gaver
 Jeni A. Giancoli
 Bonnie C. Gifford
 Lise A. Gloede

Elizabeth B. Goodloe
 Jill R. Gottdiener
 Talita N. Gray
 Joanna N. Greever
 Lisa M. Grove

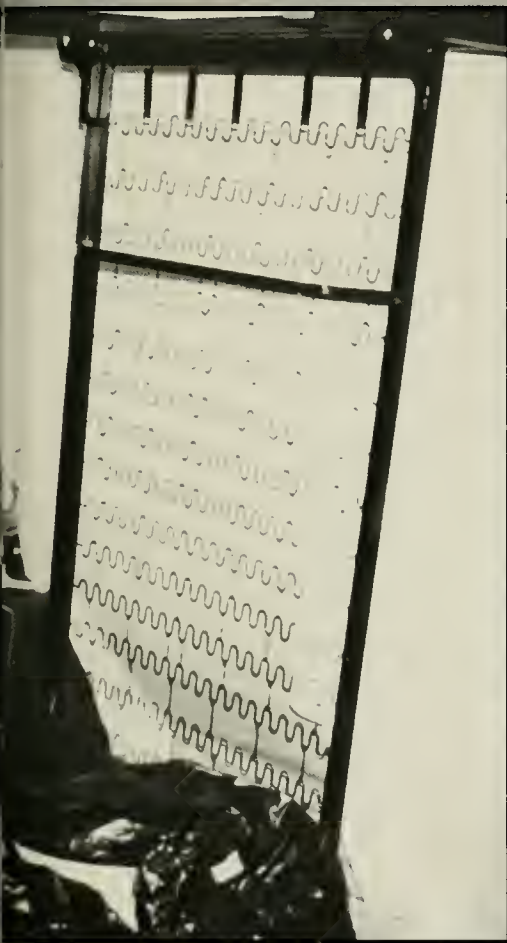

Melissa D. Grubbs
 Brian D. Hall
 Jennifer J. Hall
 Jennifer L. Hall
 Regina D. Hall

Alicia L. Hamp
 Cynthia A. Hancher
 Kerry A. Harding
 Kimberly A. Harper
 Sean T. Harrington

J. Williams

Franca

WHERE'S THE BED? Messy rooms were common as students chose to keep everything within arms reach. Egg crates and posters were common dorm room decorations.

Alan O. Harris
 Catherine A. Harris
 Chris J. Hartary
 Cindy D. Hartman
 Kimberly G. Hawksworth

Sarah T. Headley
 Matthew C. Higgins
 Carol L. Hite
 Kara E. Hite
 Susan N. Hodnett

John S. Hoke
 Heather L. Holcomb
 Julie M. Holmes
 Yvette M. Holmes
 Elizabeth N. Howard

Elizabeth M. Hudgins
 Brian S. Hughes
 Margaret H. Janca
 Joshua B. Jefferds
 Lisa Y. Jenkins

Dayle G. Johnson
 Amy E. Jones
 Jennifer A. Jonker
 Kathy E. Jonkers
 Pamela L. Jung

Funding your identity

Don't leave home without it. Even more important to JMU students than their credit cards were their IDs - the infamous JAC cards. Without their JMU Access Card, students couldn't check out books from the library, use their punch at D-Hall, get into most sporting events or even work out in the Wellness Center.

A JMU ID was often necessary off campus. Many businesses required students writing checks to present their JMU ID, especially if the check was from out of state. "It's just a precaution," said one Valley Mall store manager. "With so many young people around, it's as much to their benefit as it is to ours."

JAC cards were often used by students with accounts like Food From Home or Flex. The Food From Home system gave students a 10% discount when they got food from the various campus restaurants.

The use of JAC cards off campus increased this year as off campus establishments began to accept student Flex accounts for payment. Local area pizza places allowed students to order pizza and pay for it with money from their accounts. "That is good for me because my parents keep putting money in my Flex and they don't know that I'm spending it all on pizza!" said junior Chris O'Donnell.

Overall, students found that their JAC cards worked to their best interests. Some area businesses gave discounts to students with them, and they were a useful second ID at clubs and bars. But even better than that for some was, according to freshman Candace Miller "just being able to go home and show my friends still in high school my college ID!"

-Kristi Shackelford

Joe Kaminski, Jr.
 Heather R. Kaneer
 Shanette A. Kearney
 Angela M. Keen
 Rhonda P. Kern

Rehan A. Khan
 Joshua C. Kingsley
 Andrew M. Klapmust
 Emily K. Knick
 Deanna L. Kringel

Wendy C. Kush
 Carrie E. Lahnstein
 Sharon A. LaRowe
 Tara R. Layman
 Jennifer A. Leet

Ashley C. Lewis
 Donna-Dianne Lindstrom
 Aaron Lineberger
 Tory Lopes
 Theodore R. Lowery

Xuan D. Luong
 Kim L. Mobe
 Gina M. Main
 Melissa G. Mangum
 Rudman H. Martin

S. Williams

FLEX IT. This student uses her JAC card and flex account to get a soda at a vending machine. This was a convenient way for students to get refreshments.

TICKET TO RIDE. The JAC card is the lifeblood of JMU students. It provided entrance to sporting events and on campus dining options.

S. Williams

Jennifer S. Martinez
 Margaret E. Mayall
 Moira E. McCaffrey
 Christa A. McCusker
 Erin C. McDermott

Amy J. McKenna
 Anne M. McMahon
 Melissa L. Miklaucic
 Michelle L. Miklaucic
 Rachel N. Miller

Shawn E. Miller
 Tiffany D. Miller
 Thomas Mirabella
 Joanne M. Misiano
 Nora N. Moore

Susan E. Morlino
Joseph G. Morosco
Lisa M. Morris
Shelby D. Morris
Margaret A. Morton

Debbie K. Moseley
James E. Moye
Valerie A. Murray
Polly J. Nesselrodt
Erin E. Neuman

Coin it & wash it

Your bed, floor, chairs, computer and TV were all draped with dirty clothes. It was time to do your laundry yet again. It seems like just yesterday you devoted hours upon hours to this tedious, yet "oh-so-necessary" chore. Although college students will wear jeans, shirts, sweaters, etc. over and over again, when our supply of "unworn" underwear has depleted, we've pushed it to the very limit. There was no more compromising!

As you stumbled into the laundry room, you had high hopes for an open machine. More often than not, these hopes were shattered. To avoid the vicious competition, some students actually planed out when they will accomplish this task. Sophomore Odessa Holt said "The only time I do laundry is if I am up at two in the morning."

JMU installed new laundry machines this year, and raised the cost of the dryers to fifty cents. This increase was another turn off for students. Junior Melissa Keller said, "It's not too often that I have that many quarters lying around, so it is always a big production when I decide to clean my clothes." However, the new dryers were considered by most to be larger, and more powerful...definitely worth that extra quarter!

Regardless of the nuisances, doing laundry was an unavoidable fact of life. Ultimately, there came a time when we each had to admit to ourselves that it needed to be done, gather up our dirty clothes, and venture to the machines. Whether this was done in an apartment or the basement of a residence hall, we were all happier--and cleaner, after the whole process was over.

-Sara Ringdahl

NO QUARTERS NECESSARY!
Natasha Lambuth has the luxury of a washer and dryer in her apartment. Living off campus provided less hassle when it came to laundry.

Soon Hee Newbold
Greg J. Noone
Elizabeth A. Nystrom
Shaun R. O'Neal
Katrina M. Owens

Kathleen M. Palm
Alicia A. Pannell
Eleanor E. Pattee
Kenneth H. Pedersen
Kimberly A. Plaughter

Alison J. Poole
 Kristen L. Post
 Michael C. Prem
 Melissa J. Quesenberry
 Kristen A. Quattropani

Kristen L. Ramsey
 Michael A. Ray
 Stephanie L. Reeves
 Andrea Remy
 Kari M. Rinne

HATING IT. This student loads up the washing machine with weeks worth of dirty clothes and quarters. Doing laundry was seldom an eagerly awaited pastime for students.

Vo

Amy D. Ritchie
 Jennifer A. Robbins
 Mindy R. Roish
 Richard P. Rowland
 Scott M. Ryman

Angela D. Sampson
 Joy L. Sandoval
 Deborah L. Schebe
 Jennifer M. Scholten
 Christopher C. Seal

Chad M. Seegers
 Marcus J. Seiler
 Tami M. Shackelford
 Kalpana R. Shenoy
 Laurie E. Shields

Alison D. Shorter
 Dana L. Shurr
 Tiffany D. Simmons
 Christopher B. Smith
 Melissa J. Smith

Monumental mentors

Who were today's heroes and why? The answer differed depending on who you asked. The only definite answer that you will get was that everybody had one. A great deal of students admired musicians who have achieved fame and fortune through their music. "I admire Jimmy Page and Perry Farrel," said Pelham Blunt, who owned all of their albums. "They're innovative, original and don't care about what anybody else thinks."

Other students chose people whose personal characteristics transcend their careers. Ivan Elias said that NFL lineman Jim Lachey was one of his heroes because "his strength of character and in coming back from serious injuries transcends the game."

Many students chose more traditional heroes in American culture. Jennifer Faison said that firefighters have always been her heroes. "They put their lives on the line everyday for others. They are very unselfish."

Parents turned out to be the heroes of most students at JMU. "My mom and dad are my heroes," said Tony Peret, "they taught me how to do things right." Dan Corcoran named his mother as his hero because "she takes a licking and keeps on ticking." One of senior Heather Gustin's heroes was a combination of a family member and public figure. "As General Manager of the Chicago White Sox, my uncle has shown me how to effectively deal with the pressures of a high-profile job, and I really admire him" Heather commented.

Heroes and heroines came in many forms with many faces. They offered students goals to achieve, lessons to learn and examples to follow. In trying to emulate their heroes, JMU students may become heroes themselves someday.

-Jon Wadsworth

RIGHT HAND MAN. Vice President Al Gore waves to the crowd at his inauguration. Political figures world wide were heroes to various people.

Kristin E. Speakman
 Amy N. Stone
 Melanie A. Stone
 Melissa A. Stone
 Adrienne F. Straub

Kristen E. Swartout
 Douglas W. Sweeney, Jr.
 Eric J. Sydell
 Carolyn E. Thierbach
 Megan E. Tillery

Renee V. Toy
 Patricia A. Tuberty
 Kimberly S. VanHorn
 Trang T. Vo

Mark C. Voorheis
 Scott D. Walker
 Lauren D. Webb
 Christopher R. Weins
 Olivia Weisbard

Mary S. Weiss
 Renee A. Wheelbarger
 Ginger A. Widmyer
 Tara E. Wiedeman
 Amy C. Wilinski

RM Photo Service

Gustin

SHAQ ATTACK! A poster on the wall shows the NBA's latest sensation. Athletes from professional teams oftenserved as inspirations to students.

Jason C. Williams
 Michelle M. Winder
 Jennifer L. Wirt
 Theresa D. Woodard
 Alice H. Wong

Amy L. Wright
 Lisa M. Wright
 Susan M. Wright
 Susan E. Yap
 Ryan M. Zimmerman

Elizabeth A. Allen
 Ezra C. Amiss
 Amy E. Atkinson
 Temple W. Aylor
 Darrick I. Ayres

Geoffrey A. Baker
 Catherine M. Barch
 Amity C. Bednarzik
 Jason M. Bell
 Brett J. Beres

A new beginning

New friends, new ideals and new expectations were what all freshmen were waiting for upon arrival at James Madison University. Freshmen were excited about meeting roommates and suitemates, and many were looking forward to a life with new responsibilities and no curfew. However, there were those with reservations about the changes in store for them as they first learned to live on their own.

Freshman year was full of excitement for most, and sometimes, the transition between high school and college was too much to handle. "When I first got here, I felt like throwing up," said Simone

Lamy. "There was just so much coming at me at once." Freshman year was definitely more stressful for some than others. Some students pulled their first all nighter and realized that work in college was definitely more demanding than what they were used to.

Most students, however, managed to enjoy themselves and the new lives they led at school. Friendships were established and students became involved in many school activities. "I've met a lot of interesting people this year," said Kristaffer Barber. "I've really enjoyed it."

Along with the usual confusion of a university system, this year's freshmen class was also faced with the massive restructuring at JMU. This meant added planning, but also offered the bonuses of newly created majors and being able to comfortably graduate in four years.

The Class of 1997 might have been a long way from graduating, but they made a strong impression to the JMU community and made a smooth transition from life at home to life at college.

- Hani Hong

HOME SWEET HOME. Freshmen roommates Jeff Schaefer and Joe Simmons deck their rooms for Christmas. Living on their own gave students the chance to decorate their rooms however they wanted.

Tonya M. Berry
 Candice O. Boaz
 Raina T. Bolden
 Rex W. Bonomelli
 Troy O. Booker

Julia A. Booze
 Glenn D. Borgmann
 Ann H. Brassfield
 Jessica J. Brunow
 Wendy M. Bryant

Allison M. Budris
 Barbara J. Burton
 Julie A. Burton
 Irma Rose Campbell
 Rebecca L. Campbell

Raquel M. Canadas
 Evan M. Cantwell
 E. Scott Carden
 Janine A. Cardona
 Janet E. Carpenter

Nicole M. Carzo
 Laura C. Casey
 Brooke R. Chafin
 Nirav K. Chaudhari
 Laura A. Cherry

Guilfoyle

Guilfoyle

HEADED OUT. Freshman Josh Kuter leaves Eagle for a day filled with learning. Eagle was the largest freshmen dorm on campus.

Aaron C. Church
 Marsha L. Clapp
 Sarah L. Clarke
 Sherlonda D. Clarke
 Kenneth R. Clore

Rebecca A. Codd
 Colleen M. Cohee
 Kathryn A. Cole
 James A. Cooley
 Lois D. Coyner

Josh W. Crandall
 C. Kendall Crigler
 Amanda L. Cruickshank
 Suzanne M. Cullen
 Patrick B. Danaher

Mike A. Daniels
 Jennifer F. Daum
 Maureen M. Davenport
 Amanda W. Davidson
 Susan P. Davis

Ashley G. DeFabio
 Alex K. Der Hovhannessian
 Constance A. DeWitt
 Melanie A. Dickerson
 Ryan K. DiParisi

Going my way?

Freshmen were not supposed to have cars at school, so how did they get home? The ride board was the best chance to find a ride home for a weekend, holiday or any other reason, for freshmen, sophomores, juniors and even seniors.

The ride board was located in the Campus Center next to the post office. The board consisted of a map of Virginia and many other places were marked for New York, Rhode Island, Florida and other states.

Most people who needed a ride somewhere filled out a card for "ride wanted". There were spaces for times the student could leave and return, where they wanted to go, their name and phone number. Some students placed huge signs along the board or decorated a card that stood out from the rest. Students who were especially desperate for a ride to a specific location would offer to pay for all the gas, or to bring along food or good tapes.

Drivers could also fill out cards for "riders wanted". This was a great way to get some extra gas money and have some company along the way. "The ride to my hometown in New Jersey takes almost six hours. I like to take riders with me because it makes the drive seem shorter, and I like knowing that if my car breaks down, I won't be alone" commented senior Michelle Bean who regularly posted cards for open spaces in her car.

One way or the other, students often found a ride home. The ride board just provided the most convenient way to find a ride and see when and where people were going. As Joe Russo simply put, "It works. People use it."

-Valerie Leighton

EXPLORING THE POSSIBILITIES.
 The ride board: a haven for those who need to get away from it all. The board helped to put prospective riders and drivers headed the same way together.

Eric J. Dobratz
 Kristin K. Dollenberg
 Carrie A. Donak
 Mary K. Duncan
 Sonal Dutt

Mathilde S. Egge
 Delfina M. Elias
 Kristen J. Ellis
 Stacey R. Emerick
 Matthew D. Engel

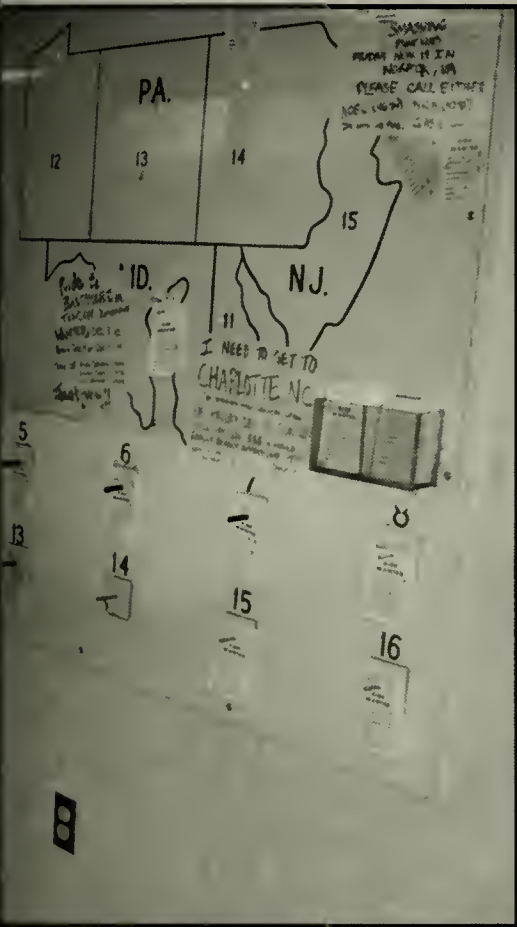

Paul G. Erickson
 Graham D. Farbrother
 Joy M. Ferrante
 Zack S. Fincher
 Samantha Fitzgerald

Joshua W. Floyd
James J. Foster
Aimee M. Fradette
Mary F. Fray
John T. Frazier

Christine M. Fullerton
Michaela D. Fux
Whitney A. Gallier
Adrienne M. Ganit
Mary E. Garner

J. Williams

J. Williams

GETTING LUCKY! Freshmen Katie Parks strikes gold by finding a ride slip on the board. Freshmen often relied more on the board than others because so few of them had cars.

Brian D. George
Benjamin J. Gill
Tara A. Gilpin
Kara M. Gingerelli
Michele S. Golden

Kirsten M. Goodpaster
Christie L. Grubbs
Tamika S. Gunn
Michael K. Hagan
Jesse I. Haley

Holly C. Hales
Amanda S. Hall
Julie A. Heath
Chandra M. Harris
Shayla L. Henry

Henry D. Herr
 Nathan A. Hess
 Crystal M. Hill
 Julie A. Holman
 Creedence M. Holzmacher

Matthew D. Horning
 Susan E. Hughes
 Becky W. Hurst
 Jeff R. Huskins
 Christine E. Ibach

Lonely?

When one left from home to attend JMU, the first reaction was probably to scream "freedom" like thousands of other freshman. Yet, as that sense of freedom started to diminish, a new feeling swept over most students: homesickness.

Yes, even though we were free to do what we wanted, we weren't free from the bond we had made from years of living at home. "I really didn't realize how important home was until I wasn't living there for a few months," said senior Kristi Snyder.

This new sense of displacement brought about a sense of responsibility. Moms were no longer on site to do laundry, clean up rooms, or tend to their sick children. Long time friends from home suddenly became long distance friends, and the first few phone bills of a student's freshman year often revealed numerous phone calls to friends from home.

After the initial shock of the transformation, most freshmen found life at JMU to be comfortable. "When I said I was going 'home for the weekend' for the first time," said junior Alexander Krechting, "I had to think about where home was." Ultimately the ties to a hometown, coupled with the experience of a new school brought the combination of the best of two worlds.

-Joe Olson

Irma P. Isberto
 Amy L. Jackson
 Lori A. Jackson
 Maribeth L. Janka
 Jessica L. Johnson

Michelle E. Johnson
 Heather K. Jones
 Jody A. Jones
 Tiffany T. Jones
 Beth A. Judy

Jennie Kang
 Michelle E. Kaupas
 Jennifer E. Keenan
 Amy L. Keller
 Renee M. Kingan

Yuji Koga
 Kyle J. Krisko
 Michelle T. Laird
 Julie M. Lamb
 Simone M. Lamy

David R. Lapp
 Steve S. Lee
 Jennifer V. Lelle
 Jenny T. Leonard
 Kimberly C. Linberger

SHOVING. These students head out for a weekend at home. Weekend trips to visit friends or family were common for students.

PHONE BILL RISING. This student shares a laugh with a friend back home. Many students found the distance from their loved ones tough.

MISSING MOM. Letters home from lonely students were common. Students often opted to write instead of calling in the interest of saving money.

Brian S. Lineweaver
 Suzanne M. Liola
 Michelle L. LoVuolo
 Anne M. Lowe
 Kathryn B. Lowry

Sally G. Lusk
 Amanda A. Mach
 Shay L. Makela
 Kelly L. Malady
 Jill S. Malinchock

Courtney D. Manuel
 Jennifer M. Marnane
 Kim E. Marsh
 Mary R. Mathews
 Milton S. Matter

Ashley E. McCrary
 Jeffrey C. McKay
 Catherine A. McKee
 Dawn E. McKinney
 Holly R. Meeuwissen

Emory H. Merryman, III
 Lauren L. Messmer
 Michelle M. Miles
 Kristen D. Miller
 John W. Missal

Please let me in!

We can all remember that fateful day, coming home from a long day of school, happy that it was our senior year and almost over. Then checking the mailbox and seeing the fat envelope with the Harrisonburg postmark and a return address from James Madison University. At last! The day you had been waiting for! All the worry and eager anticipation were over and you couldn't wait to tell your friends, "I got in!"

Applications have steadily increased over the past five years as JMU's reputation as "publiciv" has grown across Virginia and nationwide. More and more students are applying and being accepted each year. Standardized test scores and the average grade point has increased, too. "JMU is a harder school to get into now than it was when my sister went here years ago," said junior Colleen Magin. "Things have changed a lot in terms of academic expectations."

Some students found that letter of acceptance in their post office box at another school. "I thought that Birmingham wasn't the school for me," said junior transfer student Jackie Steffey. "Seeing that letter from JMU in my mailbox proved it."

Whenever the notice came, eager future James Madison students were happy to fill in their forms and reserve a spot at the school of their choice.

Soon, the questions were "Where are you living?" and "When are you going?" rather than "Did you get in?" and each student was proud to let everyone know that he or she was attending this fine educational institution.

-Kristi Shackelford

DO YOU LIKE WHAT YOU SEE? A Student Ambassador shows off the beauty of the campus to a group of interested students. Student Ambassadors were always active in the recruiting process.

Derek M. Mitchell
 James G. Mosley
 Theresa D. Moster
 Jennifer P. Munson
 Stephanie M. Neubert

Sean C. Niehoff
 Laura A. Nizer
 Jennifer A. Nowitzky
 Ann M. Nye
 Kara D. Ogletree

Sachiko Okada
 Christie M. Olsen
 Sarah A. Parr
 Kate E. Parrucci
 Alicia C. Peacock

Lauren A. Perry
 Michael J. Peters
 Jennifer C. Phillips
 Emily D. Pigeon
 Molly L. Pilla

Laura E. Pine
 Misty M. Polihronakis
 Shannon H. Pote
 Benjamin Proctor
 Nancy L. Propst

S. Williams

S. Williams

BAIT. Brochures, maps and applications: things that lured seniors in high school and possible transfers to JMU. The University invested a great deal in its publications.

Lynne F. Pruszowski
 Dana S. Pugnetti
 Cynthia D. Pusey
 Christopher B. Rash
 Dana L. Ray

Lauren S. Read
 Laura J. Ridolphi
 Matthew P. Rinn
 Lena J. Roberta
 Adam M. Robey

Bambi K. Robinson
 Megan C. Roche
 Tracy A. Rodrigues
 Nancy L. Roht
 Adriana Rojas

Yvonne D. Rolle
 Gail E. Rosenblum
 Kelly T. Rothwell
 Jeannine M. Ruggiano
 Vanessa C. Salazar

Nudrat S. Salils
 Omari J. Sanders
 Benjamin C. Saunders
 James F. Scancellia
 Jane A. Schultz

To protect and serve

We saw them walking the campus at night in pairs, and they were posted at sports events and concerts. Most students appreciated the sight of the cadets, with the exception of those who had partied a little too much.

The cadet program consisted of about 50 students who were trained to assist campus police with security. Campus Cadets patrolled campus, and they were available to escort students across campus at night. They helped fix any situations that arose on campus, which were then printed in the famous Police Log in the Breeze.

"The craziest thing was when the lights went out in the lakeside area and we had to evacuate everybody," said senior and cadet Graham Youngblood. "Everyone hated us because they all ended up sleeping in Godwin for the night."

Cadets could be found on campus almost any time of the day. They worked late into the night, escorting students home, and generally oversaw things. "My freshman year I called cadets all the time to walk me home from Anthony-Seeger," said junior Kristi Shackelford. "It was a long and scary walk from there to my room in Eagle."

The cadets' presence at JMU made many of us feel much more secure and helped make JMU a safe place for us all.

Students felt better protected as long as there were cadets patrolling nearby or whenever there was one in sight. Safety was often a concern of many students' and parents.

-Gwen Whitney

RESCUE 911. Cadet Katie Rorrer assists the Harrisonburg Rescue Squad at a home football game. The cadets were very visible at almost every university event.

Allen D. Schutz
 Lauren A. Schwartz
 Erick F. Seamster
 Sybil K. Sheffield
 Tamika C. Shelton

Aimee M. Sheppard
 Jennifer S. Shields
 Danielle K. Shuford
 Karl R. Schumann
 Jennifer A. Sinclair

Rachel C. Smart
 Erin D. Smith
 Steven E. Staugaitis
 Christy A. Steele
 Jody L. Stell

Samir T. Suleiman
 Julie J. Sun
 Victor M. Taylor
 Michael P. Thompson
 Wendy S. Todd

Pamela L. Toth
 Angie L. Tucker
 Deborah M. Van Ness
 Julie A. Walsh
 Andrew L. Warren

Magin

Manzo

LOCKED UP. Cadet Christine Chang secures a building late on night. With the Harrisonburg and campus police, JMU was one of the safest campuses on the east coast.

Natalie E. Webb
 Meghan L. Wedd
 David R. Wilkerson
 Kristina S. Williams
 Sarah C. Woodall

Holly G. Woods
 David L. Wycinsky
 Sherrel P. Wynder
 Noriko Yamauchi
 Ronald E. Yeau

Horace M. Wood

Dr. Ronald E. Carrier

President

Striving for Excellence

With over twenty years of service, Dr. Ronald Carrier, also known as "Uncle Ron," has experienced many changes at James Madison. During his service to JMU, he has helped a great deal to move the university ahead of other colleges in the country.

Carrier's latest attempt to further the quality of the University dealt with restructuring. One of the major changes was the combination of the College of Fine Arts and Communication. The credit hour requirements were also reduced to 120 credits, making it easier for students to graduate on time.

In addition to restructuring, construction continued on campus. With the completion of Taylor Hall, the university was concerned with more expansion. The new third floor of Carrier Library went under construction while the completion of Wampler Hall became final.

Carrier maintained open relationships with students as well as faculty through an open forum in which students were able to ask questions directly to the president. It was also not uncommon to spot Dr. Carrier himself among students and staff around campus. His approachable manner helped improve relations with students and staff.

Striving for excellence was a goal held by all at James Madison and the faculty, staff, and student body of the university, with the leadership of Carrier, left JMU ranking at the top nationally.

Carrier's dedication and leadership brought James Madison a step above the rest and brought many positive aspects to this fine educational institution.

-Hani Hong

Administration

Dr. Bethany Oberst
Vice President of Academic Affairs

Dr. Barbara Castello
Vice President of University Advancement

Dr. Linwood Rose
Vice President of Administration and Finance

Dr. Robert Scott
Vice President of Student Affairs

Mr. Jeff Nobel
Executive Assistant to the President

Administration

Dr. Jack Armistead
Dean of the College of Letters and Sciences

Dr. A. Jerry Benson
Dean of the College of Education and Psychology

Dr. Robert E. Holmes
Dean of the College of Business

Dr. Julius B. Roberson
Dean of the College of Health and Human Services

Dr. Richard F. Whitman
Dean of the College of Fine Arts and Communication

Dr. Lyle C. Wilcox
Provost of the College of Integrated Sciences and Technolog

Administration

Magin

Magin

Magin

ANYBODY HOME? Dr. Wilcox, Provost of CISAT, makes a telephone call. Returning and making telephone calls was unavoidable for all administrators.

PLAYIN' THE KEYS. Dr. Benson uses the computer to keep things organized. Many administrators and faculty used the mainframe as well to keep up with the latest news.

DID YOU KNOW... Dr. Whitman and Mr. Jerry Weaver, Executive Assistant to the Dean, exchange information with one another. Administrators often relied on one another for information and ideas.

Administration

Magin

Magin

PAPERWORK. The amount of paper work never ends for Dr. Scott afternoon. Administrators were always sifting through an endless amount of paperwork.

WHAT'S THAT DATE? Dr. Rose flips through his organizer looking for his next meeting time. It was impossible for most to keep organized without a fil-o-fax around.

A BIG HELP. Dr. Oberst speaks with her secretary for a moment. Secretaries should be credited for keeping things smooth at James Madison.

Magin

Faculty Art Exhibit

Hong

CLOSE UP. A creation by Ken Beer, Eastern Approaches made out of metal and glass. Teachers were given the opportunity to display their work proudly in the exhibit.

LETTING LOOSE. Jay D. Kain's Unleashed leaves us to ponder over its meaning. Seeing the exhibit allowed students the chance to see a professor's work before taking their class.

Hong

Hong

QU'EST-CE QUE C'EST? This unique work is the creation of Corinne McMullan, a professor here at James Madison, titled Sieve and consists of mixed media.

Our personal gallery

Once a year, the Sawhill Gallery in Duke Hall showcased members of the art department staff who were able to exhibit their work for the student body and JMU faculty. The exhibit lasted for one month. "We're a fairly large department. There are over twenty full time members, with a great deal of variation in our department," said Stuart Downs, who oversaw the exhibit. "There are art historians, art educators, studio artists, graphic designers, and interior designers, and they all produce work." The faculty exhibit featured a variety of work, including painting, photography, computer animation, and fiber and paper making.

The faculty art show allowed members of the Art Department to display their works of scholarly achievement. While a history professor might write a book or publish a paper, visual artists must create artwork in order to achieve the same amount of respect and academic status as their peers.

Artwork was not all that was on display during the exhibit. Published works from art historians and art educators were also shown outside the gallery. In this way, the entire department was represented in the exhibit.

"It's nice to get a chance to exhibit as an artist and it's a good chance to see what the faculty does professionally," said art instructor Jack McCoslin. "It's also a good chance to see which faculty you might want to work with." The Faculty Art exhibit was, as always, a success.

-Jon Wadsworth

SLICE OF LIFE. Junior Christine Chang enjoys her time at the Intersarsity Watermelon Bash on Godwin Field. All students were welcomed at the event as IV kicked off the fall semester.

For most people, the college years are an active experience, and this was no exception at JMU. Organizations promoted us to get to know the University and ourselves better as we showed our

Dedication & Initiative

The variety of organizations offered to students at JMU was as wide ranging and diverse as the student body itself. There were over 160 clubs that students had the option of joining, ranging anywhere from the Madison Marketing Association to water polo to EARTH.

Many students chose to get involved early, joining organizations during their freshman year. Student Activities Night was a great opportunity for students to join organizations similar to those they belonged to in high school. Others preferred organizations unique to the college, such as WXJM or professional groups such as the International Association of Business Communicators.

SPORTSMANSHIP. Members of the men's lacrosse team shake hands with their opponents after a competitive game. Men's lacrosse was one of many athletic clubs that JMU students had the option of joining.

As a member of a club, a student was able to act as an individual by contributing ideas, as well as a team player by representing a united front for a cause. The advantages of being active in a club were: gained leadership qualities, rooted friendships and established responsibilities. Many students found that clubs offered them a chance to find their own personal niche at JMU, and belonging to clubs increased their feeling of belonging to the JMU community.

Overall, through students' involvement in clubs, an atmosphere of commitment, energy and determination was channeled into student life at JMU.

Editor: Katherine Hawk

Tau Beta Sigma

Front Row Jodi Stewart, Heather Meeuwissenn (Historian), Bradi Littrel, Christina Gibson (Membership Coordinator). Second Row: Laura Brag, Danielle Roeber (Corresponding Secretary), Katie Goodman (Service Coordinator), Beth Drury, Jennifer LeLacheur (President). Third Row: Jill Kautz (Executive VP), Jennifer Clark (Treasurer), Kelli Burr, Jeanette LaVere, Christie Fariss, Yolanda Gray (Recording Secretary), Robin Ergenzinger, Miranda Hopkins, Kwan Lou.

•“We’re not just Friends, We’re a Family”

•Honorary Band Sorority

•31 members

•Eta Rho Chapter

•Founded in 1946.

•Services: volunteer at Mercy House and Adopt-a-Highway.

•In a word... Leadership

Alpha Kappa Psi

•“Excellence in Action”

•Professional Business Fraternity

•42 members

•Nu Psi Chapter

•Founded in 1991

•Services: Adopt-A-Highway, Red Cross Blood Drives, and food donations to the homeless.

•In a word... Excellence

Front Row Stacy Presnick, Doug Preston (VP Efficiency), Tina Uperti, Tonya Kerns, Cheryl Windham (Executive Secretary), Gabe Trasatti, Sarah Pratt Second Row Kimberly Keffer, Tricia Thomasson, Patrick McQuillan, Tanya Einarson, Christina Harris, Kerry Harding (Historian), Tina Wade (Warden), Carla Aikens (Treasurer), Mary Catherine Maxor, Amy Scruggs, Barry Eimer (Corporate Secretary), Todd Jones. Third Row. Steven Bluhn, Brian Laubscher, Tyler Swift (VP Membership), David Doyle (Warden), Chris Susil, Scott Cross, Jeff Auton, Lynn Pruden, Mark Aukamp (VP Alumni & Chapter Relations), John Avery.

BACK TO BACK! The Alpha Kappa Psi ladies' softball team is the current 2-time Intramural Champions. Intramurals offered a perfect way for organizations to show their spirit.

LOOKIN' GOOD. These girls are dressed up and ready to go. Tau Beta Sigma held social functions outside of their volunteer work.

MARCH ON. These Tau Beta Sigma sisters display their fancy marching band uniforms. The Marching Royal Dukes have earned recognition throughout Virginia for their tremendous performances.

SAY WHAT? Doug Preton and Brian Boyd have a little Alpha Kappa Psi heart to heart. Members of organizations needed to keep one another updated on their upcoming events.

THE CREW. Members of Tau Beta Sigma volunteer to clean up nearby roads. Their organization, along with other service clubs, helped clean up roads through Adopt-A-Highway.

SHOWIN' A LITTLE LEG. Sigma Alpha Iota's Allison Shield, Beth Boirin, Carrie O'Connor, Jessica Unruh, and Dawn Rhinehart celebrate their initiation into Sigma Alpha Iota. Being initiated was an unforgettable and honorable experience.

CARVING TIME. Members of Eta Sigma Gamma smile after finishing their handcrafted pumpkin creations. The holidays were a great reason to get together with other members to have some fun.

Eta Sigma Gamma

- Professional Honorary Society in Health Sciences

- 100 members

- Sigma Chapter

- Founded in 1967

- Services: volunteer for Camelot Nursing Home and sponsor families for Thanksgiving.

- In a word... Growing

Officers: Shelly McMinn (Secretary), Betsy Cassidy (Pledge Coordinator), Michelle Howard (Community Service Chair), Angie Johnson (President), Kim Weitzenhofer (Vice President), Nancy Gross (Historian). Not Pictured: Kristin Miller (Pledge Guide), Becky Freed (Treasurer).

AT THE PLAYGROUND. Tracie Viers, Sandi Pafford and Jennifer Gregorio enjoy the playground equipment. Sigma Alpha Iota had a picnic at Purcell Park after their pledge initiation.

Kappa Kapppa Psi

Front Row Tiffany Roose, Ellen Zerkel, Dawn Bilello. Second Row Todd Catleff, Jill Armstrong, Jeannie Palmer (Corresponding Secretary), Greg Huff, Rebecca Sweger, Katie Wethman, Eliabeth Skipper. Third Row Karen Harris, Gail Williams, Byron Roberts (Recording Secretary), Kay Swennes, Jennifer Falls, Nick Lioppis, Amy Mehnert (Executive Vice President). Fourth Row Heather Glauner (Treasurer), Benjamin Prunty, Curtis Pasfield, Jeremy Brown (President), Sean Gray, Clint Pazdera, Shawn Miller, Mark Baggett (Historian).

•“For the Betterment of Bands”

•Honorary Service Fraternity for Band

•35 members

•Eta Omicron Chapter

•Founded in 1980

•Services: Adopt-A-Highway, Mercy House.

•In a word... Unique

HOWIN' DOWN. Kappa Kapppa Psi members grab some subs and head outdoors for a break. Purcell Park as a great get-away.

Sigma Alpha Iota

Front Row: Lillian Gregono (VP Membership), Cheryl LaComb, Tracie Viers, Grace Manuel, Mandy Harris. Second Row: Nancy Labuguen (Treasurer), Mindy Gryder (Publicity Chair), Jessica Unruh, Jennifer Harlow (Ritual Chair), Dawn Rhinehart, Kristyn Snyder (Co-Editor), Jennifer Hueston, Janie Vance, Jenna Crawford (Co-Editor). Third Row: Karen Snively, Kerry Wynn, Beth Bowin, Sandi Pafford (VP Ritual), Emily Black, Christy Grubbs, Wendy Gilbert (Membership Chair), Sheri Ellis (President), Amy Smith (Service Chair), Alexis Iwanik (Sergeant at Arms), Amy Riley

•“Vita Brevis Ars Longa”

•Women’s Music Fraternity

•35 members

•Gamma Iota Chapter

•Founded in 1958

•Services: concert ushers, fund music scholarships, Adopt-A-Grandparent.

•In a word... Spirit

Phi Chi Theta

Front Row: Lori Gollayan, Ridgely Reams (Recording Secretary), Caroline DeSantis, Carey Harlon, Amy Gibson, Sandy Thompson, Laurie-Ann French, Nicole Obitz, Lena Kim, Jenny Sun. Second Row: Heather Shenk (VP Programming), Traci Mounts, Aimee Gardner, Leslie Hawksworth, William Beasley, Jennifer Miller, Lynne Campbell, Chisa Hino, Lee Anne Hunt (VP Membership), Brian Senatore, Alisa Cramer. Third Row: Michael Sarner (President), Krsti Draughn, Deanna Olech (Corresponding Secretary), Jenny Marczynski, Matt Newquist, Ed DuRocher, Ketan Parekh, Bob Pikarsky, John Sobieray, Andrew Klapmust, Amy Everitt (VP Membership), Elizabeth Roach, E.J. D'Ettoire.

•“May the candle of knowledge guide our ship to achievement”

•Professional Business Fraternity

•45 members

•Delta Sigma Chapter

•Founded in 1924

•Services: Salvation Army, Special Olympics, and United Way.

•In a word... Brotherhood

Phi Beta Lambda

•“Investing Now in Your Future”

•Business Club

•15 members

•Gamma Lambda Chapter

•Founded in 1953

•Services: fundraising for Project Ask, and Study of Childhood Cancer.

•In a word... Leadership

Front Row: Carne Setzer (Secretary), Altrina Fleming (Treasurer). Second Row: Theresa Prebish (Reporter), Kristin Johnson, Katherine Kramer (President). Third Row: Jerry McCormick (Vice President), Shelly Hanger, Philip Zirk, George Long, Maria Christopher.

LOVIN' LUIGIS. Terr Dimino, Carrie Setzer, and Jerry McCormick enjoy dinner at Luigis. Along with such social events, members of Phi Beta Lambda attended business events and community service projects.

WINNING WAYS. These Phi Chi Theta brothers celebrate after an intramural game. Intramurals allowed fraternities to engage in friendly competition.

CATCHING UP. Brothers of Phi Chi Theta catch up with alumni while tailgating on Hillside field for Homecoming. An advantage of membership in a business fraternity was the ability to network with alumni for job possibilities.

FORMAL ATTIRE. Members of Phi Beta Lambda gather together at a conference. Phi Beta Lambda was the college division of the Future Business Leaders of America club.

A HAPPY GROUP. These PSE brothers enjoy hanging out at a formal. Although PSE was a business fraternity, the social activities brought the brothers closer together.

CELEBRATE! New PSE brother Kerry Porter smiles happily with her big brother Neda Irrannegad. This year the PSE initiation was combined with a semiformal dance.

BROTHERLY LOVE. PSE brothers Eric Longo and Kirsta Rauch spend time together at a party. Eric was Kirsta's "Big Brother," and the two often spent time together.

EXPERIENCE. Psi Chi members take a break from their work at Western State Hospital. Through the group, members earned experience and helped out the community.

TAKING OATH. Pledges of Psi Chi become members during initiation. The formal initiation was an important step within the organization.

Pi Sigma Epsilon

Front Row Kenwal Bajwa, Lori Brewer, Tamara Kelsey, Katie Lilly, Jody Craybas, Suzanne Smith (PM Coordinator), Karen Gelfond, Erica Lewis, Rebekah Lynard, Rachel Phillips, Kerry Porter, Neda Irannejad, Sharon Moorefield, Denise Zulandi, Meredith Linberger, Jody Melvin. Second Row Sarah Londeree, Kimberly Kreitz, Susan Toewe, Matthew Maccaroni, Brian Correia (VP Administration), Karen Gunck (CEI), Dawn Gresham, Mark Ashe, Chrissie Smith (Historian), Mera Kraus, Kara Garter, Lani Tillar, Frank Sparacino, Billy Fetting, Kevin Woo, Jeremy Schwarz, Chad Smith. Third Row Joan Loverro, Travis Myers, Twanda Robinson, J.P. Connelly, Brent Peterson, Emily Sheehan, Katie Indelicato. Fourth Row John Zimmerman, Valerie Leighton, Robert Lawrence, Franklin Dam, Melissa Skasko, Heather Gustin, Tim Clemment, Geoffrey Alexander (President), Steve Taylor, Elizabeth Cartwright, Matt Ekstrom (VP Marketing), Eric Longo (VP Personnel), Jennifer Sternberg, Anne Marie DeRose (Secretary), Chense Jarvis, Robert Delmarco.

- Business Fraternity specializing in the marketing and sales.

- 70 members

- Delta Rho Chapter

- Founded in 1952

- Services: Adopt-A-Highway, soup kitchens, promoted midnight madness basketball game .

- In a word... Variety

Psi Chi

Front Row Yoon Ko, Linh Chau, Jessica Romano, Kristi Linn, Marchelle Yoch. Second Row Kimberly Baker, Sheri Jones (Historian), Kate Oullette, Leigh Sylvester, Jennifer Davis, Elizabeth Robinson (Treasurer), Kristin Zempolich (Membership Board Chair), Jennifer Hadcock (Secretary), Cindi Wallack, Kristi Graves, Katie Stover. Third Row Ivan Croft, Adam Crowl (Vice President), Kelly Hughes (President), Jennifer Jones, Laune Ann Dick, Jennifer Phillips, Lonne Dolby, Kristi Hale, Anne Galioto, Heather Jacobs, Sam Zizzi.

- "Encourage, Stimulate and Maintain Excellence of Scholarship of the Individual"

- Psychology National Honor Society

- 55 members

- Founded in 1929

- Services: volunteered at Western State and Adopt-A-Highway

- In a Word... Motivated

Alpha Phi Omega

Front Row: Holly Watts, Sean Niehoff, Marilyn Ramos, Michael Hughes. Second Row: Laura Solomon, Alicia Mellman, Shell Burch, Wendy Charkow, Suzann Regatz, Maggie Mayall, Laura Quinn, Dennis Pet, Melanie Aebli, Kristen Quattropani, Anne Stevanton, Lisa Barsnica, Kim Balsbaugh, Becca Woolley, Tara Johnson, Stacy Flechner, Amy Bond, Albert Espanol. Third Row: Dabra Fletcher, Pawan Chadha, Jennifer Dunson, Laura Riley, Liz McCormack, Kara Hite, Anna Lisa Ramos, Norm Gonzales, Vicki Johnson, Karen Roots, Dana Reynolds, Kerry Lamberson, James Howard, Patricia Morns, Lisa Bennett, Avery Brown, Leesa Sawyer, Amy Herbert, Sharon Sykes, Sharon Brown. Fourth Row: Shen Yoho, Sean Secrest, Renee Sloan, Emily Sheahan, Cindy Schmitt, Heidi Frank, Jennifer Gilbert, Christina Sharken, Janice Quick, Brian Quick, Mike Dixon, Kara Ker, Greg Jones, Lon Foutz, Carol Hite, Kimberly Yednock, Truman Orton, Matt Moore, Sarah Mooney, Deana Haisrington, Kristen Swartout, Fiona Shendan, Kathy Hughes, Pam Chaveas. Fifth Row: Kevin Womack, Ed Jeffcoat, Dana Gooch, Isreal Pinto, Danielle Matthews, Jason Rhudy, Stacey Friedl, Christopher Kelley, Kurt Heisler, Ryan Netzer, Bryan Peterson, Bobby Goller, Michael Howard, Kevin McGrath, Zaddock Cropper, Mike Ogilvie, Richard Trickle, Chip Ferguson, Monica McFerm, Stacey Reilly, Dan Peprin, Rachel Wilkinson, Valerie Lughton, Jennifer Brown, Matthew Smith, Rayne Dennis

"Leadership, Friendship, Service"

Service Fraternity

120 members

Chi Gamma Chapter

Founded in 1989

Services: volunteer work for the Association of Retarded Citizens, Salvation Army, United Way, Wildlife Center of Virginia, and Make-a-Wish Foundation.

In a word... Service

"If we're not having fun, we're doing something wrong"

Professional Business Fraternity

57 members

Iota Kappa Chapter

Founded in 1907

Services: Adopt-A-Highway, volunteer at Mercy House & Camelot Nursing Home.

In a word... Eternal

Delta Sigma Pi

Front Row: Caroline Goldberg, Andrea Robinson, Traci Showalter, Shaily Patel. Second Row: Shannon Mitchell (Historian), Sarah Cauthorn, Melissa Dupuis, Amy Edgett, Diane Beury (VP Chapter Operations), Gwen Weaver, Sharon Mudafort, Mary Estrella, Natalie Guenther. Third Row: Paul Famularo, Rob Konosky, Diana Miller, Marie Surrette, Sam Llyod (Senior VP), David Bergman, Sarah Letts, Monica Strivieri, Ashley Rush. Fourth Row: Anthony Simoes (President), Nancy Blackwell, Alison Scott, Drew Pascarella, Justin Miller (VP Pledge Educations), James Taylor, Timothy Salamy, Robert Stiles (VP Professional Activities), Michael Carr, Ryan Shaw, Michael Therrien (Treasurer), Scott Mursten.

INITIATION. Delta Sigma Pi member Mary Eiji displays the paddle she received while pledging. Pledges were given many gifts throughout the initiation period.

PULLING TOGETHER. Members of Alpha Sigma Phi work on the Adopt-A-Highway program. This program was popular among JMU organizations.

GETTING MESSY. Delta Sigma Phi members take a break from cleaning. Getting a little dirty came with the job of volunteering sometimes.

ITS IN THE LETTERS. These two Alpha Phi Omega members show pride in their school and their organization. These sweatshirts were a popular item among students.

CUTTING LOOSE. The members of Alpha Phi Omega come together for a social encounter. Service was their purpose, but new friendships led to events outside of volunteering.

HELPING OUT. Alpha Phi Omega's Emily Peake volunteers to help some handicapped citizens at a fitness center. APO also volunteered for United Way and Salvation Army.

LOUNGING AROUND. These Alpha Chi Sigmas take time out from their educational interest to relax. The fraternity helped these students further their knowledge in chemistry.

DUKE PRIDE. Student Ambassadors Nicole Chalfiz and Madreen Carneen display painted dog bones sold during Homecoming weekend. Selling the dog bones was a means of fundraising.

EIGHT IS ENOUGH. Members of Student Ambassadors pause for a picture. These eight girls were a few of the hundred plus members.

TRICK OR TREAT. Alpha Chi Sigma members dress to impress Halloween night. The fraternity had a get together at a member's place.

Student Ambassadors

Front Row Yolanda Stewart, Courtney Sherckhise, Amy Fratkin, Candice Willmas, Kristi Graves, Amanda Denis, Carmen Conrey, Christie Frey, Maureen Cunneen, Katie Stover, Shelly McMinn, Stephanie Tragakis, Cheryl Jackson (VP Advancement). Second Row Ouoc Le, Shauna Miller, Elizabeth Westley, Alison Hillow, Kelley O'Dell, Kevin Heise (Committee Coordinator), Amanda Nu, Sean McCray, Uman Baskshi, Christy Huber, Lindsay Trout, Kimberly Baker, Jennifer Reed (Tour Coordinator), Tamara Goorevitz (Secretary), Michael Sarnier. Third Row: Adam Klein, Jen Anthony, Dan Carleton, Robert Delmarco, Michael Siewers, Melisa Sith (VP Admissions), Sepp Scanlin, Stacy Horton, Michael Pickels, Jason Budd, Michael Beebe (President), Elizabeth Gorman, Sam Zizzi (Treasurer), Susan Brinkworth, Maggy Cronin, Christina Harris.

•"Students Serving Students"

•100+ members

•Service: Campus tours, Operation Santa Claus, Alumni Receptions, Host Special Visitation Days.

•In a word...fun

Alpha Chi Sigma

Front Row Michael Leopold (President), Heidi Arthur, Melissa Crouch, Heather Heithaway, Linda Le. Second Row Jennifer Condon (Master of Ceremonies), Lisa Christianson, Andrew Dattelbaum (Reporter), David, Belote, Jon Dattelbaum, Audra Wright.

•Professional Chemistry Fraternity

•20 members

•Gamma Kappa Chapter

•Services: fund an Alpha Chi Sigma Scholarship.

•In a word... Molecule

VOLUNTEERS. Cheryl Jackson and Adam Klein volunteer during Homecoming weekend. Student Ambassadors help JMU with several special events.

Honor Council

Front Row: Erin Sanders (Secretary), Tori Reinhold (Vice President), Becca Fisher, Jason Gizzarelli, Shonda Elder. Second Row: Brent Saunders, Randi Gische (Investigator), Russell Privitera, Tyler Eagle, Sarah Letts, Creedence Holzmacher, Douglas Teas, Anna Gallant, Jessica Hubley. Third Row: Susan Harnett, Todd Mercer (Head Representative), Pam Rich (Investigator), Greg Coldren (Investigator), Susan Hodnett, Scott Noon (President), Christopher Sikes, Alex Eikus (Investigator), Jason Rhody, France Makris (Public Relations).

- “On My Honor”
- Student organization
- 53 members
- Founded in 1908
- The Honor Council ensures the academic integrity of JMU.
- In a word... Integrity

Criminal Justice

•Also known as Lambda Alpha Epsilon (LAE).

•Professional Academic Fraternity

•40 members

•Lambda Mu Upsilon Chapter

•Services: tutor prisoners and participate in walk-a-thons.

•In a word... Justice

Front Row: Maryann Divina, Kristen Shumaker, Renee Toy, Samantha Emore, Elizabeth Roberts, Stephanie Concodora. Second Row: Katrina Dingles, Tonia Churchwell, Karen Aspy, Christy Coons (President), Christian Parrish, John Loveland, Amy Sexton, Michele Dade, Susan Greer. Third Row: Steven Railey, James Sirbaugh, Jarad Phelps, David Deane (Secretary), Matt Saunders (Treasurer), Mike Neff, Scott Geddes, Daniel Kirkby, Eric Rilee, Brent Showalter (Vice President).

PLAYING DEAD. Dan Kirby fakes unconsciousness while Michael Dade goes through his wallet for identification. The Criminal Justice Assoc. learned through reenactments of actual events.

WINNING COLORS! These members of the Criminal Justice Association display their many awards from the 1993 Regional Conference. The organization also received an outstanding student leader nomination.

LISTEN UP. The executive officers of the CJA, Brent Showalter, David Deane and Matt Sanders, pay attention as president Christy Coons delivers a speech. The members learned new information from each other.

TIME TO RELAX. These members of the Honor Council take some time off. The Honor Council kept busy with its frequent meetings.

AED

Front Row Tanya Woltemath, Eunice Kim, Anne McCarthy (Programmer), Jennifer Caruso, Jackie Kauffman, Brandy Daugherty, Irma Isberto, Kenneth Wong, Yoon Ko, Kathenna Litschke, Julie Holman, Khursha Sheikh, Elizabeth Robinson (Treasurer), Usha Koduro, Erin Sanders. Second Row Mark Lundblad, Crystal Hill, John Hong, Wendy Bass, Traci Dunning, Jessica Hubley, Allison Budris, Rhonda Kern, Kim Ronald (Historian), Rajju Patel, Carrier Lahnstein, Allison Devine, Shanna Edtall, Hearl Faulkner, Ngoc Thu Nguyen, Laura Quinn, Laura Pine, Victor Aramayo. Third Row Johnathan Page (Reporter), Jaffery Cohn, Kimberly Copeland, Steve Cresawn, Tara Wiedeman, Mike Keens, Adam Crowl (Secretary), Greg Nishanian, Ian Steines, Dan Phillips, Mike Peters, Scott Hickey, Maribeth Janka, Amanda New, Eric Knobloch, Marcus Shakar (President), Dr. Sellers (Faculty Advisor).

COMMON INTERESTS. Vicki Sims, Jill Turner, Nancy Hurwitz and Cindy Brennan enjoy the Pre Physical Therapy Society's end of the year picnic. Belonging to the group allowed students to get to know others with similar goals.

- "Service through Healing, and Healing through Service"

- Pre-medical Honor Society

- 150 members

- Epsilon Chapter

- Founded in 1989

- Services: Soup Kitchens, Salvation Army, and Camelot Nursing Home.

- In a word... Excellence

- Speech pathology and audiology club.

- 75 members

- Services: Toys for Tots, blood drives, and benefits for the Association for Retarded Citizens.

- Provides speech pathology and audiology majors with educational and social experiences.

- In a word... Education

NSSLHA

Front Row Janica Debraggio, Kimberly Stratton, Kelly Kundrs, Renee Mitchell (Treasurer), Carner Dunn. Second Row Lisa Malroy (Vice President), Tara Layman, Tammy Hada (Co-Secretary), Desirea Moore, Brenda Corley (Co-Secretary), Kristen Folks (Historian), Judy Bullard. Third Row Ginger Widmyer, Stacie Jude, Erin Horne, Kia Harvey, Stacey Wengert, Andi Meredith (President), Chondra Malson, Cori Gillis.

EXPERT ADVICE. After a meeting, students seek information about volunteer hours in physical therapy from adviser Dr. Beverly Silver. Members volunteered their hours in various spots throughout the Harrisonburg area.

Pre Physical Therapy Club

Officers: Kristine Johnsson (President), Cindy Brennan (Nancy Gross), Kerstin Miller (Treasurer), Lisa Cox (Publicity), Nancy Hurwitz (Historian), and Dr. Beverly Silver (Advisor).

- Special interest club
- 100+ members
- Founded in 1992
- Invites physical therapists (from the community) in the areas of geriatrics, pediatrics, acute care and special medicine.
- In a word.. Informative

FORMAL ANNOUNCEMENTS. Dan Cassidy and Jen Shakesby wait expectantly to be initiated as national AED members. Belonging to the organization helped one gain confidence and form valuable professional contacts.

INVOLVED. NSSLHA member Desirea Moore belongs not only to NSSLHA, but she is a sister of Sigma Gamma Rho as well. Students were oftentime innvolved in more than one organization.

CHIT-CHAT. These Psych club members hang out and talk after an afternoon meeting. Sharing common interests gave students in organizations something in common.

TAKING OVER. AERho members Julie Monrad and Julie Bragg hang out in the Q101 deejay booth. The annual radio takeover on Valentines day was one of the organizations biggest projects.

Psychology Club

- An academic and interest club
- 70 members
- Founded in 1976
- Services: volunteer at Western State, Freshman Orientation Reception for psychology majors, and psychology tutoring.
- In a word... Ambitious

Front Row: Jennifer Franca, Deb Flickstein (Treasurer), Cindi Wallack (Committee Coordinator), Hani L.D.T. Hong Second Row: Will Gallik (Student Activities Coordinator), Laura Heidt, Jennifer Hyde, Glenn Turner, Kristin Zempolich, Leigh Sylvester (Secretary) Third Row: Jason Mott, Michael, Hunt, Rick Armstrong, Ivan Croft (President), Brad Wiled, Dennis Echterling (Advisor).

DIZZY? While spinning around a pole at a party, vice president of the bowling club Jarad Phelps wonders if his club will ever actually go bowling. Since the group's main focus was on having fun, both bowling and parties were on the agenda.

Alpha Epsilon Rho

Front Row Tie Mason, Angie Gulino, Tracy Zachvoskia. Second Row Kathy Hughes, Julie Bragg (VP Fundraising), Damia Dunn (VP Public Affairs), Daniel Guernsey, Julie Monrad (President), Kimberly Yager, Stephanie Day (Secretary). Third Row Sean Harrington, Laura Nesbitt, Paul Stark, Kevin Kasten (Parliamentarian), Mike Baldwin (Treasurer), Kara McGuirk, Brent Saunders, Blake Peddicord.

- Broadcasting Honor Society.

- 30 members

- Founded in 1943

- Services: fundraising to benefit Tourette Syndrome.

- NBS/AERho does a 12 hour take-over of Q101 during the spring semester.

- In a word... Broadcasting

- "We set 'em up and pound 'em down"

- Recreational club

- 66 members

- Services: fundraising for Cystic Fibrosis and Flood Relief.

- Known to be a diverse group sharing a common interest while having fun.

- In a word... Growing

Bowling Club

Front Row Amanda Davidson, Vicky Ellis, Doug Sweeny (Treasurer), Daryl Piget (Secretary), Kristen Baumann (President), Jarap Phelps (Vice President), Kelly Stewart, Missy Mellberger. Second Row Amy Keller, Mandi Jones, Jennifer Franka, Melanie Dickerson, Susan Morlino, Vicki Johnson, Shera Beadner, Jen Sinclair, Alison Commander, Katrina Owens, Amy Jackson. Third Row Evan Cantrell, Rick Jones, Kevin Harris, John Loveland, Christian Ramsey, Adriana Rojas, Jennifer Tatum, Todd Peikin, Cesar deGuzman. Fourth Row Erick Wenk, Janet Carpenter, Steven Hoffman, Bryan Propst, Michael Pison, Chad Reuille, Chris Diering, Brian Tray, Mike Baker, Aaron Alonge, Don Halcombe, Deborah Funk, Mike Marshall.

HUNGRY? Members of the Com-muter Student Council help out by serving popcorn during the opening celebration for Taylor Hall. The student Council's service extended to commuters and to the campus.

KILLING TIME. These students wait out the time between classes in the commuter student lounge. The CSC worked to insure that commuters had a comfortable place to go while on campus.

GETTING READY. This IHC crew gears up to go to the SAACURH regional conference. The conference was held at the University of Alabama.

WORKIN' HARD. InterHall Council executive officers work on planning the year's events. They took a retreat to Skyline Drive to accomplish their tasks.

InterHall Council

Front Row: Maggie Burkhart (Advisor), Melanie Aebli, James Cales (Secretary), Tiffanie Rosier (President), Molly Conlon (Historian), Stacey Simpkins Second Row: Jennifer Davis (Vice President), David Dutrow, Jennifer Scholten, Janet Carpenter, Andy Moore, John Poerstel, Gerald Lamb (Advisor). Third Row: Stacey Harmon (NCC), Doug Sweeny (Treasurer), Christian Tennant, Tony Fleming, Graham Farbrother, Chris Hoy, Kevin Chamberlin, "T" Robertson, Matthew Beeleman, Alex DerHovhannessian.

- "Living where we Learn"

- Residence Hall Student Government

- 35 representatives

- Founded in 1908

- Services: Leadership development and programming for the residents.

- In a word... Community

CSC

- Student Organization created to help meet the needs of the students who live off campus.

- 9 members

- Founded in 1980

- Services: transfer guides and orientation, Commuter Awareness week, Morning Coffee, Adopt-A-Highway and Tricuit Tuesday.

- In a word... Fun

Front Row: Cheryl Allcock (Program Coordinator), Mary Estrella (President). Second Row: Susan Greer (Transfer Coordinator), Eric Rhodes (Treasurer), Jennifer Ware (Transportation Coordinator). Third Row: Caryn Pierce (Vice President), Gregory Cooper (Housing Coordinator), Leo Barbour (Promotions Coordinator), Patricia Delk (Secretary).

Hillel

SOMETHING'S COOKING. Students enjoy the good food and nice weather at the Hillel September farm party. Hillel also sponsored special events on Jewish holidays.

Front Row: Lisa Denny, Kim Birnbaum (Vice President). Second Row: Alissa Merrill (Secretary), Jared Scher (Treasurer), Ben Finkelstein. Third Row: Larry Newdorf, Steve Hoffman, Laune Grey, Amy Parker, Scott Schreier. Fourth Row: Greg Dombchik, Cindy Schmitt (Historian), Emily Levenson (President), Michael Anthony.

- Jewish Organization that serves the religious, social and educational needs of JMU students.

- 38 members

- Services: Salvation Army Halloween Party, Holocaust Remembrance Day, and lead lay services at a local synagogue.

- In a word.. Friendly

• "Inward Growth, Outward Service"

- Religious student group

- 150 members

- Services: Saturday Adoption, Migrant Ministry, nursing home visits, and summer missions.

- In a word... Fellowship

BSU

Front Row: Lisa Montgomery, Mara Cordle, Dana Holt, Karen Lee, Audra Barlow, Melissa Stone, Melanie Stone, Kimberly Keffer, Susie Wright, Debbie Glen, Suzanne Thomson, Renae Mitchell, Janet Toney, Stacie Ketter. Second Row: Dana Lane, Susan Sharp, Donna Ragsdale, Shelley Spence-McMillian, Kim Mabe, Holly Minson, J.J. Foster, James Johnson, Melissa Norwood, Jason Marino, Tamara Ward, Bridget Deel, Katherine Smithley, Chris Jett, Amy Montgomery. Third Row: Niel Smith, Matt Higgins, Jennifer Burnfield, Mike Maxwell, Hal Huser, Jeff Oliver, Mark Miller, Tom Hodge, Matt Beland, Milton Matter, Anne McMahon, Shay Makela

Contemporary Gospel Singers

•“Minister Christianity through Gospel Singing”

•Establishes cultural awareness of gospel music.

•120+ members

•Founded in 1977

•The first Gospel Choir at JMU, travels with the National Baptist Student Union Retreat.

•In a word...
Uplifting

First Row Dana Easley, Michele Smith, Valerie Batts, Angela Sampson, Wyndi D. Bullock, Tonya C. Daughtry, Andrea Wyche, Angela Alston, Bryan Patterson, Benjamin Frank, Melissa Coleman, Danielle Lomax, Tracie M. Manning, LaTasha Hutchenson, Melanie L. Hayden.
Second Row: Shayla Henry, Tonya Monteiro, Tajuana Freeman, Carla Randolph, Angela Andrews, Albertina Dowe, Keisha Taylor, Kristie Bowie, Roy Firestone, Tellas Minor, Earl Perkins, Shannon Starkey, Sachiko Okada, Tamika Gunn, Sonya Mayo. Third Row: Jeneen Robinson, Raina Bolden, B. Shannon Thorne, Kim Harper, Andrea Brown, A. Nicole Goode, Rikki Thomas, Deitra Dobbins, Keisha Garrett, Rhonda Jones, Patrick Houston, Valerian D Johnson, Kristoffer Barber, Johmaalya Hicks, Aimee Reynolds, Nicole Nell, Crystal Allen, Shanette Kearney, Tahishya Williams. Fourth Row: Cheron Porter, Sherri Haskett, Claryssa Kelly, Toshia Battle, Antoinette Barner, Amy Karwan, Sherlonoa Clarke, Alexis Mosby, Vernae Custis, Alveeta Taylor, Monique Richardson, Quincey Roberts, Aaron Burford, Kaya Keene, Tina Churchwell, Wani Dennis, Marie Gibbon, Katrice Jones, Paula Coleman. Fifth Row: Jerry Cooper, Angela Robinson, Sherri Antoinette Davis, LaShawn Thompson, Lauri Grooms, Calista Moore, Tiffany Mayfield, Missy Schafer, Taneqya Swan, Sia Butler, Tanya Tatum, Benjamin Clay, Gregory cooper, B.J. Brown, Leslie Hicks, LaTonya Stanard, Tamara McIaurin, Joy Bellamy, Marlene Kenney, Teri Braxton, and Chimisa Gordon.

TOGETHERNESS. BSU's Women's Family Group meets at "The Dome" for fun and fellowship. Small groups were created outside of large fellowship groups.

DEDICATED. The Contemporary Gospel Singers practice for an upcoming show. The CGS members had a vigorous practice schedule in order to be adequately prepared for events.

A LITTLE TOSS. Members of Circle K volunteer at a Halloween party for the children of the community. Circle K helped to provide a safe and fun evening for these children.

LEADING THE WAY. Omicron Delta Kappa's Heather Gustin helps a fellow staff member of The Bluestone with his layouts. Heather's leadership was exemplified by her position as Editor-in Chief of The Bluestone.

HAPPY HALLOWEEN. Members of Circle K get creative with their costumes. Crazy costumes were rented from Glen's, as well as created from clothing from the Salvation Army.

CHEERS. Circle K members enjoy an Italian meal and good company. Meetings were sometimes held over dinner.

Omicron Delta Kappa

Front Row Heidi Arthur, Kimberly Baker (Vice President), Allan Grimsley, Michele Labik, Melanie Anderson. Second Row Julie Bragg, Kate Ouellette, Jeffery Cohn, Michele Turpin, Alison Hillow. Third Row Sam Zizzi, Ivan Croft, Chris Whitlow, Matt Roberts, Meredith Adams (President).

- "Excellence through Leadership"

- National Leadership Honor Society

- 40 members

- JMU Circle

- Services: brings in speakers to discuss leadership to the organization.

- In a word... Leadership

- "We Build"

- Co-ed community service organization

- 30 members

- Founded in 1972

- Services: Bowl-A-Thon for the Multiple Sclerosis, a prom for Senior Citizens, Adopt-A-Highway, and a Halloween party for Big Brothers/ Big Sisters.

- In a word... Service

Circle K

Front Row: Megan Weed, Krista Beckwith. Second Row: Dara Ward, Sean Harrington (Treasurer), Elena Durso (Service Chair), Jeffery Cohn (President), Jeffery Gilliatt (Vice President), Jessica McDuff. Third Row: Suzanne Wright, Julie Lamb, Christine Sivigny (Publicity Chair), Jeannine Ruggiano, Heidi Arthur (K-Family Chair), Christie Frey (Secretary).

The Breeze

Front Row: Alane Tempchin, Heather O'Neil (Editor), Alison Boyce (Ass't Sports Editor), Lisa Duffy (Business Manger). Second Row: Jennifer Overman (Ass't News Editor), Donna Ragsdale (Managing Editor), Barbra Awakye (Ass't Style Editor), Lynn Pruden (Ad Design Manager), Matt Warner (Copy Editor), Anne Marriott (Style Editor), Nicole Motley (News Editor). Third Row: Steve Miranda (Sports Editor), Mike Heffner (Photo Editor), Rob Kaiser (Opinion Editor), Johnathan Rhudy, Craig Newman (Photo Manger), Drew VanEsseltyn (News Editor).

- "Truth is Freedom"

- Campus newspaper

- 100 members

- Founded in 1922

- Provides a free newspaper to the campus and community twice a week.

- In a word... Deadline

- "Putting Interesting Things in Your Ears"

- Campus radio station

- 150 members

- Founded in 1985

- Provides the community with an alternative music selection.

- In a word... Phat

WXJM

Front Row: Talita Gray, Amy Wan (DJ Board), Carrie Wood, Chris Lawrence (Music Director), Jason Heiserman. Second Row: Aaron Meyers (Ass't Program Director), Sam Uzwick, Dave Cour (DJ Board), Jeff DeSimoni (Urban Director), Erik Cole, Michael Allison, Sandra Bolling (Urban Director). Third Row: Jon Bohlan (Program Director), Blake Paddicord (Technical Director), Nicole Curry (Traffic Director), Nancy Clausen, Erica Reid (DJ Board), Kara McGurk (Production Manager), James Gaskins, Erik Sellin, Steve Wilcox, Courtney Herman (General Manager).

ON THE BALL. News editor Nicole Motley does research at her desk as she waits for a news story to break. The Breeze editors faced stiff deadlines in producing the biweekly paper.

ALL MIXED UP. Three WXJM D.J.'s celebrate Halloween in the studio. The studio and lobby were often filled with friends and guests of the popular WXJM D.J.'s.

LEADING THE WAY. SGA Executives come together for a group photo. These individuals were elected by each residence hall, and therefore represented everyone.

- Student Government Association

- Functions as a liaison between students and the administration.

- Services: Assisted with restructuring, influenced the reduction of credit hours to 120, funded student organizations.

- Former SGA President, Pat Southall, is the 1994 Miss Virginia

SGA

Josh Pringle (President), Jenny Biondi (Secretary), Kimberly Copeland (Treasurer), Allan Grimsley (Vice President)

WEDNESDAY OR THURSDAY? The west Breeze has been delivered, and is now available to students. The actual Breeze office was located in Anthony Seeger Hall.

PLANNING AHEAD. Sports Editor Joe Olson reviews sports statistics he plans to use. The sports staff combined team stats, team records, and information collected during interviews with coaches and player, to complete their section.

THE BLUESTONE CONNECTION. Editor-in-Chief Heather Gustin negotiates contract specifications over the phone. Good communication was imperative for a successful book to be produced.

The Bluestone

•"Imagine that"

•Campus year-book, provides a permanent record of the JMU school year.

•29 members

•Founded in 1909

•Awarded 1st place honors in '93 from the American Scholastic Press Assoc.

•In a word.. Omnipotent

First Row Hani Hong (Classes Editor), Jason Williams, Lisa Manzo (Asst. Photo Editor), Jen Franca. Second Row Trene Gease (Business Manager), Trang Vo, Kristi Shackelford (Managing Editor), Katherine Hawk (Organizations Editor), Colleen Crowley. Third Row Colleen Magin (Photo Editor), Valene Leighton (Asst. Features Editor), Beth Anne Howie (Features Editor), Gwen Whitney. Fourth Row Joe Guilfoyle, Steve Williams, Heather Gustin (Editor-in-Chief), Joe Olson (Sports Editor), Matt Vlieger (Sportswriter). Not Shown Jennifer Howard (Asst Sports Editor), Roland Massa (Sportswriter), Matt Humke, Sharley Simpson, Carla Korsch, Lea Olshefskie, Sara Ringdahl, Jennifer Williams.

PICTURE TIME. Assistant Sports Editor Jen Howard, selects the best pictures for the baseball spreads. Sports were photographed by Blue-stone photographers.

MONEY TALKS. Organization Editor Kathy Hawk and Business Manager Trene Gease discuss the cost of the organizations section. Certain limits were made as to what could be done in each section.

DECISIONS. Classes Editor Hani Hong and Volunteer Jen Franca contemplate what to use. The size and shape of the pictures were taken into consideration, as well as the content and focus.

CROPPING TIME. Features Editor Beth Anne Howie crops her pictures to fit her layout design. Beth Anne's section was one of the largest and most demanding.

TALKING SHOP. Photo Editor Colleen Magin and her assistant Lisa Manzo go over photo assignments for the week. The Photo Editors coordinated with all section editors in order to get what was needed.

GROOVING. Alpha Kappa Lambda brother Neil Quintan performs during the Anchorsplash competition. AKL was one of nine fraternities with houses on Greek Row.

Greek life at JMU went much farther than parties and social events. The connections developed and values preserved became a permanent piece of students' lives as they formed

Traditions & Connections

When students stepped into Greek life, they entered a world united by common threads. The Greek letters students proudly displayed bonded them to one another as sisters and brothers.

Greek life encompassed tradition with a twist. Although the spirit and themes were born years ago, each new face added new life and personality. Greeks tackled the new responsibilities and services of today to benefit the community and the University. Greeks came together to experience college life and prepare for their future.

Spending time together at sister and brother events brought members of the Greek system closer to each other. There were four way parties that allowed different sororities and fraternities to intermingle, as well as activities exclusive to individual fraternities and sororities

STEP TO IT! This Delta Sigma Theta sister performs during the Homecoming Step Show. Participants prepared for the Step Show for weeks and this year's winners were Delta Sigma Theta sorority and Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity.

Events such as Anchorsplash and the Homecoming Step Show gave the spotlight to each individual fraternity and sorority. Friendly competition allowed the spirit within each group to explode. The Greek community also worked together to clean Newman lake and collect canned goods for the underprivileged.

Being a part of a Greek organization opened doors to new perspectives, self-actualization and belonging. These traits remained with Greek students long after they left JMU.

Editor: Katherine Hawk

Sigma Kappa

Front Row: Nikki Donelson, Amy Matwell, Shannon Rossiter. Second Row: Anne Slonaker, Tina Pickering, Amy Hillow, Stephanie Griffin, Tamara Barnes, Jennifer Shakesby, Michele Davide, Leigh Taylor, Kate Weigle, Telly Albrite, Lauren Mooney, Liz Eaton, Jennifer Anderson, Michelle Deck, Kate Hibbert, Kim Kittrell, Stephanie Collier (Treasurer), Corey Maddox, Mary Mitchell, Vicky Ellis. Third Row: Heidi Kutsch, Jen Woods, Maire Dorsey, Kim Gladis, Sarah Anderson, Heather Jones, Kendall Baltimore, Sandra Chapman, Angela Keaveny (Social), Alison Hillow (Recording Secretary), Tina Fox (Standards), Kathryn Slonaker (Intramurals), Kathleen Shenan, Elizabeth Rose, Steffany Davis (Corresponding Secretary), Eileen Jaffe (Panhellenic), Cynthia Sizemore, Mndy Fisher, Robynne McMillan (President), Ashley Ermer, Nicole Chafitz. Fourth Row: Deborah Denham, Sara Ringdahl (Historian), Melissa Keller, Liesey Scarborough, Kelly Cherry, Joslin Manhann, Crystal Briggs, Christine Berry, Jennifer Baskerville, Ali Lambo (VP Pledge Education), Trisha Smith, Britt Johnson (Chaplain), Kelly Yeagley, Annie Guardacosta, Dara Pouchet, Wendi Jackson, Sarah Parker, Lizzy Christian, Kym Irving, Meredith Adams (Vice President), Raquel Canadas, Sarah Billups.

•“One Heart, One Way”

•130 sisters

•Delta Rho Chapter

•Founded in 1874

•Philanthropies: gerontology, Alzheimers, Maine Sea Coast Mission, and Inherit the Earth.

•Received the National Scholarship and Rush Awards.

•In a word... Friendship

MAGIC MOMENT. Lara Derby, Britt Johnson and Keri Lewis take a moment from their formal to pose for a picture. Sisters who pledged together often remained close friends.

THE GREAT OUTDOORS. Sisters sport Western attire at an outdoor party. Outdoor events provided a refreshing atmosphere and created fond memories.

SONGBIRDS. Alpha Phi sisters perform during the Anchorsplash competition. Events such as this allowed the sisters to show off their many talents.

NIGHT ON THE TOWN. A group of Alpha Phi sisters gather, all decked out for a rush party. Themes for rush were planned months in advance.

•“Union Hand-in-Hand”

•141 sisters

•Theta Iota Chapter

•Founded in 1872

•Services: A-Phiasco fund-raising project for Alpha Phi Foundation.

•Received 3rd place at Greek Sing, 1993.

•In a word...
Individualistic

Alpha Phi

First Row Mary Ginny Slagle, Sandra Moscoso, Jill Tango, Sarah Barry, Elizabeth Wherley, Katherine Morris, Debbie Horowitz, Valerie Daniel, Joy Easley, Sarah Mohelski. Second Row Leigh Wilson, Alexa Socha, Liz Moore, Amy Radigan, Adrienne Towers, Molly Frierman, Amanda-Beth Jones, Patricia Reader, Tina Karubi, Dana Strang, Judy Bullard, Heather O'Neil, Nicolce, Obitz, Carolyn Gagnon, Steffani Beland, Leslie Botschin, Regina Hall. Third Row Susan Dick, Kristi Hinck, Kerry Callahan, Torrey Weiss, Chandra McKay, Jennifer Drummond, Susan Greer, Rhonda Erdman, Cindy Kilman (President), Cathy Parkerson (Administrative Ass't), Kathy Hall (Treasurer), Laura Pell (Rush), Joy Meador (Recording Secretary), Amy Kellison (Vice President), Jennifer Thompson, Denise Carson, Kristen Lockwood, Michele Turpin (Chapter Promotions), Shannon Marilla, Melissa Brehe, Julie Reichelt, Amy Waters (Activities Chair), Amanda Denis, Kirsten Ryan (Panhellenic), Carol Morse, Katie Lynch. Fourth Row Liane Wunder, Lynne Wolf, Kimberly Copeland, Rachel Pohle, Erica Selgmann (Fraternity Educator), Laurie Ann Dick, Amy Jefferies, Kristen Phillips, Kathryn Cole, Stephanie Lane, Ginnie Henry, Christine Caray, Hillary Rech, Kimberly Krist, Julie Kropp, Kris Willey, Melissa Mellen, Arnee Lockman, Ginger Fonzi, Carly Moritz, Jennifer Caplan, Michelle Keene, Jennifer Butler, Michelle McCabe, Jennifer Brown, Lauren Brehe.

WILD THANG! Jeff Bielik jams to Kiss at Anchor Splash. The fraternities usually went all out, as was evident by Bielik's costume.

WHAT A STEAL. Jeremy Rhett borrows a hat from a friend at Foxfield. Traditionally each fraternity shared a bus with a JMU sorority.

LOVIN' LIFE! The Pikes make a good showing at the AST formal. The formal was held in Virginia Beach.

Pi Kappa Alpha

First Row Dave Ullman, Bradley Gibbons, Michael Wiles, Ted Curran, Ryan Wexler, Aaron Bales, Scott Hudgins, Chris Smedley, Ron Tidd, Rich Mehlberg, Kyle Bartol, Rob Hinojosa, Matt Sulanke. Second Row Peter Macia, Bill Foote (Brotherhood), Chad Fulman, Sean Dunn, Eric Sherman (Treasurer), Rob Blewitt, Kevin Lombard (Risk Manager), Jay Akridge, Robbie Torrijos, Louis Paglia, Matt Sexton, Danny Gaines, Mike Skiados (Community Service), Chris White. Third Row Ed Messick, Edward Wyatt (President), Cary Loser, Abdi Karbassi, Jason Sterling (Rush Chair), Michael Dolan, Jon Flannery, Joshua Black (Public Relations), Enck Wenk, Mike Georgeadis, Peter Cassed, Tripp Burton, Neil Gordadia, Charif Soubra, Bill Hutnik, Brian Divins (Secretary). Fourth Row Eric Rosenberg, J.J. Hanham, Jonathan Rhuoy (Alumni), Kevin Deringer, Jeff Bielik (Membership Development), Tim Bitten, J. David August, J. Chris Bowman, Nate Swetland, Matt Foster (Historian), Hunter Schmidt, Brendan Sheehan, Eric Andros, Brett Beres, Sean Huyett, Jeremy Rhett (Environmental Concerns Chair), Chns Shifflett, Brandon Storms (Ritual Chair).

•“Scholars, Leaders, Athletes, Gentlemen”

•85 brothers

•Iota Sigma Chapter

•Founded at JMU in 1991

•Services: Adopt-A-Highway, clothing drive, and benefits for United Way.

•In a word... Fun

Alpha Sigma Tau

•“Active, Self-reliant, Trustworthy”

•143 sisters

•Psi Chapter

•Founded in 1899

•Services: Adopt-A-Highway, Jail-A-Thon, and Latch-Key Kids.

•Received the Outstanding Philanthropy, Pledge, Rush Award.

•In a word...
Diversity

Front Row: Sybil Sheffield, Amy Conroy, Maureen Chapman, Tara Lane, Tracy Gianton, Liz Greenburg (Vice President), Sharon Freeland, Amy Loud, Laura Weber, Emily Dean. Second Row: Suzanne Reich, Cammie Kersey, Julie Boyce, Nina Muxacchio, Ashley Nichols, Chrissy Gray, Lisa Bushey, Courtney Cupp (Rush Chair), Dianne Tuckmantel, Alicia Hamp, Jennifer Erskine, Stacie Moukas, Mimi Jordan, Christine Shelly (Philanthropy), Erin Cannelli (Panhellenic), Daren Schubert, Sarah Pressman, Courtney Kellogg, Brooke Rohde (President). Third Row: Amy Thornburg, Debbie Schebe, Brooke Bailey, Amy Sabry, Diane Richmond, Tina Carroll, Sarah Scripture, Amanda Lowthian (Recording Secretary), Chrissy Harbrook, Carrier bender, Kim Phoebus, Kim Frank, Elizabeth Burns, Susan Kerns, Alexis Scott, Melissa Fye, Amy Burns, Ayla Master, Nudrat Salik, Betsy Borders (Social). Fourth Row: Amy Long, Jessica Freeman, Alicia Greenstince, Chandra Hohert (Fundraising Chair), Elizabeth Thompson, Libby Wilson, Carne Burger, Katie Fletcher, Heidi Mantley, Johanna Lohrmann, Amy Linder, Carey Nicodemus (Social), Jennifer Flippo, Tiffani Leighton, Alison Auclair, Liz Buford, Shawnthea Morrisette, Lori Hartman, Kari Shoemaker, Hope Tunstall (Treasurer), Jena Ryder, Liz Milhiser, Shirley Turner, Carol Shreeney.

SMOOTH SAILING. Emily Beard and two of her sisters attempt to make a raft for one of the competitions during Greek Week. The creativity involved sometimes took weeks of preparation.

HANGIN' WITH THE PREZ. Kirsten Flinton and Dr. Carrier enjoy the festivities at AST's 24 Hour Party. The party is an annual tradition of AST.

RUS WEEK. AST sisters get together before rush begins. During rush, sororities planned several events to welcome new faces.

Alpha Kappa Lambda

Front Row: Rudy Boquiron, Matt Aversano (Treasurer), Russel Privitera (Historian), Brian Helmick, D. J. Mok, Vincent Coyle, Enk Brnda, Christopher Smith, Kirk Snyder. Second Row: Michael Wagnes, Brant Edwards (Fraternity Educator), Alan Harris, Brian Buzzard, DeWayne Tuthill, Glenn McDougall, Ray Wimbrough, Tom Barton (Fundraising), Rob Cortez, Gray Johnson, Chad Triolet, Matt Moetzinger (Secretary), Kevin Hill, Ted Fair. Third Row: Christopher Hays, Dave Russell, Dave Helfen, Muh Quinlan (House Manager), Steven Restivo, Brian Yager, Greg Scovel, Joe Patterson (Social Chair), Ryan Powers, Robert Morris, Bill Gale (President), Chick Mann, Matt Coburn, Stork Armstrong.

- "Building on Tradition, not resting on it"

- 52 brothers

- Beta Omicron Chapter

- Founded in 1914

- National Philanthropy: Cystic Fibrosis.

- In a word... Diverse

CARRY ME HOME. AKL throws a bash during Homecoming weekend. Brothers, friends and family came to reminisce in a relaxing atmosphere.

SHARING. Wanda Davis and Zaneta Moore exchange gifts. Letters of sororities were engraved on several items which made great presents.

BROTHERHOOD. These members of AKL throw a party in the basement of their house. Most fraternities had parties on the weekends and in the basements of their house.

TWINS. Sisters Cheryl Hamilton and Pamela Foreman show their pride by wearing their letters and colors. Sorority members showed their affiliation by wearing letters.

SOMETHING IN COMMON. These sisters display their spirit Student Activities Night. Student Activities Night was a perfect way to promote their sisterhood.

•“Greater Service, Greater Progress”

•9 sisters

•Lambda Iota Chapter

•Founded in 1922

•Services: Harrisonburg Pregnancy Center and The American Heart Association.

•The 92-93 Homecoming Step Show Champions.

•In a word...
Diverse

Sigma Gamma Rho

Front Row Desirea Moore (Parliamentarian), Wanda Davis (Grammateus), Ria Verde Coleman (Service Project Coordinator), Kimberly Joyner (Anti-Basileus). Second Row Zaneta Moore (Anti-Grammateus), Traci Houston (Tamoichus), Andrea Brown (Basileus), Ayanna Lane (Epistoleus), Tia Brown (Sigma Week Chair).

PARTY ON! Kappa Sig brothers go a little wild in the basement of their house. Most brothers took advantage of their opportunity to live in the house.

SIMPLY IRRESISTIBLE. These sexy Kappa Sig brothers dress as the infamous Robert Palmer girls. The dresses, unfortunately, were too small and caused fitting problems.

Kappa Sigma

Front Row Adam Baldwin, Chris Lagow, Pete Price, Steven Burnette, Chris Stuckey. Second Row Adam Miller, Ken Graulich, Ryan Madden, Matt Roberston, James Perna, Rocky McMurtray, Chris Murphy. Third Row Alec Bates, Steve Dovel, Bo Powell, Mike Mullen, Rob Cates, Ben Tsuchitani, Dave Stock, Justin Ruf, Cliff Stevens, Hunter Williams

•“Brotherhood is for Life”

•54 brothers

•Lambda Sigma Chapter

•Founded in 1976

•Services: volunteer at a local soup kitchen and involvement in the student government.

•In a word... Classy

•"Together Let Us Seek The Heights"

•100+ sisters

•Theta Rho

•Founded in 1885

•Services: Frisbee Fling, supports the MacDowell Colony and the Easter Seals Society

•Winners of Anchor Splash, 1992 and of Ms. Madison, 1992

•In a word... Individuality

Alpha Chi Omega

Front Row Anne Carter Cillman, Melissa Witt, Theresa Dino, Amy Sieberkrob, Jennifer Gillespie, Merideth Linberger, Lori LaRocco, Wendy Miles, Kristi Rauch. Second Row: Yoon Ko, Ann Bolen, Melanie Anderson (Panhellenic), Nicole Dobson, Cary Hall, Kara Gingerelli, Heidi Rylands, Christie Shuk, Mary Schutz, Nancy Rohl, Alycia Oaklander, Renee Bradley, Juliette Brown, Kim Hanover, Stacy Cambell, Marni O'Connell, Kirsten Haack. Third Row: Shannon Pote, Alisa Schoemans, Colleen Magin, Mary Schutta, Stephanie Dean, Jen Mabe, Julie Reed, Ange Gulino, Katrina Widder, Megan Maloney, Cindy Payne, Aisa Rubin, Randa Haddad, Jen Toben, Tammi Hansen, Kelley Grant, Jessica Hubbley, Katie Howard, Joanna Kreimer, Michele Labick, Sarah Keeton. Fourth Row: Kristi Shackelford, Stephanie Miller, Candace Miller, Kari Rinne, Ana Caldero, Susan VanAken, Renee Moran, Pamela Jung, Michele Hiatt, Karla Williams, Michelle Stough, Christa McCusker, Jennifer Lee, Mindy Godding, Melissa Logan, Katie Hering, Becca Fisher, Allison Fowlkes, Angela Bair, Kristi Wulf, Christina Worontzoff, Kim Knight. Fifth Row: Emily Fergus, Laura Ballou, Jenny Forehand, Jill Johnson, Michelle Howard, Kara Todd, Michelle Kogle, Jennifer Willimas, Kim Bradham, Sarah Schulze, Leslie Zook, Jennifer Phillips, Laurie Reid, Maureen Craugh, Whitney Benson, Lisa Szlechtianshyn, AmberTeagle, Kimberly Linberger, Windy Hackett, Jennifer Sims, Heather Kuhl, Michelle Baggan, HeatherHayes.

SISTERS SHARE. Alpha Chi's Colleen Magin and Candace Miller give Greg Facchiano a kiss at formal. Colleen was Candace's Big Sister.

KEEPING WARM. Alpha Chi sisters Kristen Haack and Jenn Howard snuggle close at a post-sister date camping trip. Formals not only involved a dance, but other outings were planned as well.

GETTING CRAFTY. Alpha Chi sister Michelle Stough stands still while Kristi Shackelford puts together her Halloween costume. Alpha Chi had a Halloween party with Sigma Chi.

Delta Gamma

Front Row Linda Cho, Brendalou Samuel, Amy Golden, Kris Fleshood, Rebecca Raine, Cynthia Ensley (Socal Chair), Suzette Kuo (Panhellenic), Caryn Organic, Shannon Rodney, Karen Hubley (Chapter Programming), Pek Quann Soon. Second Row Sherry Stancil, Anne Kunkle, Margret Ross, Robn Underwood (Foundatrons), Betsy Smith, Meredith Leech, Kelley Kitchel, Emily-Marie Parsons (VP Scholarship), Tara Stoker (Sisterhood), Rene Hazy (Recording Secretary). Third Row Mara Kraus, Rande Young, Leslie Hagy, Kimberly Kreitz, Caroline DeSantis, Vicki Fries, Denise Zulandi, Liz McCormack, Jen Frost, Kristen Smola, Denise Pasquantino (President), Jennifer Stimpson (VP Pledge Education), Lee Ann Hunt, Andrea Kapfer, Carrie Gordon. Fourth Row Kimberly Scharenbrock (Rituals), Courtney Ellison, Annalie Ames (Activites/Historian), Julie Gerber, Jeanette La Vere, Lee Ann Ellyson, Yvette Rhoden, Elizabeth Roach (Treasurer), Melinda Creeden, Jenny Marczynski, Tara Wiedeman, Anne Maire DeRose, Kelli Crawford, Anne-Marie Dyer (Corresponding Secretary), Karen Grppo.

- "Do Good"
- 98 sisters
- Epsilon Nu
- Epsilon Nu Chapter
- Founded in 1873
- Services: Sponsored Anchor Splash.
- Second largest national sorority.
- In a word... Unique

AT THE RACES. These Delta Gamma sisters capture their fun on film. JMU fraternities and sororities travelled together to see the Foxfield horse races twice each year.

READY TO RUSH. Karen Hubley and Elizabeth Roach are dressed for a rush party. The costumes the sisters wore were often linked to a creative theme.

INTERMINGLING. Members of Delta Gamma and Sigma Pi enjoy the view at Bear Face Mountain. Fraternities and sororities had mixers throughout the year.

NUMB. Hunter Hornback sits calmly while his brothers attempt to disturb him. Sigma Pi's takeoff of a popular U2 video added humor to the Anchorsplash competition.

PALIN' AROUND. Scott Lanouette, Michael Siewers and Brian Fyock enjoy spending time together. The friendships formed in fraternities proved to be strong bonds.

JEANS AND TIES. Rene Gonzalez, William Theroux and other Sigma Pi brothers dress casually hip for the Foxfield races. Foxfield was a popular event among fraternities and sororities.

- 60 brothers
- Epsilon Mu chapter
- Founded in 1971
- Services: helped with the George Washington National Forest Clean-up and raised money for the Patsy Graham Memorial Scholarship.
- Sigma Pi received a Grand Sage Award for the Outstanding Sigma Pi Chapter in the Nation, 1992.
- In a word... Diverse

Sigma Pi

Front Row: Ian Drewry, Rene Gonzalez, Andrew Brocker, Alexander Lieu, Ryan Cresswell, Brian Weiler, Emmitt Smith. Second Row: Hunter Hornback, Greg Noone, Garrett McKinnon, Ross Weinstein, Michael Siewers (Rush Chair), Jason Fricker (Social), Robert Keeling. Third Row: Johnathon Bernstein, Michael Policchio (Secretary), William Theroux, Patrick Koren (Service), Brian Fyock, Wes Wright, Matt Hartley, Rodney MacKlin. Fourth Row: Allen Taliaferro, Tim Duffe, Michael Pickles (Treasurer), Labbage Decker, Andrew Bonoir, Tim Foltz, Bill Armstrong (Social), Mark McAuliffe.

WINTER WONDERLAND. These AKA sisters pause for a picture on their way to class. Sorority sisters were often seen together on campus.

SOFTBALL ANYONE? FIJI brothers participate in intramural softball. Most fraternities participated in several intramural sports such as volleyball and softball.

COOKIN' OUT. FIJI brothers Jody Bradshaw, Sebastian Dipinto and Kevin Quigley have a little grill action. Cook outs were fun and relaxing despite the cooler weather.

Phi Gamma Delta

Front Row C. Taft Osborne, Gregory Hastings, Thomas Goyne, Ryan Fleming, Jason Mott, Chns Sheperd, Jason Gizzarelli. Second Row Marc Boysworth, Daniel Krause, Douglas Tees, Mark Baggett, Thumper Bradshaw, Keith Pettler, William Beasley, Karl Rohrer, Bnan Senatore Third Row Aaron Norfor, Robert Oelmarco (Corresponding Secretary), Denys Fabiato, James Campher, Luis Neto, Steven Lassarini (Treasurer), Lee Barba, Matt Newquist, Andrew Moreau (President). Fourth Row Chip Ferguson, John Sobieray, Alan Pewsey, Taylor Johnson, Mike Wall, Bnan Tetro (Vice President), Greg Caldren, Demetrius Lee, Franklin Dam (Recording Secretary) Fifth Row Bnan Hennighausen (Historian), Sean White, Todd Lowman, Chuck Hudgins, Brett Hansen, Chns Fitch, Chns Fuller, Mike Baldwin.

•“Character is Service, Knowledge, Morality, Friendship, and Excellence”

•47 brothers

•Delta Colony

•Founded at JMU in 1993

•Services: Food Drive for the Salvation Army, Adopt-A-Highway, Pigskin Run as a fundraiser for charities.

•In a word... Excellence

•“By Merit and Culture”

•20 sisters

•Lambda Chi Chapter

•Founded in 1908

•Services: Adopt-A-Street, Your Place After School, Africare, and Place of Peace.

•Highest academics 1993.

•In a word... Phenomenal

Alpha Kappa Alpha

Front Row: Yolanda Stewart (Ivy Leaf Reporter, Chaplain), Racquel Kelly (BGC Rep., Co-Step Mistress), Tenta Stuart (Membership Chair), Lolita Wilson (Vice President), Tia Mason (President). Second Row: Danielle Ferguson, Shanell Whitney (Treasurer), Yvette Homes (Hostess), Nettie Mahone, Kimberly Fortune, Alexis McCombs (Ass't Membership Chair, Historian), Rhonda Wilson (Parliamentarian, Co-Step Mistress). Third Row: Nicole Copeland, Vanessa Evans, Tiffany Black, Michele Moore (Financial Secretary), Rosalyn Pitts (Corresponding Secretary), Mia Newell, LaTesa Giles, Clarysa Kelly (Secretary).

FRONT AND CENTER. Alpha Kappa Alpha sisters show their stuff at a show. Sororties spent long hours perfecting their precision and performance for step shows.

SMILING PRETTY. A formal gives these sisters an opportunity for a special evening. AKA had both formals and informal parties.

NAME GAME. Jody Bradshaw, Mark Hertz and Kevin Quigley sport their letters at the JMU/Richmond football game. In addition to sweatshirts, letters were also found on shorts, key rings, cups and glasses.

Sigma Nu

Front Row: Erich Stern, Ouoc Le (Pledge Marshall), Brad Pennington (Community Service), Bradley Meade, Adam Klein (Social Chair), Rodney Atienza (High Alpha), Uman Bakshi (Social Chair), Norm Gonzales, Jay Eastman. Second Row: Doug Weiler, Chris Packman, Rosie (White Rose), Dan Ainslie, Mike Smith, Matthew Shaker (Traditional Events), Brian Sanchez-Rivero, Doug Campbell (Treasurer), Matt Miller (Co-Scholarship), Cory Birch (Rush Chair), Marcus Shaker, Mike Behan. Third Row: Bob O'Malley, Roger Giardino, J.W. Rust, Scott Gaddes, Matt O'Brien, Brian McKenna, William Scudder, Wells Engledow, Alexander Townsend, Jerry Shepard, David Millise, Charlie Fox (Risk Reduction), Aaron Lineberger, Joe Sasse.

•“Get Honor, and Keep Honor”

•48 brothers

•Iota Delta Chapter

•Founded in 1869

•Services: Habitat for Humanity, Special Olympics, and Make A Wish.

•In a word...
Honor

GOOD TIMES. A bunch of Sigma Nu brothers form their own little party. Staying in the dorm provided as much fun as going out.

DANCING AROUND! ZTA sister Kitty Dunman is twirled around by Mason Wilburn. ZTA danced to a song from the movie Mermaids.

GETTING DOWN! Sigma Nu's Brian Rivero busts a move at Anchor Splash. The brothers performed to the jammin' song Rico Suave.

SHOW TIME. The sisters of ZTA get ready for rush. Tremendous unity was put forth by each sorority during rush through dances and skits.

PERSONAL PREFERENCE. Members of ZTA celebrate Preference Night. Pref Night was the last and most eagerly awaited day of rush.

•“Founded on the Precept of Love”

•145 sisters

•Gamma Kappa Chapter

•Founded in 1898

•Services: Special Olympics, Assoc. of Retarded Citizens and Breast Cancer.

•Received the Nellie Galloway Shearer Award and the Crown Chapter Award.

•In a word... Friendship

Zeta Tau Alpha

Front Row Kim Burkard, Suzanne Porter, Tasha Skinner, Katrina Sherman, Lauren Maimone, Margaret Smith, Anissa Callowhill, Lisa Petrille, Leigh Sullivan, Lindy Daum, Kim Shore, Pam Williams. (Ritual Chair), Mary Stuart Boling (President), Carolyn Therbach, Caoilfhionn O'Drudy Second Row Brande Schreiber, Amy Coccaro, Samantha, Sonya Sterbenz, Margaret Mann, Nell Royston, Joy Bellis, Cosette Phillips, Elyse Costello, Jenniter Payne, Justine Sherman, Kimberly Luczkovich, Carmen Conrey, Kim LeSage (Historian), Megan Carrigan, Kristen Willard. Third Row Laura Jarrell, Elizabeth Robinson, Kitty Dunman, Tracey Armentrout, Susanne Cordyack, Cara Yarashas, Marie Cerquce, Valerie Corner, Karen Ramsey, Kellam Comer, Heidi Knapp, Kristen O'Neill, Meg Nash, Maggie Maslayak, Susanna Speshock, Laurie Bonner. Fourth Row Lisa Wheeler, Kelly Heiges, Christina Spenik, Erin Cipperly, Anne Carroll, Amy Higgins, Aimee Brillhart, Megan Burke, Amy Ordakowski, Debbie Mosely, Christina Thal, Andrea Dubin, Barbra Holland, Lara Evans, Patricia Mannion, Shanti Roach.

HAVING AN EXCUSE. Sigma Chi brothers get creative with their costumes. Halloween gave fraternities a good reason to have a party.

A SYMBOL OF IDENTITY. Zeta Phi Beta sisters Tanya Norris and Chrishana Lloyd bond with Omega brother William Coates. Their hand symbols have become unique to their sororities.

IN TOUCH. Zeta Phi Beta's Chrishana Lloyd and Tanya Norris perform at the Homecoming Step Show. The step show was a highlight of the weekend.

Zeta Phi Beta

Front Row Thea Coleman (Parliamentarian), Donna Moore (Historian), Adora Williams (Secretary). Second Row Frances Johnson (Treasurer), Angela Coleman (President), Tanya Norris (Vice President).

- “All is Conquered by Labor”
- 6 sisters
- Theta Nu Chapter
- Founded in 1920
- Services: fund-raising for the Leanne Whitlock Scholarship, March of Dimes, and Feed a Family at Thanksgiving/Christmas.
- Sorority with the highest GPA one semester.
- In a word...
Dedicated

•“In Hoc Signo Vincens”

•78 brothers

•Iota Beta Chapter

Founded in 1855

•Services: Convict Softball, sponsor Derby Days, and volunteer for the National Institute of Health.

•Winners of Anchor Splash, 1992.

•In a word... Dynamic

Sigma Chi

Front Row: Chris Viselli, Gregory Facchiano, Adam Torman (Scholarship), John Drake (Treasurer), Micah Minarik, Tom Ginocchio, Hal Dillon, Daniel Lappus (Vice President), Kip Kelly, Todd Lombardo, Barbo Nassirian, Brian Buldo, Brian Dison. Second Row: Mike Rogers (Secretary), Nick Franks (Magister), Kevin Stewart, Mike O'Brian, Paul Walsh, Jim Snow (President), James Signorelli, Sithin Shortlidge, Michael Lawson, Eric Running, Barry Saadatmand, Adam Rand (Social), Ed Craig (Risk Management), Jay Moore. Third Row: Mark Carry, Chad Dunham, Michael Kirillin, Steve Greenbaum, Craig Steger, Chris Self, Steve Williams (Historian), Brendon Bartlett, Joseph Klesiu, Stacy Horton (Community Service Chair), Steve Kosciolk (Secretary), Neal Sherman (Rush Chair), Mike Duszak, Matt Hodges, Kosta Alexis, Janie Hudak, Alan Honadle.

COMING TOGETHER. Sigma Chi brothers form their letters. Their sweatshirts, as well as the human Sigma Chi, displayed the tremendous honor and spirit they have for their fraternity.

TAKE IT OFF. Sigma Chi's Micah Minarik teases the audience as he casually eases off his robe. Micah was one of the contestants in the Mr. Anchorsplash competition.

PICTURE PERFECT. Zeta Phi Beta sisters Chrishana Lloyd, Tayna Morris and Frances Johnson strike a pose. These girls were enjoying an evening at JMs.

Sigma Sigma Sigma

First Row: Christina Wise, Hyun Joo Lee, Christi Hoffer, Tamara Kelsey, Catherine Mattingly, Christine Lally (Education Director), Jennifer Jallo (Vice President), Karen Gardner, Jodi Schnepfer, Dillon Nugent. Second Row: Mary Katherine Wall, Lellyett Wentworth, Pam Heflin, Annie Lowry, Lina Slaby (Pledge Treasurer), Meredith Ramsburg (Pledge Secretary), Karen Hoke (Treasurer), Jen Cheavens, Sonja Harrison (President), Lisa McMurtray, Vallery Bryan, Erica Steing, Mona Gupta, Jenni Vining, Alison Ruh. Third Row: Deborah Kilgore, Natalie Moore, Alisa Schorn (Secretary), Nicole West, Rebecca Haile, Carrie Norris, Gabrielle Cormier, Amy Spencer, Andrea Seaton, Chrissy Harrison, Debra Frutchey, Julie Bragg, Laura Brittingham, G.G. Smith, Michele Goden. Fourth Row: Jennifer Kratochvil, Jennifer Lyon, Karla Esleack, Amy Lemon, Jennifer Sternberg, Teri Hohnson, Bethany Krick, Melissa Marcoplos, Sheri Spence, Windsor Barnett, Greer Lee (Panhellenic Representative), Leslie Riddel, Holly Barraclough, Megan Hargroves, Sara MacLeod, Elizabeth Gregory, Jeannie Robeson, Kelly Egar, Debbie Gucibello, Renee Bousseleire, Nikki Armstrong, Sandy Reese.

•“Faithful Unto Death”

•131 sisters

•Alpha Upsilon Chapter

•Founded in 1898

•Philanthropy: Robbie Page Memorial.

•Received 2nd place in Greek Sing, 1993.

•In a word...
Enthusiastic

BEACH '93. These sisters take a picture together during their summer trip to Rehoboth Beach, Delaware. Sorority sisters often spent summers and vacations together out of school.

YOU BETTER WORK! Alpha Phi Alpha brothers help with Newman Lake clean-up. This was a project the majority of fraternities and sororities worked on together.

THE GANG'S ALL HERE. Sisters and new pledges gather at a Pika rush event. Good relations between frats and sororities helped to make JMU's Greek system strong.

MOVIN' IN. The brothers of Alpha Phi Alpha, Inc. help new students move into their dorms. The Alphas volunteered at other community projects, such as the Thanksgiving Food Drive.

•“First of All, Servants of All, We Shall Transcend All”

•25 brothers

•Xi Delta Chapter

•Founded in 1906

•Services: Thanksgiving Food Drive and MLK Scholarship Drive.

•Homecoming Step Show Champions for the past three years.

•In a word..
Dedicated

Alpha Phi Alpha

Front Row: Marrell Elam (Chaplain), Jonathan Page (Assoc. Ed. of Sphinx), Victor Myers, Kenneth Spencer (Corresponding Secretary), Joe Lewis (Programs & Projects Chair), Bryan Patterson. Second Row: Napoleon Ibiezugbe (Vice President), Arthur Cotton (Seargant at Arms), Craig Welburn, Brandon Martin, Keith Smith, Rashsaan Alston. Third Row: Charles Waddy (President), Leo Barbour, Shawn Brown (Recording Secretary), Samuel Rucker, David Ginn, Montrese Dobson (Historian), Benjamin Clay, Mark Robinson, Terrance Bethea (Treasurer).

SISTERHOOD. These Delta Sigma Theta sisters come together and make their signs with pride. Friendship was the main benefit of their sorority.

SHOWING IT OFF. Delta Sigma Theta sisters display their sorority knickknacks. Their letters were displayed on many different mediums to show devotion for their sorority.

Delta Sigma Theta

Front Row Kavis Fleming (Recording Secretary), Clanssa King, Dana Goodman (Treasurer). Second Row Krstin Coates (Second VP), Tonya Temple, LaChanda Lipscomb, Ericka Janifer. Third Row Shauna Miller, Kimberly Amprey (Sgt. at Arms), Stephanie Foster (Corresponding Secretary), Marlene Kenney (Chaplain), Monica Windley (President), Marchetta Daniels.

•“Intelligence is the Torch of Wisdom”

•15 sisters

•Iota Alpha Chapter

•Founded in 1913

•Services: Operation Flood Relief, Salvation Army Halloween Party, day care , and canned food drives.

•Recognized for raising the most money for the 1993 March of Dimes Dance-A-Thon.

•In a word... Devoted

•“Aspire, Seek, At-tain”

•139 sisters

•Beta Epsilon Chapter

•Founded in 1901

•Services: Special Olympics, S. June Smith Center, and Adopt-a-School.

•1993 winners of Greek Week.

•In a word... Supportive

Alpha Sigma Alpha

Front Row Hallie Menshaw, Becky Hurst, Shannon O'Leary, Lisa Welsh, Tracy Schubert, Wendy Kush.
Second Row Margi Carter, Christina Loukas, Jade Wexler, Meredith Jamieson, Andrea Camfield, Heather Price, Rachel Everett, Sheri Jones, Katie Stover, Lesley Schwartz, Melissa Copeland, Karen Engstrom, Dana Weber, Erin O'Meara, Trina Malls, Stephanie Watkins. Third Row Shelene DeCoster, Beth Stanley, Suzanne Hunter, Colleen Bergin, Tammy Siskid, Lori Rogers, Lori Stafford, Dobbie Kissell (Secretary), Patti Shenahan, Aimee Ratliff, Justine Stevens, Patti Schmitz, Erin Hoffman, Elyse Berkover, Kerstin Miller, Amy Smith, Deborah Murphay, Dolores Kreger, Jennifer Irrgang (Rush Chair), Adrienne Brown. Fourth Row Heather Shippie, Colleen Morris, Annie Bartlett, Enca Hauley, Lisa Gentry, Renee Sickinger, Cybil Kendrick, Doran McBnde (President), Amy McKenna, Anne Kaufman, Ahley Hall, Kate Piorkowski, Tracy Bridges, Kristen Kelley, Jacqueline McMahon, Missi Aleski, Allison Smith, Trene Gease, Molly Taylor (Standards), Dana Shifflett, Allison Fraser, Colleen Murphy, Kathrin Lemoine, Kimberly Russell (Social).

HEADED WHERE? These ASA sisters and pledges load up on the bus for a Destination Unknown trip. Trips like these helped to bring sisters closer.

JAMMING. Adrienne Brown dances to a Janet Jackson song during Anchorsplash. The popular song, "If" was selected.

Kappa Delta Rho

Front Row: Jason Williams, Joe Nardone, Adam Paul, Geffery Paul, Tony Matos, Brian Robilotta, Cliff Neff, Paul Klewans. Second Row: Chad Anderson, Steve Barham, Matt Zoolenski, Chris Bradford. Third Row: Todd Gordon, Ian Harper, Craig Moran, Matt Lebowitz, John Masten, Jed Stapleton.

- "Honor Above All Things"

- 35 brothers

- Lambda Beta Chapter

- Founded in 1991

- Services: Special Olympics, Alcohol Awareness, U.S. Forestry service and Adopt-A-Highway.

- Received 3rd place for Mr. Anchor-splash.

- In a word... Supportive

BARRY, ANYONE? KDR brothers Jed Stapleton, Rick Armstrong, Kevin Ganner, and Jason Williams dance to Copa Cabana. The music chosen at Anchor Splash made for an interesting evening.

TAKING A BREAK. Kirsten Ryan, Erin Cannelli, Heidi Knapp and Caroline Wallace pause for a picture. Panhellenic allowed for sisters of other sororities to become closer.

VOLUNTEERING. KDR's Brad Witzel helps out at Special Olympics. KDR helped other organization in the Harrisonburg Community as well.

MERRY CHRISTMAS. Sisters from various sororities come together to make Christmas cards. Panhellenic sponsored a Christmas visit to Bridgewater Nursing Home.

TAKING TIME OUT. Panhellenic President Izzy Rees and AST sisters volunteer for the Panhellenic's Christmas visit to Bridgewater Nursing Home. The girls visited with residents as well as sang songs.

•"Strive To Make a Difference"

•11 representatives

•Founded in 1902

•The governing and coordinating body for the 8 social sororities at JMU.

•Services: visits to Camelot Nursing Home, canned food drives, blood drives, and tutoring for elementary schools.

•In a word... Unity

Panhellenic

Front Row Kristen Radcliffe (Advisor), Heidi Knapp (Pres-Elect), Izzy Reis (President), Caroline Wallace (Secretary). Second Row Erin Cannelli (VP Membership), Anna Mpras (Treasurer), Angie Ledford (VP Rho Chi), Karen Grippo (PR & Publicity), Jen Harvey (VP Committes), Kirsten Ryan (VP Standards), Melanie Anderson (VP Rush). Not Pictured Suzette Kuo, Megan Mulvihill.

A Step Above

One of the most eagerly awaited events of Homecoming Weekend was the Homecoming Step Show. Sponsored by Multicultural Students Services, the show featured the members of all the traditionally black fraternities and sororities. The event was one of two step shows held annually, and was by far a much bigger show than the one presented during Black Freshman Weekend. This was the only Step Show in which the organizations competed against each other.

While the show was noted for its performance and entertainment value, it meant much more to the Greek organizations involved. While the competition was fierce, there was an underlying sense of unity between all the participating groups to show off the tradition involved in stepping. This modern version of the tradition was an attempt to preserve the African culture.

The Convocation Center was nearly packed for this year's Step Show. Held on the Friday night before the Homecoming game, a mixture of current students and alumni began arriving more than an hour early to ensure a good seat for the show. All money raised through admission fees went to the Black Greek Caucus.

Most fraternities and sororities practiced diligently to perfect their routines. Practice began as soon as the semester did and continued until the week of the show. The routines consisted of step, dance and sometimes gymnastics moves, often including blindfolds and other techniques to make the already complicated routines even more so.

-Kristi Shackelford

WINNING PERFORMANCE. James Clingenpeel of Alpha Phi Alpha, Inc. gets into his performance. Their rigorous preparation and practice paid off.

IMPACT. The brothers of Phi Beta Sigma are a force to be reckoned with at the block show. The use of dramatic lighting made their show impressive.

CONCENTRATION. Frances Johnson of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority Inc. performs during the block show. The Homecoming show was eagerly anticipated each year.

TRYING SOMETHING DIFFERENT. AKA sisters stomp out a beat to begin the year's performance. Their traditional African act was a big success.

WORKING HARD. Brothers of Kappa Alpha Psi Inc. compete in the Step Show. The brothers tried to incorporate the use of props into their performance.

Step Show Winners

Delta
Sigma
Theta
Sorority,
Inc.

Alpha Phi
Alpha Fraternity,
Inc.

DAISY DUKES. These sisters of Alpha Phi get down. Each sorority and fraternity picked out a song and performed a routine to it.

GROOVIN'! These ASA sisters put their all into their dancing. Hard work and long hours of practice paid off for them.

CHEERING ON! Brothers of Pi Kappa Phi applaud the many performances. Brothers and sisters of each fraternity and sorority provided tremendous support.

Mr. & Ms. Anchorsplash

Ms. Sigma Sigma Sigma
Kristen Policicchio

Mr. Chi Phi
Greg Pappanastos

Splish! Splash!

Greeks coming together, raising money and having fun was the purpose of Anchorsplash, a week-long series of events and competition between fraternities and sororities.

Sponsored by Delta Gamma every fall, Anchorsplash was the only Greek fundraiser that included both the fraternities and sororities. This year's activities raised over $3,000 for Sight Conservation and Aid to the Blind. According to Foundations Chair Robn Underwood, the fundraiser was especially successful this year. "I am amazed at how well it all went," said Underwood, "There have been no complaints."

Each Greek organization put together a team of participants to compete in the activities. The teams usually had their own captain within their organization. In addition, for several weeks before the actual week of activities, the team from each fraternity and sorority was assigned several Delta Gamma coaches. The purpose of this, said Underwood, was to encourage unity and give each section their own "personal cheerleaders."

Throughout the week, various competitions were held. For two days, all students could vote for the guy or girl with the most beautiful eyes by dropping change in buckets on the commons. Silver change gave the person points, but pennies counted negatively. There was a game day, putting the teams against each other in races and other games. Also, fraternity and sorority teams competed in elimination volleyball tournaments. One highlight of the week was the swim meet. In order for others to experience the loss of sight, many of the swimming activities stimulated blind activities.

The week was kicked off with the Mr. & Ms. Anchorsplash competition held in Godwin gym. A representative from each fraternity and sorority competed in a "Best Legs," "Best Dressed" and lip sync contest. This was usually the most popular event with Greek and non-Greek students. "Being Mr. Anchorsplash last year was the highlight of my year," said Greg Faschino, who represented Sigma Chi. "My little brother was Mr. Sigma Chi this year, so I was glad he could carry on the tradition."

The overall purpose of Anchorsplash was to raise money for Delta Gamma's philanthropy, but its lasting effect of unifying fraternities and sororities for a common cause was also a legacy at JMU.

-Kristi Shackelford

GETTING INTO IT. SPE's Dave George sings. Dave actually sang his song while the other Greeks lip synched in their performances.

STRUTIN' HIS STUFF. This AXP brother dresses casually fine for the Mr. Anchorsplash contest. Each fraternity selected a brother to enter the competition.

CATCHIN' THE BEAT. ZTA sisters Elyse Costello, Carrie Hartly and Christina Thal concentrate on their moves. Staying in sync with one another was not an easy task.

WINTER WONDERLAND.
Colleen Magin's photograph of the arboretum amidst the snow illustrates one of the aspects of Harrisonburg in the winter.

They were responsible for depicting the good and bad times; for showing JMU everything it was and everything it has the potential to be. The Bluestone Photography Staff was there to capture JMU's

Thoughts & Expressions

Each year the Bluestone Photography Staff is faced with the dilemma of what to photograph in order to depict life at James Madison University. Every photographer had to stay slightly behind the scenes, waiting and watching, always ready with camera in hand to catch any event or expression at JMU.

The entire staff relied on the photographers to not only photograph what they saw, but to add their own spice of life and artistic element to the 1993-94 Bluestone.

Many a sleepless night was spent in the darkroom and many a frustrating evening was spent poring over contact sheets and prints searching for the perfect exposure. The stressful days and sleepless nights were worth the ultimate result, the 1993-94 Bluestone contained photos of which to be proud.

BROKEN HOME. Sharley Simpson captures the essence of loneliness in her photograph of an abandoned barn.

The Gallery section of the Bluestone is a tradition which allowed the photographers a chance to express themselves without the boundaries of assignments and deadlines. Each photographer had the freedom to utilize his or her creativity and publish favorite pieces.

Some of the photographs on the following pages are playful, some serious, some artistic, some photojournalistic, but all are creative expressions of the 1993-94 Bluestone Photography Staff. The staff is happy to have the opportunity to display these photos while continuing a long standing Bluestone tradition.

Editor: Colleen Magin
Asst. Editor: Lisa Manzo

COLLEEN MAGIN

"Being Watched"

"A Moment of Peace"

"Splash!"

"Gateway"

"Harrisonburg, Backwards"

"Old Town"

"Covers"

"Little Angel"

LISA
MANZO

Gallery 355

JASON WILLIAMS

"Simon Say..."

"On the edge"

"Me, Myself, and I"

"Just Kickin' Around"

"De LA"

"With An 'E'"

"Me "

"New Orleans"

"Loopy"

SHARLEY
SIMPSON

JOE GUILFOYLE

"Mr. Brown"

"Me and some guy"

"East Rim, Grand Canyon"

"Flow"

"Erika"

"Night Sky - Moab, Utah"

MATT
HUMKE

Gallery 363

"Strength"

"Feeling the Freeze"

"Out on a Limb"

STEVE WILLIAMS

"Ice Water"

"Reflections"

"Spring Thaw"

TRANG
VO

KATHY HAWK

"Mud House Road"

"Stan 4"

"Homeless"

In Memorium

Pasquale Mazzoccoli

DIAMOND PATRONS

A

Ray & Joan Albertella

B

Lori & Edie Beer
Mr. & Mrs. William B. Bell
Kevin Berry
Vicki & John Boaz
Mr. & Mrs. Paul E. Bonser
Bonnie & Dick Brewer
Jack R. Bruce
Mr. & Mrs. John H.
Bulheller
John A. Burmeister

C

Dennis Cadigan
Helen & Norman J.
Campbell
Mr. & Mrs. Donald L.
Cass, Jr.
Bob & Linda Cates
Dr. & Mrs. C.W. Christian
John & Sally Christensen
Bernard & Cheryl
Clineburg

D

Mr. & Mrs. Keith Denslow
Mr. & Mrs. Robert F. Dorr
Mr. & Mrs. George Driscoll

E

Etta Eggleston
Theresa C. Ellison
Douglas & Marcie Ensley

F

A. Kevin Fahey
Marguerite Ferguson
Mr. & Mrs. Alan S. Frankel

G

Mark & Margaret German
Mr. & Mrs. Thomas
Gibson
Mr. & Mrs. Rodolfo G.
Granados
Owen & Sharon Griffin

H

Robert O. Grinnell
Mr. & Mrs. Thomas D.
Haley
Laura Penfield Heimberg
Irving & Doris Hodnett
Mr. & Mrs. John G. Hurley

J

Michael Johnson

K

Mr. & Mrs. Jan P. Kaupas
Mr. & Mrs. Thomas W.
Kell
Dr. & Mrs. John W.
Knispel
Ronald & Linda Knudsen
Mr. & Mrs. Hideo Koga

L

Bob & Joye Ledford
Mr. & Mrs. Bill Liappis

M

Patrick & Catherine Maher
Art & Dana Mattingly
Mr. & Mrs. Daniel T. Maura
Elvin Hunter McQuain
Alice F. Meredith
Robert & Virginia Merrill
James M. Million
Dr. & Mrs. Charles C.
Moore, Jr.
Mr. & Mrs. Joseph H.
Moore
Mr. & Mrs. Moran
Susan & Alan Myers

O

Mr. & Mrs. Ronald E.
Owens

P

Charles & Rosalie Pate
Mr. & Mrs. Graydon R.
Powers

Q

Terrence P. Quinn

S

Gale Savage, M.D.
Col. & Mrs. William I.
Scudder, Sr.
Allen L. Shapiro
Larry C. Smedley, D.D.S.
Donald H. Solomon
Bill & Sybil Sparrow
Lee & Nancy Sprissler
Dr. David W. Syrek

T

Mr. & Mrs. Denny Tomlin
Joel E. Taylor

V

Alfred & Lorraine Veiel

W

James & Miyuki Wade
Jay R. Waldman
Mr. James E. Wallace
Edward & Alicia Wilkinson
Randy Wolf
Mr. & Mrs. Wiley Wood, III

PATRONS

A

Al & Nancy Aitken
Roger & Sadie Alexaner
Robert Anderson, Jr.
Thurman Anderson
Dr. Willie A. Anderson
David & Joella Austin
Dr. & Mrs. Alex Azar

B

Bob Bailey
Barabara Bakari
Mr. & Mrs. John M. Baldwin, III
Maj. Gen. & Mrs. R. Baldwin
Mr. & Mrs. W. David Ball, III
Mr. & Mrs. Albert C. Barnes
Wayne C. Barnes
Peter A. Barnett
Mr. & Mrs. Thomas A. Barton
Jerry & Marry Bassler
Dr. & Mrs. Salvatore Battiata
Mr. & Mrs. Christopher Bean
G. Richard Beck
Jeffrey & Elizabeth Beck
C. F. Behan
Mr. & Mrs. Dennis E. Beitzel
Mr. & Mrs. Celestino Beltran
Joshua & Jeanne Benin
Anne & Rick Berner
Danny & Bonnie Berry
Robert D. Black
Mr. & Mrs. R. Tyler Bland, III
Mr. & Mrs. Ernest T. Bomar, Jr.
Herbert C. Braun
David & Gail Bridges
Faye & Ben Brigaman
Marsha Brock
Patricia A. Brown
Charles & Linda Burch
Don E. Burch
Mr. & Mrs. John J. Burke, Jr.
Richard & Glenda Burks
Charles L. Burns, Jr.
Mr. & Mrs. Kenneth R. Burns
Mary T. Burtette
Tim & Anita Burton
Mr. & Mrs. William L. Buss
William J. & Nancy Butler

C

Harry C. Campbell
Mr. & Mrs. James J. Cannelli
John B. & Sandra L. Cannon
Betsy Carr
Mr. & Mrs. D.H. Cartwright
Daniel E. Cassidy
Marvin & Marge Casterline
Mike & Cathy Censurato

William & Susan Chang
Tom & Linda Chapman
Dennis & Sandra Cherry
Delores Chewing
Lawrence B. Collins
Vilma E. Colon
Joseph & Nancy Conrad
Mr. & Mrs. Paul F. Conroy
Mr. & Mrs. Theodore C. Cooley
Kiley E. Cornwell, Jr.
Dan & Cathy Culluhan
John C. Culp
Dorothy S. Curran
Jim & Carol Curry

D

Joesph M. & Christina O. Daly
Mr. & Mrs. William R. Daniels
Ernie R. & Lynn L. Dash
Mr. & Mrs. W. Alan Day
Edgardo & Carmen Decarli
Dianna Derhovhannessian
Rob & Mary Deyo
Haren & Mary Dhokai
Lary G. & Carol C. Diehl
Katherine Dimitriou
Mr. & Mrs. David Dokken
Mr. & Mrs. John M. Dolan
Dr. & Mrs. Louis F. Donaghue
Mrs. Harriette H. Donaldson
Richard & Noret Dovel
James C. & Mary F. Doyle
Joseph Duffy
Mr. & Mrs. James S. Dyson, Sr.

E

Mike & Judi Elliott
Mr. & Mrs. Richard S. Ellyson
Mr. & Mrs. Erasmus
Mr. Erhart
Rev. & Mrs. Samuel J. Espinoza
John D. Evans

F

Mrs. Lynnette Fekeza
Robert G. Fields
John & Randee Fieselmann
Angel T. Filamor
Shaun E. Fitzmaurice
James & Wendy Flinchbaugh
Jeffrey E. & Gail A. Flood
Dr. & Mrs. John M. Frazier
Mr. & Mrs. Henry C. Frenck
Molly R. Frierman
Fern J. Frutchey
Carolyn & Dan Frye

G

Tom & Jean Gabriele
Mr. & Mrs. James C. Garde
Mr. & Mrs. Robert Gastner
Mr. & Mrs. David Gates
Judy & Dave Geiman
Mr. & Mrs. William B. George, Jr.
Mr. & Mrs. R. Gibowicz
Mr. & Mrs. Raymond Gilberte
John & Carole Gilbert
John & Judy Gilbert
Mr. & Mrs. William P. Gilhooly, Jr.
Mr. & Mrs. Russell H. Gordon
Margaret & Phillip Greenbaum
Dr. & Mrs. Elwyn Griffiths
Gerald T. Gripper
Christie L. Grubbs
Melissa D. Grubbs
Gonzalo Guacena, Jr.
Dave & Donnal Gulick
Jerry & Karen Gustin

H

Edwina & Theodore Haas
Mr. & Mrs. George S. Hales, Jr.
Mr. & Mrs. James E. Hales
Mr. & Mrs. Jean E. Hall
Mr. & Mrs. Michael G. Hamp
Mr. & Mrs. Dennis Hanley
Nancy & Herbert Hargroves
Mahnaz R. Hashemi
Mr. & Mrs. Cornelius S. Hawk
Donald & Carolyn Hawkins
Mr. & Mrs. Edwin H. Hayes
Don & Joan Helbig
David & Sue Henderson
Mr. & Mrs. Cole Hendrix
William H. Hodge
Deane Wendall Hoisington
James R. Hooper, III
Kathy & Carl Hopkins
Mary Ann Hopper
Jim & Shelia Howard
William L. & Glenda M. Howard
Mr. & Mrs. Robert Lyndon Howell
Bruce & Carolyn Howie
Mr. & Mrs. John G. Hubley
Betty Anne & Gordon Huey
John & Mary Humke
Mrs. Martha B. Hunt
Mr. & Mrs. A. D. Van Hyning

J

Shirley A. Jackson
Michael & Nancy Jaffe

Diane & Jeff Jefferds
John & Dorothy Jensen
Robert & Vernell Jeter
John H. & Iris W. Johnson
John R. Johnson
Mr. & Mrs. Nevin Johnson
Barabara Archer-Jones
Mr. & Mrs. John P. Jones
Mr. & Mrs. Thomas H. Jones
Nona J. Jordan
Chris & Karen Junker

K

Robert P. Kappler
Al & Milly Karoly
Albert R. Kendrick, Jr.
Capt. & Mrs. W. E. Kenealy
Ann Kidd
Charles King
Robert G. Kissell
Bill & Betsey Knapp
Krishna Rao Kudaravalli

L

Michael & Mary Labik
George M. Landeree
Charles & Dorothea Lane
Mr. & Mrs. W. E. Lansing
Ernest & Linda Lapp
Arthur B. & Dorothy S. Larson
Capt. & Mrs. Keith H. Larson
Mr. & Mrs. Norman M. Laskin
Mr. Lasseigne
Michael & Artie Leaman
Mr. & Mrs. Kenneth W. Lee
Mr. & Mrs. Robert C. Leedom
Barbara & Dennis Leikus
Graciela Leimone
Brian C. Leonard
Peter A. & Louise Linder
Beth & Jeff Lins
Robert J. Lloyd M.D.
George M. Londeree
Paul & Linda Loukas
Mr. & Mrs. John Loveland
Ms. Betty K. Lowry
Mr. & Mrs. Joseph M. Lowry
Mr. & Mrs. William B. Lowry
Teresa A. Lukach

M

Suzanne & Jack Mahle
Jan & Pat Makela
Drs. Emmanuel & Wilma Maniago
Martin & Associates
Frank & Judi Martin
Alberto N. Martino
John & Patricia Matous

Dr. Ragaa Mauharita
Mr. & Mrs. Thomas C. Maxwell
Mike & Lynn Mayberry
Lucy J. McCaughey
Mr. & Mrs. Charles P. McCusker
Edmond J. McDowell
Diane & Bob McGraw
Mr. Mclvor
Mr. & Mrs. Charles McKay
James J. McKeown
William T. McQuire
William J. McSorley
Harold & Toni McWhorter
Dan & Barbara Measell
Pam & John Meeuwissen
Mike & Caroline Mellen
David S. Miller
Mr. & Mrs. Miller
Peter & Linda Miller
Fran & Bob Montore
Thomas & Karen Morrison
Mr. & Mrs. James Moye
Frank A. Mueller
Tessa Munro

N

Tom & Leila Newman
Mr. & Mrs. G.R. Niehoff
Stacy Nielsen
Ruby & Lewis Nissen
Leland & Cynthia Nunnall

O

Mr. & Mrs. Stephen O'Connor
Carolyn Ogden
Paul & Jean Ogg
Jim O'Hara
Ralph & Barabara Olsen
William E. Ott
Michael & Janice O'Quin

P

Robert Panels
Ann Pannell
Clay & Lucy Partin
Mr. & Mrs. Paul Passerini
Joel M. Peikin
Dr. & Mrs. Michael Peirson
Jacqueline Harris Penozza
Marilyn & William Persan
Mr & Mrs. Wayne Pickurel
Steve & Suzanne Pineo
Terry & Cheryl Plummer
Donald & Patricia Poole
Marvin & Patricia Powers
Mr. & Mrs. Donald M. Prem
William R. & Veria A. Preston
Mary & Bob Pritchett

R

Mr. Reaser
David & Cynthia Reed
Franklin R. & Diana E. Rich
Mr. & Mrs. Phillip Ringdahl
Lucian & Susan Robinson
Neal & Mary Robinson
Raymond G. Robinson
Marilyn S. Rogers
Gary & Judy Rowe
Bob & Gail Rowlands
Sandra Rusk
Timothy Ryan

S

Nancy A. Sanders
Mr. & Mrs. Benjamin P. Scafedi
Mr. & Mrs. Schaefer
Mr. & Mrs. Schilken
Mr. & Mrs. Jerry Schlesinger
Mr. & Mrs. Herb Scholz
Richard W. Schouw
Breta Schrager
Mr. & Mrs. James C. Schum, Jr.
Larry & Bernadette Schumann
Mr. & Mrs. Ed Scott, Jr.
Dennis & Sandra Shaw
Mr. & Mrs. Joel Sherman
Mr. & Mrs. R. Sherwood
Phillip & Helen Skipper
Carolyn E. Smith
Mr. & Mrs. Robert J. Smith
Col. & Mrs. James Smyser
Gleason C. Snow
Mr. & Mrs. Edmund Sobieray
Donald G. Spaid
Lawerence Springer
Mr. & Mrs. Robert Springer
Mr. & Mrs. Geoffrey N. Steadman
Mr. & Mrs. J. Glenn Steinbacher
Mike & Sharon Stephens
Charles & Gerri Stewart
Frank D. Stone
Linda L. Stone
Mr. & Mrs. J. L. Sullivan, Jr.
Bob & Betty Swaney
Robert & Barbara Sydell

T

Alan & Linda Taylor
Gwen M. Taylor
Mr. & Mrs. J.V. Taylor, Jr.
James C. Thomson, Jr.
Mr. & Mrs. Barry S. Tindall
Michael D. Tuck
Joe & Alice Turner
Mr. & Mrs. Dewayne W. Tuthill

U

Mr. & Mrs. Henry A. Ulrich, Jr.
Ronald L. Underwood

V

David & Kathleen vanEsselstyn
Glen & Barbara Vought

W

Alex W. Waddell
Kenneth F. Walger
Lois Walko
Robert & Janet Walters
Gary & Linda Warren
Douglas Webb
Mr. & Mrs. Richard L. Weiler
Trevor D. Weiss
Mr. & Mrs. Chuck Weitzenhofer
Charles A. & Helen R. Wendel
Lane B. West, Sr.
Mr. & Mrs. James J. Whelan, III
Richard Wilkinson
Mr. & Mrs. Robert L. Winder
Douglas R. Wise
Kay Wood
Woody & Marilyn Woodall

Y

William A. Yeagley

Z

Polly & Steve Zink
Mr. & Mrs. Edwin S. Zippe

INDEX

A

Abdul-Khalek, Dany 266
 Ackerman, Mary Jo 196
 Ackerman, Seth 75
 Ackert, Julie 196
 Ackinson, Ben 136
 Adams, Jessica 138, 196
 Adams, Lisa 196
 Adams, Melissa 125, 159
 Adams, Meredith 196
 Adkins, Jason W. 266
 Aebli, Melanie 313
 Agee, Steven 136, 196
 Ahn, Michelle I. 266
 Aikens, Carla 196
 Aitken, Mindy 196
 Akerman, Seth 196
 Albertella, Dana 146, 196
 Alessandria, Kathryn 266
 Alexander, Geoffrey 301
 Alexander, Jill 196
 Alexander, Lori 266
 Allcock, Cheryl 196, 313
 Allen, Crystal 315
 Allen, Elizabeth 276
 Allen, Jennifer 196
 Allen, John 136, 196
 Allen, Katkina 196
 Allen, Sarah 104, 261
 Allport, Chris 156
 Allred, Michael 196
 Almborg, Heather 161
 Alonge, Aaron 311
 Alston, Angela 315
 Amick, Christine 154
 Amiss, Ezra 276
 Amprey, Kimberly 196
 Anastas, Zoe 154
 Andersch, Samantha 146
 Anderson, Chad 344
 Anderson, Derek 196
 Anderson, John 196
 Anderson, Kellie 196
 Anderson, Kevin 121
 Anderson, Kristen 197
 Anderson, Mark 197
 Anderson, Melanie 197, 331
 Anderson, Melissa 266
 Anderson, Ryan 136
 Andrews, Angela 315

Andrews, Becky 166, 253
 Ankrom, Herbert 197
 Anthony, Michael 314
 Antonakas, Jason 197
 Archer, Katherine 197
 Arcona, Joseph 197
 Armborg, Heather 160
 Armistead, Jack 288
 Armstrong, Jill 197
 Armstrong, Nicole 197
 Armstrong, Rick ... 233, 310, 344
 Armstrong, Stork 328
 Arnaldo, Eileen 160
 Arnold, DeVinchi 39, 136
 Arnold, Todd 197
 Arthur, Heidi 197
 Ashby, Cary 197
 Ashdown, Michael 197
 Ashe, Mark 36, 301
 Ashley, Amanda 73, 197
 Aspy, Karen 197
 Atienza, Rodney 127
 Atkinson, Amy 276
 Auclair, Alison 327
 Aukamp, Mark 197
 Austin, Alexandra 197
 Austin, Ashley 197
 Austin, Tatiana 197
 Aversano, Matt 328
 Awuakye, Barbara 93
 Aylor, Temple 276
 Ayres, Darrick 276

B

Babilino, Louis 197
 Bachuber, Christoph 8, 389
 Back, Timothy 198
 Badin, Kimberly 198
 Bagby, Jason 118, 121
 Baggan, Michelle 331
 Bagget, Mark 198
 Bailey, Brooke 327
 Bailey, Darcy 198
 Bailey, David 136
 Bailey, Elizabeth 64
 Bailey, Leigh 198
 Bair, Angela 331
 Bajwa, Kanwal 301
 Bak, James 71

Baker, Crystal 198
 Baker, Geoffrey 276
 Baker, Kimberly 198, 301
 Baker, Michael 198
 Baker, Mike 311
 Bakke, Kent 12
 Baldwin, Mike 311
 Balint, Kristen 57, 95, 166
 Balisle, Jennifer J. 266
 Ballou, Laura 331
 Balsbaugh, Kimberly 198
 Bang, Jaimie 198
 Banks, Jennifer 198
 Baram, Steve 344
 Barany, Matthew 169
 Barber, Kristoffer 315
 Barbour, Chadwick 198
 Barbour, Leo 198, 313
 Barbour, Rosetta 198
 Barch, Catherine 276
 Barda, Lee 198
 Barden, Paul 198
 Barham, Steven 198
 Barlow, Audra 198, 314
 Barnak, Sean 154
 Barner, Antoinette 315
 Barnes, Jackquiline 198
 Barone, Jill 199
 Barrberich, Jennifer 198
 Barrows, Tev 82
 Barry, Kevin 160
 Barry, Melissa 164
 Barry, Sarah 325
 Barton, Tom 328
 Bartz, Chandler 199
 Bass, Wendy 199
 Batdorf, Danielle 199
 Bates, Erica 124, 125
 Bates, Samantha 159
 Batt, Jeffrey E. 266
 Battle, Toshia 315
 Batts, Valerie 315
 Baumann, Kristen 192, 311
 Baumgartner, Jill 124, 159
 Beadner, Shera 311
 Beal, Shannon 199
 Bean, Carolyn 199
 Beane, Billy 121
 Beard, Emily 327
 Beard, Mary 199
 Bearn, Michelle 266
 Beck, Daryl 199
 Bednarzik, Amity 276
 Beelman, Matthew 313

Bees, Melissa 199
 Behrman, Danielle M. 266
 Beland, Matthew 266, 314
 Beland, Steffani 199, 325
 Belcher, Monica 199
 Bell, Jason 276
 Bell, Malia 166, 253
 Bellamy, Joy 315
 Beltran, Christina 199
 Bender, Carrier 327
 Benin, Matt 169
 Bennett, Karen 199
 Bennett, Kevin 199
 Benson, Jerry 288, 289
 Benson, Whitney 331
 Beres, Brett 276
 Berger, Stacey 199
 Berry, Jon-nell 146
 Berry, Kevin 199
 Berry, Tanya 276
 Besachie, Justin 122
 Betts, Heather 138
 Beucler, Michelle 199
 Beury, Diane 199
 Bianchi, Bob 169, 251
 Bielik, Jeff 326
 Bilello, Dawn 199
 Biller, Rick 100
 Bing, Jason 169
 Bingay, Matthew 199
 Biondi, Jennifer 266, 319
 Birdsell, Kevin 156, 157
 Birnbaum, Kim 200, 314
 Black, Emily 200
 Blackstone, Lillah 200
 Blalock, Kristen 200
 Bland, Sonya 200
 Blase, Valerie 200
 Blazie, Chris 200
 Blockburger, Tammy 73
 Bloomer, Kelley 160
 Bluhm, Steven 200
 Blumenthal, Carrie 146, 147
 Bodkin, Christine 200
 Bogaz, Kerrie 170, 200
 Bogert, Allison 200
 Bohland, John 73, 318
 Boirin, Beth 296
 Bolander, Tracy 200
 Bolden, Raina 276, 315
 Bolen, Ronald 200
 Bolen, Virginia A. 266
 Boles, Derek 169
 Boling, Mary 200

Boniello, Dave	121	Brown, Andrea	201, 315	Cagley, Mark	202	Chapman, Maureen	327
Bonomelli, Rex	276	Brown, B.J.	315	Calderon, Ana	331	Chapson, Angela	203
Bonser, Justin	136	Brown, James	37	Caldwell, David	169	Chau, Linh	204, 301
Booker, Michael	200	Brown, Jennifer	201, 325	Cales, James	202, 313	Chaudhari, Nirav	277
Booker, Troy	276	Brown, Juliette	331	Callahan, Kerry	276, 325	Chauvin, Mark	204
Boone, Rhonda	200	Brown, Laura	201	Calleran, Carrie	203	Cheeks, Nicole	204
Booth, Tony	136	Brown, Sam	122	Calvin, Crista	213	Cherry, Laura	277
Booze, Julia	276	Brown, Shawn	45	Cambell, Stacy	331	Chewning, Sharon	267
Boquiron, Rudy	328	Brown, Tia	201	Campbell, Irma	276	Cho, Alanna	204
Borders, Betsy	200, 327	Bruce, Jacquie	201	Campbell, Rebecca	276	Chrchwell, Tina	315
Borgh, Andy	29	Brunow, Jessica	276	Campbell, Robin	138	Christensen, Jarret	204
Borgmann, Glenn	276	Bryant, Andrea	202	Campbell, Rosheen	203	Christian, Delmar	136
Borkowski, Paula	200	Bryant, Melissa	266	Campo, Christina	203	Christopher, Maria	267
Botschin, Leslie	325	Bryant, Wendy	166, 276	Canadas, Raquel	277	Church, Aaron	277
Bottomley, Richard	200	Buchan, Alison	202	Canestrari, Aldo	136	Churchwell, Tonia	204, 315
Bouknight, Leigh A.	266	Budris, Allison	276	Cannelli, Erin	327, 344	Chvala, Erika	204
Bousseilaire, Renee	153, 200	Buford, Liz	327	Cantrell, Evan	311	Cicelski, Patricia	204
Bower, Matt	169	Buhl, Nils	35	Cantwell, Evan	277	Cillay, Ian	204
Bowers, Crystal	266	Bulheller, Greg	121	Capilongo, Jeffery	203	Cillman, Anne Carter	331
Bowie, Kristie	315	Bullard, Judy	266, 325	Caplan, Jennifer	325	Clapp, Marsha	277
Bowler, Alonzo	136	Bullock, Wyndi	315	Cappel, Susan	203	Clark, Katherine	160
Bowlus, Jamie	201	Bultema, Annette	166	Caray, Christine	325	Clark, Nancy	136, 204
Boyce, Julie	327	Burnfield, Jennifer	267	Carden, E. Scott	277	Clark, Rick	136
Boyd, Brian	295	Bunker, Tara	202	Cardona, Janine	277	Clarke, Sarah	277
Boyle, Jude	136	Burford, Aaron	315	Carey, Denise	203	Clarke, Sherlonda	277, 315
Boyle, Megan	116	Burger, Carrie	327	Carpenter, Janet	277, 311, 313	Clay, Benjamin	315
Bradbury, Katherine F.	266	Burgis, Tracy	202	Carpenter, Katherine	146	Clayton, Summer	193
Braden, Kristi	201	Burh, Cecilia	202	Carpinelli, Brian	108	Click, Melissa	204
Bradford, Chris	344	Burke, John	202	Carr, Carolyn	116	Clifford, Liz	39
Bradham, Kim	331	Burke, Joy E.	266	Carr, Cheryl	146	Clift, Jeffrey	204
Bradley, Renee	331	Burkhart, Maggie	313	Carr, Michael	203	Clore, Kenneth	277
Bradshaw, George	201	Burkman, Jorie	266	Carreno, Carrie	203	Coates, William	338
Bradshaw, Jody	334, 335	Burmeister, Jeffrey	202	Carrier, Jennifer	203	Coburn, Matt	328
Bragg, Julia	201, 310, 311	Burnett, Cheryl	202	Carrier, Ronald	52, 106, 286, 327	Cochran, Brian	204
Brandt, Emily	266	Burnette, Alyssa	267	Carrington, Keith	267	Codd, Rebecca	277
Branson, Tevis	122	Burnfield, Jennifer	314	Carroll, Tina	327	Coffindaffer, Nancy	204
Brassfield, Ann	276	Burnop, Scott	202	Carson, Denise	325	Coffman, Anne	204
Brawley, Elizabeth	266	Burns, Amy	327	Carter, Margie	249	Coffren, Mark	204
Braxton, Teri	315	Burns, Elizabeth	327	Carter, Poni	203	Cogswell, Lauren	29, 276
Brebowski, Caryl	215	Burr, Kelli	202	Carter, Elizabeth	301	Cohee, Colleen	277
Breeden, Heather	138	Burtnette, Forrest	202	Cartwright, Elizabeth	301	Cohn, Jeffrey	204
Breeden, Michael	201	Burton, Barbara	276	Carzo, Nicole	277	Colbert, Bob	136
Breeding, Amanda	201	Burton, Jerald	202	Casey, Laura	277	Colbert, Delaney	204
Breen, Cristin	266	Burton, Julie	276	Casey, Melissa	203	Colbert, Heather	160
Brehe, Lauren	325	Burton, Sean	202	Cash, Kerri	203	Cole, Erik	204
Brehe, Melissa	325	Burton, Spence	202	Cassada, Lewis	136	Cole, Kathryn	277, 325
Breitbach, Anne	201	Burton, Spencer	202	Cassidy, Catherine	203	Coleman, Courtney	127, 205
Brennan, Cindy	308	Bury, Meghan	267	Cassidy, Dan	309	Coleman, Melissa	315
Brennan, Cynthia	201	Bushrod, Dana	267	Castello, Barbara	287	Coleman, Paula	315
Brennen, Cindy	309	Bussey, Kelly	202	Castillo, Ricky	267	Coleman, Thea	204
Brewe, Lori	301	Butler, Jennifer	325	Catlett, Todd	267	Collins, Alicia D.	267
Brinda, Erik	328	Butler, Linda	202	Causey, Caroline	267	Colter, Jennifer	205
Brinkworth, Susan	116, 201	Butler, Sia	315	Cavanagh, Pat	169	Colter, Jenniver	205
Brinser, Kristin	166	Butts, Natalie	267	Cerutti, Andrew	89	Colucci, James	205
Brittingham, Laura	201	Buxton, Chris	136	Cerutti, Charlotte	89	Colvin, Kristin	205
Brittingham, Shari	201	Byerly, David	136	Cervenka, Sheri	203	Combs, Cynthia	205
Brizendine, Mary R.	266			Cha, Min	203	Commander, Alison	311
Broach, Carrie	201			Chadha, Raminder	203	Conlon, Molly	313
Brookens, Casey	119, 121			Chafin, Brooke	277	Connelly, J.P.	205, 301
Brooks, Jauan	201			Chafitz, Nicole	304	Conner, Donna	205
Brooks, Macey	136			Chamberlin, Kevin	313	Conner, Valerie	205
Brookshire, Jeff	136			Chan, Choi	203	Conrey, Carmen	205
Broussard, Chris	201			Chandler, Robert	203	Conroy, Amy	327
Browder, Judy V.	266			Chang, Christine	292	Conroy, Julie	205
Brown, Adrienne	343			Chang, Fung Yung	267	Cooch, Anthony	205
				Chang, Jenny	203	Cooke, Tim	109

C

Cadwallader, Cecil 202

L

Ianka, Maribeth L. 280
Janousek, Jeannie 220
Jansen, Michael 220
Jarvis, Cherise 220, 301
Jaunrubenis, Amber ... 154, 220
Jay, Thomas 265
Jaynes, Alicia 166, 167
Jefferts, Joshua 270
Jefferies, Amy 325
Jefferson, Randy 29
Jeffrey, Tom 122, 156, 157
Jenkins, Lisa 270
Jenkinson, Sarah 221
Jennings, Pat 122
Jeter, Kelvin 136
Jett, Chris 314
Joe Kaminski, Jr. 270
Johnson, Angela 221
Johnson, Billy 39, 136
Johnson, Britt 221, 324
Johnson, Dayle 270
Johnson, Demetra 221
Johnson, Ethan 221
Johnson, Frances 339, 346
Johnson, Gray 328
Johnson, James 314
Johnson, Jay 121
Johnson, Jessica L. 280
Johnson, Jill 205, 221, 331
Johnson, Jocelyn 221
Johnson, Kevin 221
Johnson, Kristin 221
Johnson, Kristine 221, 309
Johnson, Magnus 221
Johnson, Mia 221
Johnson, Michelle 280
Johnson, Shawn 221
Johnson, Tara 221
Johnson, Tracey 116
Johnson, Valarian 315
Johnson, Vicki 311
Jones, Amanda-Beth 325
Jones, Amy 270
Jones, Beverly 221
Jones, Eric 122, 123, 221
Jones, Heather 280
Jones, Jeffrey 221
Jones, Jennifer 222, 301
Jones, Judy 280
Jones, Kartice 315
Jones, Kimberly 221
Jones, Mandi 311
Jones, Renell 136
Jones, Rhonda 315
Jones, Richard 221
Jones, Rick 311
Jones, Sheri 222, 301
Jones, Tiffany 280
Jones, Todd 136
Jong, Amity De 207
Jonker, Jennifer 270
Jonkers, Kathy 270
Jordan, Kathryn 222
Jordan, Mimi 327
Jordan, Thomas 222
Jordan, Tony 136

Joy, Aimee 86
Joyner, Kimberley 222
Jude, Stacie 222
Judy, Beth 280
Juenger, Lara 116, 222
Jung, Pamela 270, 331

K

Kafadar, Jan 88
Kafadar, Sara 88
Kahn, Rehan 270
Kain, Jay 291
Kaiser, Robert 222
Kalas, Karen 222
Kallas, Jennifer 222
Kamilakis, Peter 222
Kaminkski, Joe 270
Kaminski, Jessica 222
Kane, Jeffrey 222
Kane, Jessica 160
Kaneer, Heather 270
Kang, Jennie 280
Kaput, Valerie 154
Karpouzes, Melissa 8
Karubi, Tina 325
Karwan, Amy 315
Kasten, Kevin 222, 311
Kastler, Melinda 222
Kaufman, Jeff 121
Kaupa, Brian 122, 156
Kaupas, Michelle E. 280
Kautz, Jill 222
Kearney, Shanette 270, 315
Kearns, Chris 122
Keaveny, Angela 222
Keegan, Tricia 146
Keen, Angela 270
Keenan, Jennifer E. 280
Keene, Kaya 315
Keene, Michelle 325
Keeton, Sarah 222, 331
Keffer, Kimberly 314
Keller, Amy 280, 311
Keller, Jennifer 222
Keller, Mandy 222
Kelley, Leanne 136
Kellison, Amy 223, 325
Kellopp, Courtney 327
Kelly, Claryssa 315
Kelly, Eileen 223
Kelly, Raquel 223
Kelsey, Ramara 301
Kenney, Marlene 223, 315
Kentos, Deborah 223
Kern, Daniel 223
Kern, Rhonda 270
Kerns, Susan 327
Kerns, Tonya 223
Kerr, David 223
Kersey, Cammie 327

Ketter, Stacie 314
Khan, Rehan 270
Kidd, Mike 52
Kieger, Troy 223
Kilby, Miranda 203
Kilmon, Cindy 223, 325
Kim, Jinhee 223
Kim, Se 223
Kimsey, Kristie 223
Kinder, Shea 223
King, Elizabeth 223
King, Kris 223
King, Travis 223
Kingan, Renee 280
Kingsley, Joshua 270
Kinkead, Valinda 223
Kirby, Dan 307
Kirby, Doug 135, 136
Kirby, Ellen 45, 223
Kirby, Miranda 203
Kirby, Tonya 223
Kissell, Deborah 224
Klapmust, Andrew 270
Klein, Adam 305
Klewans, Paul 255, 344
Knapp, Heidi 344
Knapp, Robert 224
Knick, Emily 270
Knight, Kim 331
Knight, Kimberly 224
Knupsen, Katherine 224
Ko, Yoon 301, 331
Koch, Jeff 128
Koch, Paul 121
Kockert, Heidi 224
Koehl, Michelle 224
Koerner, Daniel 224
Koga, Yuli 281
Kogle, Michelle 331
Kossman, Matthew 224
Kovner, Todd 224
Kramer, Katherine 261
Kratochvil, Jennifer 224
Kraus, John 136
Kraus, Mara 301
Krause, Daniel 224
Krauser, Todd 224
Kreiger, Delores 224
Kreiger, Kelly 160
Kreimer, Joanna 331
Kreitz, Kimberly 301
Kress, Adrian 261
Krey, Jennifer 224
Kringel, Deanna 270
Krisko, Kyle 281
Krist, Kimberly 325
Kropp, Julie 224, 325
Kuchinskis, Jennifer 261
Kuehl, Amanda 166
Kugel, Sarah 224
Kuhl, Heather 331
Kuncirs, Kelly 224
Kunkle, Anna 261
Kush, Wendy 270
Kuter, Josh 277

La Vere, Jeanette 224
Labik, Michele 331
Labuguen, Nancy 224
Lacy, Maureen 116, 117
Lafon, Michelle 224
Lahnstein, Carrie 270
Lally, Christine 225
Lamb, Gerald 313
Lamb, Julie 281
Lamb, Sonya 91
Lambrecht, David 225
Lambuth, Natasha 273
LaMotte, Jennifer 166, 167, 225
LaMotte, Susan 138
Lamparella, Mark 225
Lamy, Simone M. 281
Lancaster, Amy 261
Lane, Ayanna 225
Lane, Dana 314
Lane, Stephanie 225, 325
Lane, Tara 327
Lanouette, Scott 333
Lapp, David 281
Largen, Brenda 225
Larner, Susanna 121, 225
LaRocco, Lori 331
LaRowe, Sharon 270
Larsen, Amy 225
Larson, Anna 225
Larson, Kelly 261
Lashley, Angelique 225
Lau, Matthew 225
Lawrence, Robert 301
Lawless, Elizabeth 225
Lawson, Anna 225
Lawson, Heather 225
Layfield, Scott 136
Layman, Tara 270
Layne, David 225
Lazzarini, Steven 225
Le, Quoc 261
Lea, Myung 261
Lea, Scott 261
Leber, John 225
Lebowitz, Matt 344
Ledford, Angie 225
Lee, Chris 169
Lee, David 136
Lee, Jekyu 225
Lee, Jennifer 331
Lee, Joo 226
Lee, Karen 314
Lee, Mary 226
Lee, Shannon 226
Lee, Steve 281
Leech, Dina 226
Leech, Merideth 226
Leedom, Michael 226
Leet, Jennifer 270

Miller, Candace 331
 Miller, Jennifer 262
 Miller, Justin 231
 Miller, Kerstin 309
 Miller, Kristen 282
 Miller, Mark 314
 Miller, Matt 15
 Miller, Matthew 262
 Miller, Rachel 271
 Miller, Shawn 271
 Miller, Stephanie 331
 Miller, Thomas 103
 Miller, Tiffany 271
 Mills, Dave 127
 Minarik, Michah 339
 Minarik, Mirah 122
 Minderlein, Michele 231
 Minor, Tellas 315
 Minson, Holly 231
 Mirabella, Thomas 271
 Misiano, Joanne 271
 Missal, John 282
 Mitchell, Chet 136
 Mitchell, Derek 282
 Mitchell, Jason 231
 Mitchell, Jennifer 231
 Mitchell, Kimberly 231
 Mitchell, Leslie 231
 Mitchell, Mark 262
 Mitchell, Renae 314
 Mobe, Kim 271
 Mobleski, Sarah 262
 Moetzingner, Matt 328
 Moffett, Nancy 231
 Mohelski, Sarah 325
 Mohr, Sherry 160
 Mok, D.J. 328
 Monger, Dixie 231
 Monger, Wesley 231
 Monhan, Jeanne 231
 Moniz, Jennifer 231
 Monrad, Julie 231, 310, 311
 Monsour, Andrew 231
 Monteiro, Tonya 231, 315
 Monteith, Alex 63
 Montgomery, Amy 314
 Montgomery, Ebonee 231
 Montgomery, Jennifer 232
 Montgomery, Lisa 314
 Moody, Malik 136
 Moon, Chris 232
 Mooney, Chris 232
 Mooney, Sarah 232
 Moore, Andy 313
 Moore, Calista 315
 Moore, Courtney 232
 Moore, Desirea 232, 309
 Moore, Donna 232
 Moore, Liz 325
 Moore, Lori 262
 Moore, Matthew 232
 Moore, Nora 271
 Moore, Zaneta 328
 Moorefield, Sharon 232, 301
 Moran, Craig 344
 Moran, Renee 232, 331
 Moran, Ruth 232
 Morgan, Christy 160
 Morgan, Vanessa 232
 Moritz, Carly 325
 Morlino, Susan 272, 311
 Morosco, Joseph 272
 Morris, Brad 136
 Morris, Glenda 232
 Morris, Katherine 325
 Morris, Lisa 272
 Morris, Robert 328
 Morris, Shelby 272
 Morrissette, Shawnthea 327
 Morrow, Matthew 232
 Morse, Carol 325
 Morse, Sherry 232
 Morton, Margaret 272
 Mosby, Alexis 315
 Moscoso, Sandra 325
 Moseley, Debbie 79, 272
 Mosely, Debbie 272
 Mosley, James 282
 Moster, Theresa 154, 282
 Mott, Jason 310
 Moukas, Stacie 327
 Moye, James 272
 Moye, Paul 122
 Mueller, Christine 232
 Mulhern, Lynn 170, 171, 232
 Mullen, Heather 232
 Muller, Janixe 232
 Mullins, Kerri 232
 Mullins, Stephanie 262
 Mummau, Rob 118, 121
 Munn, George 233
 Munsey, Brent 233
 Munson, Christian 233
 Munson, Jennifer 282
 Murphy, Deborah 233
 Murray, Kiersten 158, 159
 Murray, Margaret 233
 Murray, Meg 165
 Murray, Valerie 272
 Mussinan, Jessica 233
 Muxacchio, Nina 327
 Myers, Amy 233
 Myers, Michael 233
 Myers, Travis 253, 301
 Myrick, Todd 262

N

Nagashima, Arisa 262
 Nardone, Joe 344
 Nason, Leslie 233
 Natalini, Joy 233
 Navitskis, Leonard 262
 Neff, Clif 344
 Nehring, Kevin 121
 Neiss, Pam 160
 Nell, Nicole 315
 Nelson, Eric 233
 Nelson, Leslie 160
 Nelson, Lisa 233
 Nemeth, Karla 233
 Nenfeld, Eric 233
 Nesbitt, Laura 311, 233
 Nesselrodt, Polly 272
 Netherland, Kristen 61
 Neubert, Stephanie 282
 Neuman, Erin 272
 Neville, Emily 233
 Newbanks, Laura 233
 Newbold, Soon Hee 272
 Newdorf, Larry 314
 Newquist, Matthew 262
 Nguuyen, Anne 262
 Nguyen, Huong 234
 Nguyen, Prissy 127
 Nguyen, Steven 234
 Nguyen, Thong 65
 Nichols, Ashley 327
 Nickels, Cameron 80
 Nickles, Jennifer 234
 Nicodemus, Carey 327
 Niehoff, Sean 282
 Nizer, Laura 282
 Nobel, Jeff 287
 Nobel, Lisa 154
 Noon, Scott 234
 Noonan, Jennifer 166
 Noone, Greg 272
 Normand, Amy 234
 Norood, Melissa 314
 Norris, Carrie 234
 Norris, Tanya 338, 339
 Norusis, Brian 234
 Nothdurft, Michelle 262
 Nowitzky, Jennifer 282
 Nye, Ann 282
 Nystrom, Elizabeth 272

O

O'Connell, Kerri 146, 234
 O'Connell, Marni 234, 331
 O'Conner, Carrier 296
 O'Conner, Kerry 262
 O'Donahue, Mike 99
 O'Leary, Shannon 249
 O'Neal, Shaun 272
 O'Neil, Heather ... 107, 234, 325
 O'Neil, Shaun 272
 Oaklander, Ilicia 331
 Oberst, Bethany 287, 290
 Obester, Elizabeth 262
 Obitz, Nicole 325
 Ocker, Roger 234
 Ogletree, Kara 282
 Oglivie, Michael 234
 Oglivie, Mike 129
 Oh, Sungjin 234
 Okada, Sachiko 282, 315
 Olada, Sachiko 315
 Oldham, Heather 234
 Olenick, Mary 234
 Oliver, Jeff 314
 Oliver, Jeffrey 234
 Olka, Kristine 234
 Olrion, Laura 234
 Olsen, Christie 282
 Olson, Carlyn 234
 Olson, Joe 320, 321
 Olivier, Marci 234
 Onuska, Mike 109
 Ordenez, Marcus 136
 Orendorff, Kris 136
 Osborne, Beth 96
 Osborne, Elle 103
 Ospina, Marina 63, 235
 Oswald, Emily 146
 Ouellette, Kathryn ... 78, 235, 301
 Owen, Jennifer 235
 Owens, Katrina 272, 311
 Owens, Wendy 235

P

Pace, Arlene 235
 Pace, Chris 235
 Padgett, Barbara 235
 Paek, Ja 235
 Paerkerson, Cathy 325
 Pafford, Sandi 296
 Pafford, Sandra 235
 Page, Jonathan 235
 Page, Todd 136, 235
 Paige, Vince 136
 Painter, Teresh 235
 Palm, Kathleen 272
 Palmaccio, Kristi 146
 Palmer, Jeannie ... 262
 Pannell, Alicia 272
 Pappanastos, Gregory . 235, 348
 Parcell, Christopher 235
 Parekh, Ketan 235
 Parisi, Robert 235
 Park, Ellen 262
 Parker, Amy 314
 Parker, Wisty 98
 Parkerson, Catherine 235
 Parks, Katie 279
 Parr, Sarah 282
 Parrish, Christian 235
 Parrish, Shane 236
 Parrucci, Kate 282
 Parsons, Jason 236
 Parsons, Shane 236
 Partin, Christopher 262
 Pascarella, Drew 262
 Pasicznyk, Paula 81
 Pasquantino, Denise 236

Stiles, Robert 246
 Stimpson, Jennifer 57, 264
 Stock, David 246
 Stockton, Jennifer 264
 Stolte, Deanne 246
 Stoltzfus, Gwen 160, 161
 Stone, Amy 274
 Stone, Jessica 264
 Stone, Melanie 274, 314
 Stone, Melissa 274, 314
 Stone, Theodore 246
 Stouffer, Rachel 246
 Stough, Michelle ... 25, 103, 249, 331
 Stover, Garnett 246
 Stover, Katherine 246
 Stover, Katie 301
 Stow, Sharon 246
 Strang, Dana 325
 Straub, Adrienne 274
 Streit, Jennifer 264
 Strkey, Shannon 315
 Strottman, Lori 146
 Stuart, Tenita 246
 Stup, Christopher 246
 Sturgill, Gregfory 246
 Sturm, David 246
 Suess, Jeremy 246
 Suguitan, Leni 127
 Suleiman, Samir 136
 Sun, Jenny 264
 Sunderland, Beth 246
 Surikov, Max 264
 Susil, Chrisopher ... 87, 256, 246
 Sutherland, Shannon 246
 Sutton, Michael 247
 Swager, Heather 247
 Swan, Tanequa 315
 Swancott, Carol 247
 Swaney, Brent 247
 Swartout, Kristen 274
 Swartz, Carla 146
 Swartzendruber, Deb 264
 Sweeney, Brennan 168, 169
 Sweeney, Douglas 274
 Sweeney, Philip 192, 247
 Sweeny, Doug 311, 313
 Swift, Tyler 247
 Sydell, Eric 274
 Sylvester, Leigh 301, 310
 Symonds, Jennifer 247
 Syrek, Michael 247
 Szlachtianshyn, Lisa 331

T

Taliaferro, Mary 247
 Talyor, Danyelle 247
 Talyor, Alveeta 247
 Tango, Jill 325
 Tankersley, Roger 247

Tatum, Jennifer 311
 Tatum, Tanya 315
 Tayloe, Bennett 247
 Taylor, Alveeta 315
 Taylor, Amy 103, 125
 Taylor, Cindy 247
 Taylor, James 247
 Taylor, Keisha 315
 Taylor, Randy 247
 Taylor, Steve 301
 Taylor, Tammy 265
 Teagle, Amber 247, 331
 Teal, Brooks 169
 Tempchin, Alane 247
 Temple, Tonya 265
 Tennant, Christian 313
 Tetro, Brian 58, 265
 Thal, Christina 349
 Thate, Carole 160
 Theroux, William 333
 Thierbach, Carolyn 274
 Thill, Julie 247
 Thomas, Jay 265
 Thomas, Rikki 315
 Thomasson, Tricia 265
 Thompson, Bradley 247
 Thompson, Elizabeth 327
 Thompson, Jeffrey 122, 156
 Thompson, Jennifer 248, 325
 Thompson, LaShawn 315
 Thompson, Laurie 248
 Thompson, Scott 248
 Thompson, Stephanie 248
 Thomson, Suzanne 314
 Thornburg, Amy 327
 Thorne, B. Shannon 315
 Thorne, Barbara 248
 Thorne, Shannon 315
 Thornhill, Tara 248
 Thrift, Matt 248
 Thurston, Jenita 248
 Thurston, Mark 248
 Thurston, Renita 248
 Tice, Amy 160, 248
 Tilghman, Kerri 248
 Tillar, Lani 301
 Tillery, Megan 274
 Tilley, James 248
 Timmons, David 248
 Tindall, Melissa 248
 Toben, Jen 331
 Tock, Julia 170
 Todd, Jeff 248
 Todd, Kara 331
 Toewe, Susan 265, 301
 Tolbert, Michelle 248
 Tolleson, Jesse 156
 Tomasson, Tricia 265
 Toney, Janet 314
 Toole, Aubrey 136
 Toomer, Rob 66
 Toth, Charlie 136
 Tourtellotte, Stacey 146
 Towers, Adrienne 325
 Townes, D'Artagan 136
 Townshead, Carol 248

Toy, Renee 274
 Tray, Brian 311
 Trent, Cheryl 265
 Tribble, Mary-Kaye 248
 Triolet, Chad 169, 328
 Troilo, Jason 121
 Trout, David 253
 Trout, Lindsay 265
 Trupin, Michel 249
 Tsao, Alexander 248
 Tuberty, Patricia 274
 Tuckmantel, Dianne 327
 Tunstall, Hope 327
 Turnbow, Heather 249
 Turner, Daiel 249
 Turner, Glenn 310
 Turner, Jill 249, 308
 Turner, Jukie 249
 Turner, Shirley 327
 Turpin, Michele 325
 Turry, Che 127
 Tuthill, DeWayne 328
 Tutt, Kishia 249
 Twohey, Maura Elizabeth 249
 Tyree, Jason 265

U

Underwood, Robin 57
 Unruh, Jessica 296

V

VanAken, Susan 331
 Vanatta, Darrick 56
 Vandegrift, Beth 249
 vanEsselstyn, Andrew 249
 vanEsselstyn, Drew 52
 VanHorn, Kimberly 274
 VanPelt, Carla 249
 Varhougvik, Svein 249
 Veiel, Eric 249
 Velanzon, Jessica 125
 Venable, Jennifer 249
 Venafrro, Mike 121
 Vernall, Katherine 249
 Vezina, Sheryl 249
 Via, Krist 249
 Vidarte, Josephine 249
 Viers, Tracie 296
 Vileger, Matthew 249
 Vincent, Keith 249
 Vlieger, Matt 320
 Vo, Trang 274, 320
 Vogan, Katherine 250
 Voorheis, Mark 275

Vought, Andrew 250
 Vuong, Oanh 136

W

Waddy, Charles 250
 Wade, Kevin 250
 Wade, Tina 250
 Wagner, Andrea 250
 Wagner, Steve 160
 Wagnes, Michael 328
 Wahab, Farah 250
 Waite, Michael 250
 Waligura, Susan 250
 Walker, Cynthia 250
 Walker, Scott 275
 Wallace, Caroline 344
 Wallack, Cindi 301, 310
 Waller, Quincy 136
 Walsh, Jonathan 250
 Walsh, Kimberly 250
 Walsh, Valerie 250
 Walton, Bill 122
 Wan, Amy 250
 Ward, Stephanie 250
 Ward, Tamara 265, 314
 Ware, Jennifer 313
 Warnecke, Vernon 265
 Warren, Margaret 250
 Washington, Tyrone 136
 Waters, Amy 251, 325
 Waters, Richard 265
 Weatherly, Laura 251
 Weaver, Gwen 251
 Weaver, Jerry 289
 Webb, Brian 251
 Webb, Lauren 275
 Webber, Diana 166, 251
 Weber, Laura 251, 327
 Weiland, Laura 251
 Weinberg, Seth 39, 251
 Weindner, Time 251
 Weins, Christopher 275
 Weis, Trey 136
 Weisbard, Olivia 275
 Weiss, Katrine 251
 Weiss, Mary 275
 Weiss, Torrey 325, 389
 Welck, Troy 251
 Wellman, Aaron 169
 Wells, Jeffrey 109, 251
 Wells, Matt 29
 Welsch, Amy 265
 Wengert, Stacey 251
 Wenk, Erick 311
 Wenzel, Elizabeth 265
 Wenzel, Janet 251
 West, Christopher 251
 West, Nicole 251
 Westley, Elizabeth 252
 Wetzal, Michael 252

Veisbard, Olivia	275	Wolf, Lynne	325
Vheelbarger, Renee	275	Wolpert, Pamela	253
Vheeler, Lisa	252	Woltemath, Tanya	265
Vhelan, Laura	116	Wong, Alice	275
Vherley, Elizabeth	325	Wong, Kenneth	265
Vhethman, Katie	252	Wong, Tracy	253
Vhetzal, Tara	252	Woo, Kevin	301
Vhindleton, Adriane	252	Woodard, Theresa	275
Vhitacre, Catherine	252	Woodin, Sandra	253
Vhitacre, Julie	252	Woodruff, Kelly	253
White, Candy	265	Woods, Leigh	253
Whiteman, Greg	121	Woodson, Andrea	254
Whitlow, Christopher	252	Woody, John	96
Whitlow, Mary	252	Woody, Kevin	120, 121
Whitman, Richard	288, 289	Wooking, Melvin	253
Whitney, Gwendolyn	252, 320	Woolever, Mike	136
Vicker, Amy	252	Woolfolk, Renee	254
Vidder, Katrina	331	Worontzoff, Christine	254, 331
Vidmyer, Ginger	275	Wright, Amy	275
Viedeman, Tara	275	Wright, Corbitt	169
Vifed, Brad	310	Wright, Edward	254
Viggins, Nathan	56	Wright, Lisa	275
Vilburn, Mason	252, 336	Wright, Suzanne	254, 275, 314
Vilcox, Lyle	288, 289	Wright, Wendy	254
Vilds, Jennifer	160	Wulf, Kristi	331
Vilinski, Amy	275	Wunder, Liane	325
Vilkins, Shannon	265	Wunder, Mark	254
Vilkinson, Anna	252	Wyche, Andrea	254, 315
Villey, Kristin	252, 325	Wyland, Joanna	254
Villiams, Christopher	119, 120, 52

Zimmerman, John	301
Zimmerman, Ryan	275
Zizzi, Sam	301
Zook, Leslie	331
Zoolenski, Matt	344
Zulandi, Christina	88
Zulandi, Denise	88, 301
Zuolenski, Matt	255
Zwart, Melinda	255

Y

Villiams, Jason	275, 320, 344	Yager, Brian	328
Villiams, Jeffrey	252	Yager, Kimberly	254, 311
Villiams, Jennifer	331	Yago, Nancy	136, 254
Villiams, Julius	136	Yanez, Lillian	254
Villiams, Karla	331	Yap, Susan	275
Villiams, Kemberlee	252	Yarnell, Barbara	254
Villiams, Pamela	252	Yeatts, Jenny	254
Villiams, Steve	35, 252, 320	Yi, Chris	255
Villiams, Tahishya	315	Yoch, Marchelle	301
Villiams, Troy	253	Yoho, Sheri	255
Villiamson, Ashley	146	York, Dianne	136
Villis, Karen	265	Young, Celeste	265
Villnski, Amy	275	Young, Jackie	255
Vilson, Blair	39	Young, Sandra	255
Vilson, Edwin	253	Youngblood, Graham	255
Vilson, Greg	253
Vilson, Kevin	253
Vilson, Leigh	325
Vilson, Libby	327
Vilson, Michael	253
Vilson, Rhonda	253
Vilttrout, Jeffrey	253
Viltshire, Kelly	136
Vimbrough, Ray	328
Vinder, Michelle	275
Vindley, Monica	253
Vingert, Rochelle	253
Vinn, Sandra	253
Vinterling, Brian	253
Vinters, Bonnie	253
Virt, Jennifer	275
Vise, Christina	265
Visecarver, Milla Sue	130
Vitt, Melissa	253, 331
Vitzel, Bradley	253

Z

Zachnoviskia, Tracy	311
Zahaba, Danielle	138, 139
Zamani, Donesh	255
Zarahn, Brian	255
Zeafra, Amy	241, 255
Zempolich, Kristin	255, 301, 310
Zepp, Jerry	255

SLICKCONDITIONS. This student makes his way around campus, despite the icy sidewalks. January and February were filled with bad weather, and classes were cancelled more often this year than in all of JMU's history.

With the close of another school year, we were faced once again with the task of reevaluating our positions and looking toward the future. We took what we learned and weighed our

Options & Possibilities

The 1993-94 school year was filled with a multitude of changes, making it obvious that life at JMU would never again be quite the same. "Restructuring" changed from a rumor to a reality, and was a buzzword around campus. The restructuring ranged from the University's colleges redefining their functions to the lowering of the credits needed to graduate.

Many of the changes were prompted by cuts made in the state budget, and all were a sign of the changing times. JMU's ability to adapt to the changing environment proved that the institution would continue to grow, in regards to both size and reputation. To seniors, it was clear that James Madison University was not the same school it had been four years ago. The changes in structuring also allowed many underclass-

Hong

QUIET SPOT. Enjoying the beautiful weather, this student studies between classes. The JMU campus was markedly affected by all four seasons, from the colorful fall foliage to the cheerful spring flowers men to graduate early due to the decreased number of credits required for graduation.

Whether students were preparing to graduate and face the workforce or planning the remainder of their academic career, the end of this school year left each of us with the opportunity to reevaluate and look to the future. Although JMU's structure and campus had changed, the people at the University remained as friendly and involved as ever.

JMU continued to attract students with leadership qualities, ambitious goals and strong views and opinions. The education we received at JMU created a strong foundation on which we could base our futures as we were left to imagine what would lie ahead for both the University and for ourselves.

THE WORLD

Around Us

The students of JMU created a world within the city of Harrisonburg. This world was filled with voices advocating caused from saving Freshman Seminar to increasing environmental awareness. It was a world full of athletic and scholarly achievements run by a democratic student government making decisions which effected every student. Such a world could not exist if it were not for the influences of the world surrounding JMU.

Positive steps were taken in the political arena. President Clinton and his administration helped bring together two long time enemies, Arab Yasser Arafat and Jew Yitzhak Rabin, in a peaceful handshake. Before the historic handshake, the two leaders signed a peace treaty.

Another positive step was taken by Ruth Bader Ginsburg who took the oath of office August 10 to become the second woman to sit on the U.S. Supreme Court. She followed in the steps of Sandra Day O'Connor, justice since 1981. The Senate "overwhelming confirmed" Ginsburg, President Clinton's first nominee, to serve on the high court.

The social hardships that stirred in Yugoslavia, Russia and Somalia weighed on the minds of everyone. A civil war in its second year destroyed much of Yugoslavia. Conflict existed in Russia as well. Vice President

Alexander Rtuskoi and his followers tried to take power from President Boris Yeltsin in an attempted coup. The rebellion ended in unrestrained gunfire and the imprisonment of the coup leaders. Conditions in Somalia evoked American emotions when the entire country fell into poverty. The city of Mogadishu was divided and resulted in war. The U.N. became involved, and approximately 350,000 people died because of the fighting.

Not only did international upheaval occur, but natural disasters struck as well. On September 22 a railroad bridge in Saraland, Alabama collapsed driving all three engines into a river. The accident was Amtracks's deadliest in their 23-year history.

California was struck a double blow as first fire, then an earthquake occurred. The fire raged through the outskirts of major towns while the earthquake took its toll everywhere. The devastating amount of destruction and upheaval is still not entirely known.

To add balance, as well as to shed light on the unfortunate crises, the entertainment world provided laughter and lightheartedness. Sports fans watched Joe Carter take the Toronto Blue Jays to victory over the leading Philadelphia Phillies with, what is said to be, "one of the most dramatic home runs in the long history of the World Series." Fans said farewell to Michael Jordan, the world's best basketball player, when he announced his retirement October 6, but then welcomed him back as a baseball hopeful as he signed a minor league contract with the Chicago White Sox on February 7. The decision to play baseball was partially based in a hope of his father's, who was murdered earlier in the year while traveling. The Dallas Cowboys were on their way to creating a dynasty as Troy Aikman and Emmitt Smith led them to a second Superbowl title. The Olympics kept people glued to their sets, both for the sporting events, like Dan Jansen's first and last gold medal in the 1000 meter race, and the continuing developments in the Tonya Harding/Nancy Kerrigan saga. The T.V. scene gave us "Seinfeld," a show which featured nothing and everything in a most humorous way. At the Emmy Awards the show won the award for best comedy series.

Looking back, the year's events stirred up conflict, yet they strengthened beliefs and were the catalyst to events in everyone's life.

THE MIDWEST FLOODS. The great floods of the Midwest captured the interest of Americans in the summer of '93. The disaster began when the heavy snow fall melted and the spring rains added to the flooding. People were left homeless, crops were ruined, as well as profit, and insurers had to pay compensation.

Photos courtesy of the AP

A PEACEFUL SIGN. President Clinton helps unite Arab Yasser Arafat and Jew Yitzhak Rabin in a peaceful handshake September 13. President Clinton referred to the handshake as a "great occasion of history and hope."

IN CHAOS. Citizens of Russia gaze into the flames and smoke that envelop the city of Moscow. Russia experienced political upheaval as an attempt to overthrow President Yeltsin. The result was rebellion and a city left destroyed.

SAYING FARWELL. Michael Jordan, the world's best basketball player, announced his retirement October 6. Jordan, who dazzled crowds with his amazing moneovers and incredible take offs, said, "The thrill is gone."

courtesy of the AP

courtesy of the AP

THE AMTRAK CRASH. On September 22 an Amtrak train drove off a collapsed railroad bridge in Saraland Alabama. It was Amtrak's deadliest crash. There were 159 survivors and an unfortunate 47 deaths.

NOTHING'S FUNNY. The sitcom "Seinfeld" walked away with three Emmy Awards in '93, best comedy, best supporting actor and best episode. The show, according to Jerry Seinfeld, "Is a show about everything. That's the same as nothing."

Photos courtesy of the AP

Editor's Note

It is difficult to even begin to describe how much work went into producing this yearbook. To anyone not on the Bluestone staff, our staying in the office on weekend nights, thoroughly neglecting our classes and not sleeping for days during deadlines seemed insane. And it was. But I truly believe that we will see that the culmination of our all-nighters, junk food splurges and anxiety attacks transformed into a book we will always treasure. Although we did at times sacrifice fun and nights out with our friends, we learned the value of being dedicated to a project, and formed a bond as fellow workers. Just think, if we weren't involved with this, we never would have known exactly how many times Joe could make my life hell (just kidding!), how many names one person could have (and we thought "Hani" was strange) or the powers of text rotation (check it out).

Leading this staff was the toughest challenge I have ever faced. It was usually frustrating and nerve-wracking, but in the same respect, also very rewarding. This staff was the most diverse group I have ever worked with, but in the end you each came through and pulled together. I am very proud of you, and I am glad I have the chance to thank each of you here.

Beth Anne, everyone says that working with your closest friends leads to trouble. I'm glad we proved that wrong. Your being a section editor this year meant so much to me. You were dependable and talented and, most importantly, so much fun. Your mischievous ways actually made the time in the office enjoyable—I'll never forget "It's 11:30, Heath, I was just thinking...", and "Well, I could disguise myself" as well as our 21st birthdays. Val (little bro)- thanks for coming in, even when this was the last place you wanted to be. Joe-congratulations on surviving our sarcastic relationship. Thanks for coming up with new ideas after I would slam your initial ones, and for trying to follow all my yearbook "laws." Jen- thanks for helping Joe, and making those essential runs to Sports Media. Roland- we missed you second semester, thanks for your help during the first two deadlines. Matt- you filled an important spot, and were quietly efficient.

Hani L.D.T. Hong (Linda, et al.)- you were hilarious, even when you weren't trying to be. Your deadline proved that anything that can go wrong will, thanks for keeping a smile during countless all nighters. I was always laughing with you, not at you. Kathy, I am so glad that "fate" brought you to us. I have no idea how you remained so optimistic 24/7, but I'm glad you did. You are the only person I have ever met who is a bigger perfectionist and yearbook nut than I am, I know your dedication will take you far. Another great big thanks to all of the staff and copywriters--this book would not have been possible without your hard work.

As with any yearbook, photos were hard to come by, but ultimately arrived. Colleen, I know you had a tough job, thanks for coming through in the end. Lisa, thanks for taking care of the last minute details, and having a great attitude. To all the photogs, thanks for coming up with strong photos and working against tough deadlines. Thanks to Joe, (G-Money) for translating my ideas for night shots into beautiful photos, helping with the opening and making us all laugh.

WE'RE NOT WORTHY. Members of the Bluestone staff jokingly bow to editor Heather Gustin. Producing a yearbook was a team effort, and the staff relied on each other for support, help and laughs.

A special thanks to those who worked closest to me. Kristi, thanks for being our maintenance woman and for taking care of so many details. You always knew how to reassure me when I was convinced this book would never be finished and you knew how to make me laugh with just two words—"Naked Dennis." You were a great roommate and friend, thanks also for letting me know when I had a 3am phone call (NOT!). Trene- your practical business sense was a perfect balance to my wacky, creative tendencies. Thanks for being so dependable and offering a sane point of view. To our adviser, Jerry Weaver, thanks for always knowing who to call and how to solve problems, and especially, for always making me laugh and realize this would eventually be over. Pete and Lori Griffin, I thought of you more as friends than Jostens reps. Thanks for being so patient with my never ending questions, and for offering so much support. I'll expect you two at my wedding when Billy Ray finally wises up!

I would also like to thank those people who were not even on the staff, but helped me enormously. To Lisa, Heath, and all my other friends, thanks for sticking by me through four years of yearbook stress, and for trying to understand my love/hate relationship with being an editor. Mom and Dad, thanks for the letter writing advice, handling my "I'm having a crisis" calls, and for always pushing me to do my best. Thanks, Chuck, for sticking by me last summer, the 6am wake up calls and always coming through with the perfect Wayne's World quote. Kim and Buff, I thanked you for your help on Denbigh's book four years ago, and you have continued to help me since. Kim, your phone calls and advice were tops. My "pal" Buff, you are the one person who can always make me laugh, no matter what. Thanks for helping me put things in perspective, and for teaching me to believe in myself. Thanks to Tanya, Kate and John, for teaching me so much, and helping me stick with yearbook. And finally, an enormous thank you to Michelle Bean. In this year of stress and headaches, I never would have survived without our crazy adventures and laughs-- "We can always sleep in the car," "Take it, or walk home" and the "Not that I have a problem," to name a few. Thanks for always making time to listen, help, and keep me sane—sha, right, as if...! You are a truly unselfish person, I owe you so much.

Overall, putting together a permanent record of this university was an enormous task, I hope we have done it justice. Again, thank you to the staff that sacrificed sleep, sanity and social life to produce this book. Looking back on all nights I spent in here alone checking pages, I can honestly say that the stress and anxiety will one day be worth it, but I'm glad it's over, and I can finally get my "life" back. If anyone needs me, I'll be at JM's....

Sincerely,
Heather L. Gustin
1993-94 Editor-in-Chief

Guilfoyle

Magin

Vo

YOU GO, GIRL! Junior Tory Weiss flexes during hypnotist Tom DeLuca's show. DeLuca visited campus each semester, and was a favorite among students.

JUST CHILLING. Christoph Bachuber relaxes on the Quad on a sunny day. It was often necessary to take a few moments out of our busy lives to enjoy the scenic beauty of the JMU campus and relax between classes.

PRECIOUS CHILD. This young JMU fan watches the Homecoming game decked out in Madison apparel. Homecoming was a time for fans, young and old, to get caught up in a school spirit unique to our university.

JMU RULES. This JMU cheerleader takes a break from the action of a football game. The special memories we created at JMU were ones we would never forget.

SLIDING. These friends make the most of the snow and their free morning. JMU cancelled classes before noon several times due to bad weather.

STEPPING OUT. Zaneta Moore practices for a step show performance. Events such as the step show proved that hard work paid off.

Guilfoyle

Colophon

Volume 86 of the James Madison University Bluestone was printed by Josten's Printing and Publishing Division in State College, Pennsylvania using offset lithography. Linda Nolf served as our plant consultant and Peter and Lori Griffin served as our local representatives.

The cover was royal purple no. 518 and the side panel is Cord 1172. Custom embossing was used for the embossed portions. The first applied color on the cover is silver foil.

Helvetica was used for all body copy, captions, bylines, photo credits and folios. Headline and sub-head fonts included: Friz Quadrata, Present, New York, Times and Beguiat.

Each section editor designed their respective sections. Tempo color was used in the Features and Sports sections. The cover, endsheets and Division pages were designed by the Editor in Chief. The artwork for the cover was done by Bob Eyster of Jostens, State College.

Portraits and organizations photos were taken by Varden Studios of Rochester, New York. Joel Siegel served as our Varden representative. Athletic photos were provided by Sports Media Relations and Bluestone photographers. Color photos were processed and printed by Varden Studios. Photo enlargements and reprints were processed by Walmart and King Photo in Harrisonburg. All black and white photos were reproduced using a 133 line screen and all color photos were reproduced using a 150 line screen.

The book was designed using Josten's Yeartech software in conjunction with Aldus PageMaker 4.2. We used four Macintosh LC's with 75MB.

The 1993-1994 edition of the Bluestone was produced by a non-profit, contracted and independent organization.

Opinions expressed are not necessarily those of the administration, faculty or the staff of the university. The editors accept responsibility for content of the book.

The offices of the Bluestone are located in rooms 215-217 in Anthony-Seeger Hall. The telephone number is (703) 568-6541.

Authorization to reproduce portions of this book and any further information may be obtained by writing to Bluestone, P.O. Box 3522, Harrisonburg, VA, 22807.

RUNNING WILD. These JMU runners jog past Godwin bus stop during their daily workout. Students seldom minded working hard for a goal they wanted to achieve.

Humke

Bluestone Staff

Editor-in-Chief

Heather L. Gustin

Managing Editor

Kristi Shackelford

Business Manager

Trene Gease

Photography Editor

Colleen Magin

Assistant Photography Editor

Lisa Manzo

Features Editor

Beth Anne Howie

Assistant Features Editor

Valerie Leighton

Sports Editor

Joe Olson

Assistant Sports Editor

Jennifer Howard

Organizations/Greeks Editor

Katherine Hawk

Classes Editor

Hani Hong

Sportswriters

Roland Massa, Matt Vlieger

Photographers

Matt Humke

Trang Vo

Steve Williams

Jason Williams

Sharley Simpson

Carla Komich

Joe Guilfoyle

Steve Fowler

Staff

Colleen Crowley

Lea Olshefskie

Benjamin Gill

Sara Ringdahl

Jen Williams

Ashley Hall

Gwen Whitney

Jen Franca

Erin Roche

Vince Petrolle

Brian Tetro

Special Thanks

Pete & Lori Griffin

Varden

Diana Hamilton

Linda Nolf

Glen's

Wanda Hommel

Bob Eyser

Walmart

Student Activities

Jerry Weaver

UPB

Connie Kerlin

Dean Whitman

Gitchell's

Sports Media

Nancy Gray

AS Crew

Darren Drewery

Chip Neese

WXJM

Joel Siegel

PEACEFUL WALK. This couple leaves campus in late afternoon. JMU changed a great deal in during the 1993-94 school year, but it was obvious that the traditional beauty of the JMU campus would never change.

ple
MU
the Dw-
the e.

